FUTURE OF THE OIL FIELDS

Chief of the United States Geological Survey Makes Encouraging Report.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—Robert T. Hill, chief geologist of the United States geological survey, has returned from an extended geological investigation in the Texas oil fields and he has embodied the results in a report, which says: "The importance of this oil field is far greater than at present can be described or estimated. It means not only a cheap fuel supply to the largest state in area in the union, but owing to its close proximity to tide, it promises an export trade such as exists nowhere else in the world."

"It is impossible now to state exactly the extent of the oil-yielding field which supplies the Beaumont wells and this can only be determined by drilling experiments. "The area of profitable exploitation of the Beaumont oil fields is confined between the San Jacinto and the Sabine rivers, east of the Houston & West Texas railroad and south of Oil City, Naguadoches county. This area may be extended or restricted by future exploitation."

BREAKS THE EMPEROR

Undisposed part of her monthly allowance of $2,000. Sanden had complete control of her private fortune of $625,000, every cent of which was hers.

Other Noble Game. Other noble victims of the thrifty Sanden are Grand Master Baron von Mirbach, $250,000; grand master of the emperor's Court Musenburgh, $125,000; master of the horse, Count von Wendel, $125,000; Baron von Heintze, Count Keller and Baron Lynecker for the time being. But a few days ago the emperor conceived the project of rebuilding and redecorating the famous White hall in the Berlin schloss.

JACKSONIAN CLUB ON CUBA

L. J. Dunn Denies Right of United States to Assume Control. The Jacksonian club was addressed last night by L. J. Dunn, who spoke on the Platt amendment and the duty of the United States toward Cuba. He denied the right of the United States to assume control of Cuba and declared that the island should be permitted to govern itself.

"If Cuba is not annexed and the United States attempts to control it on lines now outlined, it will be necessary to throw an army into the island to maintain the authority of this country," was the closing statement of Mr. Dunn's speech.

DEATH BY HIS OWN HAND

Verdict of Coroner's Jury in the Case of Dr. George S. Nason.

NO REFERENCE IS MADE TO SUICIDE

Jury Does Not Pass Upon the Question of Accident or Premeditation — Testimony of Mrs. Nason and R. W. Emerson.

The discovery of a new witness in the case of Dr. George S. Nason, who died Thursday evening at his home as the result of a pistol wound, has convinced the coroner's jury it is not necessary in taking the evidence of various witnesses and in inspecting the apartments where the fatal shot was fired.

The coroner's jury, empaneled to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of Dr. George S. Nason, has found that he "came to his death as the result of a pistol-shot wound, fired by his own hand." At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon the jury, in charge of the coroner, went to the late home of Dr. Nason, 2509 Farnam street, to inspect the rooms where the shooting occurred, and to examine the evidence. Their attention was called to the singed hair about the wound, showing that the pistol had been held close to the head. They examined the windows of the bedroom and satisfied themselves that it would have been impossible for anyone to have gained access to the room from the outside. The battered bedroom door came in for its share of attention, as did the queer little double-barreled pistol from which the fatal bullet was fired.

Interest centered upon the new witness in the case, Ralph W. Emerson, local manager of the Baker-Vester company, whose offices in the United States National bank building, was in the Nason home at the time the doctor returned at 6:15 Thursday evening and was the last person to see him alive.

EMERSON TELLS HIS STORY

He testified, in substance, as follows: "I have been occupying a suite of rooms in the Nason home since April 1 and have been taking my meals about a block away, on Twenty-sixth street. A few minutes after 6 o'clock on Thursday evening of Thursday I was in the bath room of the doctor's house, 2509 Farnam street, washing my hands preparatory to going to dinner, and having finished, walked down the hall toward the head of the stairs. Just as I reached the staircase met Dr. Nason coming up. I observed that his walk was unsteady, that his face was flushed and that his eyes had a kind of wild look in them. I passed the time of day with him, saying 'Good evening, doctor,' and he replied pleasantly and passed on. I heard him close the door of his room, but did not hear him lock it."

"Then I went to dinner, and afterward went down to my office. During the evening I met a friend of mine whom I had known in Maine and stayed downtown with him all night. I knew nothing of Dr. Nason's death until yesterday morning, when I read an account of it in a newspaper."

"So far as I know there was no cause for committing suicide. He always got along nicely with his wife and they seemed to be perfectly congenial."

Mrs. Nason Testifies

Mrs. Nason has recovered somewhat from the first shock occasioned by her husband's violent death. "I did not hear my husband enter," said she, "and the first I knew of his being in the house was when I heard him speak to Mr. Emerson upstairs. I didn't hear Mr. Emerson go out. The next sound I heard was a muffled explosion, which I afterward learned was the report of the pistol. I then went to the foot of the stairs and called to my husband. I called several times, and as there was no answer I went up and tried to open the door. It was locked on the inside. Then I became frightened and beat on the panels with my fists and shouted as loud as I could, and as all was quiet inside I knew something was wrong and ran to get something to break the door in. I found a hammer and with that pounded on the door until it gave way. The next you know, they told me afterward, that I had fainted."

EMERSON TELLS HIS STORY

Dr. W. N. Dorward testified that he was with Dr. Nason as late as 6 o'clock Thursday afternoon. "There were three of us playing billiards in a billiard parlor at Fifteenth and Harvey streets," said he. "Dr. W. H. Shreve, who was my partner, and I became ill and went to bed. I was suddenly thrown down his cue and said he had to go home. He was due at the house for dinner at 6:15, he said, so excused himself very naturally and walked away, leaving nothing whatever unusual in his manner."

WOULDN'T SELL IT

Her Clear and Pure Complexion Not for Sale. A Cornell girl was put on a Grape-Nuts diet and discovered some facts. She says: "While a student at Cornell I suffered from improper diet. The banquet and other social functions—with their rich refreshments—served to completely upset a stomach already weak from rich pastry. Highly seasoned meats and confections furnished by loving parents at home. I became irritable, nervous, and my appetite became more and more capricious. Only rich, highly seasoned food suited me and this further wrecked my health. I was suffering, having lost my pink and white complexion. I liked the new food so well and I had fair to serve to death, when a physician advised my physician to put me on Grape-Nuts Food diet. To make a long story short, the transformation from wretched ill health to good health was marvelous. Liked the new food so well and it agreed with my tortured stomach perfectly, regulated my bowels, my headaches left and the color of the skin gradually grew better. In eight months I found myself rosy, plump and strong."

I would not sell my exalted complexion, bright eyes and general good feeling for the costliest, richest mess of Delmonico's petage. I returned to Cornell, finished my course and can now study, think and live. The food that enabled me to regain my health I shall never forget. He lives in the adjoining flat, and, hearing women screaming, had rushed in to inquire the cause. Dr. Nason was dying when he arrived, and was too far gone to speak.

WILL MEET BIG CHIEFS

Head of Omaha Police Department Goes to New York to Attend Convention.

Chief of Police Donahue, accompanied by Mr. DeLoach, left last evening for a ten-day trip to New York City, where the chief will attend the annual convention of the chiefs of police of America. One of the most important subjects to be considered at the meeting is the jury system. "There is no question," said the chief, "that the chief of police should be recognized as one of them were made apparent by the callahan trial. Reforms and how best to accomplish them will be discussed and I intend to say a few things on the subject."

PRIDE OF THE GENTYS

How "Rocket" the Finest Greyhound in the World, Won Championship.

At the recent dog show in Madison Square Garden, New York, an incident occurred that will be talked about among the New York 400 until the next dog show occurs in January. The international contest for the long-distance leader of the world was the crowning event of the week. Lithe greyhounds from every land were on hand when the day arrived for the great test. Society was all agog over the affair and awaited the tap of the gong. One by one the great dogs were introduced and the audience in the grandstand of the world was in a state of intense interest.
