

CALLAHAN IS BOUND OVER

Judge Vinsonholder Holds Him to District Court on Perjury Charge.

PLAIN DISCUSSION FROM THE BENCH

Results in Defendant's Former Trial for Robbery Are Not to Be Considered in Present Case, Says the Court.

James Callahan, the alleged kidnaper of Eddie Cudaby, must appear before the district court and defend a charge of perjury. "I do not believe that the law provides that successful perjury shall not be prosecuted. Where a man has succeeded in exonerating himself from serious charges by false testimony he should not be free from prosecution on the charge of perjury. Such premium upon perjury is not to be considered in establishing their point by means of testifying falsely," said Judge Duncan M. Vinsonholder of the county court in binding Callahan over to the district court yesterday morning.

Immediately after Callahan was acquitted on the charge of robbery he was re-arrested on a charge of perjury. His attorneys sought to have him released on the ground that he had been put in jeopardy for the kidnapping of Cudaby, Jr., and that he could not be tried again.

On review the case. In giving his decision Judge Vinsonholder reviewed the trial of Callahan for robbery and commented upon the testimony introduced. He said that a careful study of the testimony given in the trial convinced him that falsehoods were told in establishing the alibi for Callahan.

The judge dwelt at length upon the testimony given concerning the whereabouts of Callahan on December 19 and said that he did not believe that it is possible for people to recall all the events in a day as accurately as the Callahan witnesses pretended to recall them.

It was maintained by the attorneys for the defendant that December 19 marked the birthday of a relative of Callahan and that account the witnesses remembered all happenings of the day perfectly. But Judge Vinsonholder expressed the opinion that it is unusual for people to have such remarkable memories, and called attention to the fact that the witnesses were unable to recall events which occurred on other days and did not show on the witness stand that they were persons of unusual powers.

Clear of Robbery Charge. The defendant can never be tried again for robbery. He was acquitted and cannot again be put in jeopardy for that crime, but it appears that the defendant willfully perjured himself in his former trial, and the fact that he was acquitted of the charge of robbery does not seem to me to be any reason for not trying him for perjury. Whether he is innocent or innocent of robbery should have nothing to do with his trial for perjury," said the judge.

Callahan was ordered by the judge to appear before the district court at its present term. His attorneys sought to have his bond reduced from $1,500 to $500. County Attorney Shields objected. He stated that perjury is punishable by a sentence varying from one to fourteen years imprisonment, and maintained that $1,500 is not excessive. Judge Vinsonholder refused to reduce the bond.

The decision of the court had no apparent effect on Callahan. He listened attentively to the judge's review of the case and did not show any emotion when it was announced that he must again appear before the district court. He was taken back to jail.

Terminates Abruptly. The $3,000 damage suit of Charles M. Conover against the Burlington, growing out of the cut at the south end of the Eleventh street viaduct and the caving of the bank away from the foundation of a house owned by plaintiff, came to summary termination in federal court yesterday. After the evidence was all in plaintiff asked that the case be dismissed without prejudice to the commencement of a new action, which was accordingly done.

Court House Briefs. Judge Estelle has granted Martha P. Blakeman a divorce from Charles Blakeman. Lucy Howlett has sued for a divorce from Clyde J. Howlett. Indelicacy and cruelty are the ground for the action.

Robert W. McHale has brought action to recover $1,000 from W. P. McHale. McHale is the contractor who erected Maloney's vaudeville theater on Capitol avenue near Sixteenth street and the money he is suing for is said to be due him for work on that building.

Minnie Williams was to have appeared in district court to answer to a charge of larceny from the county jail. She failed to show up and her bondsmen failed to notify that they will be expected to make good her bond. In the meantime she was charged with having stolen $36 from Adolph Coffman.

Cocoa-Celery Warning.

The soda water season is a little late starting, but the imitators of COCOA-CELERY have started in just the same. To initiate an article is to acknowledge merit. Some of our competitors try to "whip the devil round the stump" by spelling the name different. We first compounded the drink, coined the name, and put it before the public. It is a success. It is the best of the kind in Omaha. Nothing can excel it for quenching the thirst on hot days. Does not oppress the stomach, relieves headache and quiet the nerves. Its flavor can not be imitated.
