Women Victims of Paint Pots.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 10.—A Helms, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: It develops that the names of the two unfortunate women who fell to their deaths from the "blow" in the Yellowstone national park on Saturday last are Mrs. M. M. Zenther and daughter of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Zenther was burned across her back and shoulders and about the limbs, some clay settling as high as her neck and face. Miss Zenther escaped, but she was marked for life. The action of the blowing mud is similar to that of molten lead and is a fearful burn. Mrs. Zenther and daughter were just finishing a three-year tour of the world. Their son and brother left them at San Francisco and went to Brooklyn. The women arrived here at the Lake hotel resting, comfortable.

NAME BEARDSHEAR OF IOWA

The nominating committee this afternoon selected the following officers, who will be voted on later by the convention: President, William Beardshear, president of Iowa Agricultural college; treasurer, Thomas H. Keyes of Hartford, Conn.

OVERLAP IS BOUND TO BE INCREASED

Appropriations Not Large Enough to Meet the Demands of the City's Departments and No Provision for Old Debts.

By means of the levy and appropriation ordinances passed yesterday by the city council the property owners will be taxed $118,240 for the maintenance of the city government for the year commencing August 5. Of this total tax there must be a 10 per cent reserve and this will leave a net balance upon which warrants may be drawn of $106,416. When the levy was first figured on members of the finance committee talked matters over and it was agreed that it would be not less than $127,000 to pay the running expenses of the municipality during the coming fiscal year. This total did not in any way secure the overlap of $42,000 which now exists. With only $106,000 to go on, an amount an expense of $127,000, the present overlap will be increased by $21,000 at the conclusion of the next fiscal year.

Fowler of Lincoln Speaks.

Despite the severe heat the audience kept on increasing until when J. H. Van Sickle of Baltimore arose to present his paper on "Is the Curriculum Overcrowded?" chairs were at a premium. Charles S. Richards of New York was the next speaker. The discussion on "What is a Pad?" was opened by William K. Fowler of Lincoln, Neb. He said in part:

The school fund is a part of one of the most important of our public affairs. It is the purpose of an account of an honest reference of opinion on the school room situation, the experimental stage.

In many central states the consolidation of small rural schools and the transportation of pupils by public conveyance may be considered and is sometimes termed "consolidation." It is a question of fact as to its advantages as better understood by the public, drawing, music and elementary science are not facts and they may or may not be facts, according to local conditions. Extending the department of the state to the state university and colleges down through the schools into grammar grades is, I fear, a dangerous lack. We lack the time and the public lacks the patience to wait for results in uncertain investments in the grammar grades. That which the public schools do, that which the state university does, that which the public schools do, that which the state university does, that which the public schools do, that which the state university does.

William H. Davidson, superintendent of city schools of Topeka, Kan., was the last speaker discussing the paper on "Is the Curriculum Overcrowded?" Mr. Davidson contended that it was not.

At the session of the Indian educational department Prof. C. M. Woodward of Washington university, St. Louis, read a paper on "What Shall Be Taught in an Indian Education?" He argued for an industrial education, one that would make the Indian self-supporting.

In the department of school administration the feature was the address of Hon. L. E. Beggelrath, state commissioner of schools for Ohio, on "The Centralization of Rural Schools."

"The Function of the State University," by President R. H. Jesse of the University of Missouri, and "Rise of Education in the Sixteenth Century," by J. W. Perrie of Cleveland, professor in Western university, with the discussion of them, occupied part of the session of the department of higher education.

The paper of Dr. Francis F. Brandt of Philadelphia on "The Relation of the State to the Defective Child," was the feature of the department of education for deaf, dumb and feeble-minded. He said: "The state should take stronger measures for the prevention of defective and delinquent individuals. It needs to combine with its policy of protecting benevolence a policy of progressive elimination and annihilation in the eradication of the sexes it has a remedy as simple as vaccination."

Dean James E. Russell of the Teachers' college, Columbia university, read the paper of the afternoon before the department of normal schools on "The Training of Teachers for Secondary Schools."

Yesterday was celebrated as "Governor's Day" by the Street Fair association. Probably on account of the heat the attendance was small. Governor Savage and his party arrived in the city about the middle of the hour and were entertained for an hour or two at the South Omaha club. The party as made up as follows: E. P. Savage, governor; L. W. Colby, adjutant general; C. D. Evans, North Platte, surgeon general; Colonel Jenkins, quartermaster general; Colonel J. H. Brown, judge advocate. These aides-de-camp attended the governor; Colonel Neely, Melick, Harres, Martin, Sutton, Bryson, Robert J. Clancy, chief clerk to the governor, was also present. A cavalry detachment from the Thurston Rifles and the Omaha Guards. When Governor Savage in his carriage passed Twenty-fourth and M streets four big bombs were let loose as a salute to the governor and his staff.

The procession proceeded to the arena at Twenty-fifth and O streets, where an entertainment was given. An attempt was made to pull off a bull fight, but the animals were more docile than they were the night before. If such a thing were possible, and the affair was a disappointment to all except the members of the Humane society. One of the bulls, in the fourth act, managed to get in the shade of the grandstand and it took quite an effort to move him. The rough riding exhibition was good.

Following the entertainment at the arena Governor Savage and his party were entertained at luncheon at the South Omaha club. Not over 500 people witnessed the afternoon performance and the crowd on the streets was small. The evening show was about the same as it has been.

Tax Levy Still a Topic for Local Consideration.

LOSSES LEG UNDER TRAIN

Frank A. Sears of Spaulding Street is Run Down Near His Home.

Frank A. Sears, a salesman whose home is 3310 Spaulding street, was run down late last night by Missouri Pacific freight No. 130 at the Pratt street crossing and so severely injured that it was decided to be necessary to amputate the left leg above the ankle. He was taken to his home nearby and attended by Dr. H. A. Reichenbach. Sears was removed to St. Joseph's hospital where he is resting easily.

The freight was southbound and the trainmen were unaware of the accident and did not stop. No report has been received from the conductor, though he would have reported from West Side station had he known of it.

While riding his bicycle across the track he was thrown, sprained an ankle and was too much crippled to get out of the way of the train.

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST PAY

Mayor Moore Declares City Should Not Carry Sixteenth Street Burden.

"I will probably advise the city council to have street improvement districts created for the purpose of levying taxes to repair the Sixteenth street paving," Mayor Moore remarked this morning. "I know there will be a terrible howl if I veto the contract for repairing asphalt, but it seems to me that it is not just to make the city pay for any more repairs on that street."

"In case the property owners refuse to sign petitions for the repair of the paving it will probably be necessary to have Sixteenth street fenced in. The street is in such bad condition that it cannot be used much longer unless something is done to put it in condition."

RAYS FOR JOHN YAVERKA

Dr. Swoboda Will Attempt to Locate Bullet in Neck of the Wounded Man.

On account of the heat it was thought best not to move John Yaverka Wednesday afternoon, so he was not subjected to the X-ray test to locate the bullet in his neck. If it is cooler today Dr. Swoboda says the patient will be removed to the office of a physician in the McCague block, where the rays will be turned upon him.

Yaverka was accidentally shot last Saturday night by his friend, Charles Christek, the bullet lodging in the neck just below the right ear. He is said to have rallied somewhat from the effects of the wound and the attending physician has hopes of his recovery.

ASSAULT IN COUNCIL BLUFFS

Police Arrest Men Who Are Charged With Beating Companion.

The Council Bluffs police early this morning reported to the Omaha police that a probable murder had been committed in Council Bluffs and asked the look out in his neck. It is cooler today Dr. Swoboda says the patient will be removed to the office of a physician in the McCague block, where the rays will be turned upon him.

Later the Bluffs police telephoned they had arrested the men they were looking for and that their companion, whom they had been beating, had been taken to the hospital. It was still too dark or too drunk to give his name. He had been found on the street apparently dead, but much of his unconsciousness was later attributed to liquor.

ASSAULT ON MARY MARKS

Little Girl Sees and Recognizes Him on Read Near Her Home.

HE IS CHASED BY HER MOTHER AFOOT Then Police Arrive, But Trail is Lost at a Fork in the Road—Pursuit to Be Resumed Today.

The assailant of little Mary Marks was seen and recognized near the girl's home in Dundee yesterday morning. He was chased by Mrs. Marks until the sheriff and police officers arrived. They followed his trail to a point three miles west and three miles south of Ruser's park, where the road forks, and there the trail was lost. Mrs. Marks and several companions were playing near her home when a man drove up and asked the way to a neighbor's house. The girl recognized him at once as her assailant. She ran home and told her mother, who followed him on foot until her strength was exhausted. In the meantime neighbors had telephoned to the city.

Detectives Helfreit and Donahue and Emergency Officer Heiglman, as well as Sheriff Power and Deputy Flynn, started on the chase and found Mrs. Marks on the Dodge street road two miles west of the city. From there they followed the trail to the forks of the road, south and west of Ruser's park, where one leads to Sarry Mills, another to Fremont and the third to the west. It was late in the day when the officers finished their search without finding a clue. At night the search was taken up by Detectives Donahue and Johnson and the sheriff. They returned at a late hour, but will begin again today.

The identification of the fellow was complete, as he drove the same horse to the same buggy that he did on the day of the brutal assault three weeks ago.
