

BOUND FOR LOS ANGELES

Oregon Short Line Officials Are Enthusiastic Over Extension.

SENATOR CLARK IS ALSO AT WORK

Montana Millionaire Statesman Says Opposition Cannot Stop His Project—How the Work Is Progressing.

Oregon Short Line officials are enthusiastic in regard to the proposed extension to Los Angeles. Vice President W. H. Bancroft, is quoted as saying: "It will be a matter of three or four months before the final location is made. This, however, will not prevent work from being pushed, and as first attention will be given to the Meadow Valley wash section, the grading can be started as soon as the track reaches Clover Valley Junction. The work will be about June 30, and about the same time the through fast passenger train, with standard Pullman, will be run between Salt Lake and Clover Valley Junction daily.

"The reason the location of the entire line will take some months to complete is owing to the modern demands of engineering. The old Union Pacific survey will be largely adhered to, and the right of way will be the same, but nowadays the gradient and curvature must be considerably less than that allowed ten years ago. For this reason, two large surveying parties are in the field for the purpose of securing a line which will greatly reduce the grades and curves as shown in the former survey.

"The work is now well under way in surveying, grading, tracklaying and bridge work on the new line, and in addition the line between Salt Lake and Nevada is receiving great attention. As soon as rails can be secured some new track will be laid between Jush and Milford. The Short Line, like other roads, is having trouble in securing steel, as the factories are away behind in their orders.

Mr. Bancroft, however, that work will be pushed with vigor and will not be stopped until all-rail connection with Los Angeles is completed.

Senator Clark Is Active.

Senator Clark of Montana, president of the prospective San Pedro, Los Angeles & Pacific extension, is in the city, where he has received word from Washington that he has been nominated by President McKinley as chaplain in the regular army. The information came to Omaha in a letter from the secretary of war and the resignation of the chaplaincy is expected to be accepted in a few days.

The road will be built. The action of the Oregon Short Line in getting possession of certain right of way on the Utah-Nevada line, does not interfere with my plans.

This action of opposition is merely an incident. True I am not familiar with the exact situation, but will soon find out when I get there. The question of right of way is now in litigation. I cannot prophesy the outcome, but I do know that we are going to fight for our rights.

"You can tell the people for me that the road will be built despite all opposition, no matter from what source it comes. It is now building from Redlands and from Los Angeles, and it is also our intention with the San Pedro-Pasadena section with seventy-five-pound rails. We will put a large force on and rush work on grades through the canyons. We expect opposition from town to town, but this will be met.

Forty miles of grading doesn't cut much more one way or another. We started to build a road and it will be built, and at once, too."

SHRINERS SET A RECORD PACE.

Hasten to Redlands on Fifty-One Miles. The Burlington special train which carried the Shriner temple from Omaha to Kansas City Monday broke all previous time records for the trip. It was just 12:03 by the conductor's watch when the engine, baggage car and four coaches left the station here, and 4:48 they glided into the union depot at the other end, 208 miles away.

Just four hours and forty-five minutes were consumed in the trip, and that is one and one-third minutes to the mile, the journey through, or about forty-three miles an hour. That includes all stops, however, and when these are reckoned out the average is much higher. Two big bridges were crossed, and in five minutes each; at St. Joseph ten minutes were whiled away changing engines, etc.; crossings consumed five minutes more. This makes the average rate about fifty-one miles an hour.

All along railroad row officials expressed their astonishment and admiration at this work, which was acknowledged to be bona fide from start to finish. Even the Burlington people were surprised, for when the Shriner temple was asked to set the lowest time limit for arrival they had said that 5:30 was the earliest minute at which they could guarantee it. They beat this forty-two minutes and shortened the time of the fastest passenger train between the two terminals by one hour and forty-five minutes.

New Trains on Washash. The Washash road announced two new trains that will run over its lines during the Buffalo exposition, one from Chicago to Buffalo, and one from St. Louis to the same terminal. This service will commence June 15 and continue until the end of the exposition. The trains will be known as the Pan-American Limited. One will leave Chicago daily at 9:10 a. m., reaching Buffalo at 11:45 the next morning. The other will leave St. Louis at 1:05 p. m., reaching its destination at 8:30 in the morning. This service in addition to the regular trains, none of which will be discontinued. Twenty-five coaches, ten chair cars, eight combination cars, two dining cars and three cafe cars, all new, have been supplied for the new equipment necessary.

Death of George Warfel. George D. Warfel, formerly of Omaha, of late assistant general passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern at St. Louis, died last Wednesday at Danville, Ill., and was buried the following Friday. No news of the death reached Omaha till Harry Moores of the Omaha & St. Louis

UNCLE SAM AGAINST COTTON

Ex-Banker of Syracuse is on Trial in the Federal Court.

STANDS ACCUSED OF FRAUDULENT ACTS

Much Time is Consumed in Legal Sparring Over Preliminary—Large Sum of Money is Involved.

Before Judge Munger a jury was empaneled yesterday for the trial of C. E. Cotton, the former Syracuse banker, on charges of fraudulently abstracting funds from the bank with which he was connected, falsifying reports to the comptroller of the currency concerning the financial status of the bank and mutilating the records to cover irregularities. These irregularities are said to involve about $400,000.

Cotton was a delegate to the last national democratic convention, and his friends have sought to convey the impression that politics is behind his prosecution. Preliminary skirmishes indicate that the case is to be stubbornly contested. Counsel for the opposing sides locked horns over the number of challenges to which the defense was entitled in the selection of a jury, and it was some time before an agreement was reached.

Then there ensued a controversy over which stenographer should take the testimony. United States District Attorney Summers had arranged to have the testimony taken by John B. Lindsey and C. C. Valentine, while the defense insisted that it should be taken by Miss Grace Waring, whose name appears in the official stenographer. Mr. Summers insisted that he had been authorized to secure the stenographer and had done so, but he had no objection to the defense having a stenographer if it so desired.

It was necessary to await the return into court of the jury in the Walker-Moser case before taking up the work of empanelling a jury in the Cotton case, and it was nearly noon before the court got into action.

Mrs. Wittum and Charles Phelps Appear at Perjury Hearing.

In the Callahan perjury case, which is being heard by Judge Vinsonbar, the state has rested. Mrs. George Wittum repeated the testimony she gave at the robbery trial, declaring positively that Callahan is the same man who had passed her house, going in the direction of the Schneider's clothing store, nearly every day for three weeks immediately preceding the kidnaping of Eddie Cudady. She said that Callahan usually passed along early in the evening, sometimes on foot, but most of the time in a buggy with a light man whose description fits Pat Crowe.

Charles M. Phelps was more positive in his identification of Callahan than he was at the former trial. He now says that he is sure that it was Callahan who accompanied the man who purchased the pony from Dan Harris, while at the former trial he said that Callahan "favored" the man with the pony purchaser.

Jury Fails to Agree.

The second trial of the case of Emma Walker against John Moser, saloon keeper at Ashland, for damages from the death of her husband, resulted in a disagreement of the jury in federal court. The jury stood eleven for the plaintiff and one for the defendant, which was a deadlock. A former trial resulted in a verdict in her favor for $2,250, which was set aside and a new trial ordered because of alleged faulty instructions of the trial court. Plaintiff sued for $10,000 her own account and that of her child. Moser is reputed to have operated the only saloon in the town. The plaintiff's husband became intoxicated and was killed in a runaway in February, 1900.

Claims Against Bennett Estate.

Several large claims have been filed in the county court against the estate of the late L. M. Bennett. The Omaha National bank asserts that the Bennett estate is liable on a note for $50,000 made to it by the Omaha Savings bank, of which Mr. Bennett was one of the stockholders. John E. Wilbur avers that the estate should be held on the $200,000 bond signed by Mr.
