HOME FROM SOUTH AFRICA

W. E. C. Becker of Ashland Returns from Long Journey.

TRAVELS ON TRANSPORT WITH MULES

Captain on Board, Says Mr. Becker is Not Such as to Produce Good-Precent Status of the Boer Difficulty.

W. E. C. Becker of Ashland has returned from a trip to South Africa, where with S. A. Fowler of the same place he went with a cargo of mules destined for the British army operating against the Boers. Mr. Becker went for the sake of the trip, while Mr. Fowler desired to go to the antipodes to go into business in the new country. They left St. Louis April 15 and New Orleans a few days later on board the transport steamer Monterey, with 1,100 mules from the United States. The trip out was uneventful. According to his observation the mules, which cost the United States from $75 to $100, cost the British government by the time they reach the South African ports from $200 to $300 each. The trip of the Monterey was remarkably successful, only thirty-three of the 1,100 mules dying enroute. Arriving at Cape Colony 200 of the animals were delivered at Capetown and 900 at New London, a few miles from the capital. With the disembarking of the mules the Americans had an opportunity to investigate conditions in the country for about a week. Mr. Fowler started for Johannesburg, where he will engage in mining or some kindred pursuit, while Mr. Becker remained at the cape until ready to return to the United States. Status of Boer War. Speaking of the Boer war he said: "The war is further from a conclusion than most people in this country believe. One is surprised at the sentiment in favor of the Boers manifest in Cape Colony, even by Britons. It was said that every mule sent out which survived to reach the scene of hostilities would be captured by the Boers. At the time I was there it was almost impossible for the British to operate railroad trains after dark. On account of the successful attempts of the Boers to derail trains and capture supplies it became the practice for the railroad officials to order all trains to stop in some town where troops were present during the night and to run to other stations only in the daylight. "The British have from fifteen to twenty men in the field for every Boer under arms, but on account of their knowledge of the country they can maintain warfare indefinitely. The people in Capetown realize this and many of them are very much dis-

MAN HAS A GREAT HEAD

So Great, in Fact, that His Hat Blows Off and Therein Lies This Story.
The man who stole several valuable reticules and purses from a showcase in front of a store at Sixteenth and Douglas streets yesterday realizes that it is a poor wind which blows nobody good, for it was wind that enabled him to get away with his loot. Just as he secured the articles a friendly spirit swept his hat off and sent it spinning northward on Sixteenth street. He gave chase. The clerk, whose back had been turned a moment before, was among those who enjoyed the spectacle of the man chasing his hat. He observed that the headgear was of straw, with a broad, stiff brim, and that it spun down the street at an amazing speed, leaving the owner in the pavement and cleverly dodging those who sought to intercept it. The incident closed with the man catching his "bid" just in time to board a northbound Sixteenth street car, which he had overtaken in his wild flight. Then the clerk noticed that the show-case had been rifled. Several persons told him they had seen the man do it, but were so frightened in the hot chase that they forgot to report it. The police now have a description of the thief who tipped his hat to the breeze.

RECORD BREAKING START

July Weather Thus Far Recalls the Summer of 1894.

EARLY MORNING TEMPERATURE IS HIGH

Despite Torrid Atmosphere, Omaha's Freedom from Humidity is a Mitigating Feature—Conditions Not So Bad as Elsewhere.

The present month promises to be a record-breaker in warm weather, and it has already made close approach to the July of 1894, when the weather amounted to a calamity. In that month the hottest day showed a temperature of 106 degrees. The highest this month has been 103, but this extreme was reached in 1894 in the latter part of the month, the first ten days of that month showing no temperature as high as that reached Wednesday afternoon. It is not expected that 1901 will in any manner approach the damaging weather of 1894, as that heated period followed nearly thirty days of drought and was accompanied by hot winds, which burned the growing grain in the fields and forced people to seek their houses and close all doors to avoid the fiery blasts. The winds which blow this month are comparatively cool and there has been sufficient moisture in the larger part of the state to insure good crops under almost any circumstances, so the weather this month is only severe as it affects persons immediately. Omaha, on account of its altitude and dry air, is free from the mortality which accompanies high temperatures in localities where the humidity is greater and in this part of the country high temperatures can be experienced with less ill effects than in any other. Taken an Early Start. The record for the 7 a. m. observation of the weather bureau was broken yesterday morning, when the thermometer recorded 81 degrees, 7 1/4 degrees higher than Thursday and 1 1/2 degrees higher than at previous observations. Compared with other parts of the state Omaha was cool Thursday. Fairbury was the warmest place in the state with 105 degrees, Tacoma followed with 104 degrees, O'Neill was a warm third with 103 degrees, while the thermometer was only 1 degree lower at Oakdale and Ashland. The heat continues in the west and northwest and according to Forecaster Welsh of the Omaha office there is little to hope for the way of cooler days in the immediate future. Cutting out Phoenix, with its usual 110 degrees, the hottest place in the United States Thursday was St. Louis, for regular stations, with 104 degrees, Kansas City showed 102 degrees at Omaha, Des Moines, Shreveport, Helena, Mont., Valentine and North Platte showed 100 degrees each. San Francisco, with a maximum of 82 degrees, was the coolest place upon the map and Tacoma came next with 95 degrees.

ABOUT THE FRESH AIR CAMP

Brigadier Tott Says His Move is Not Restricted to Any Class.

OMAHA, July 11.—To the Editor of The Bee: In your editorial column this morning there was a small piece relative to the Salvation Army fresh air camp which I feel it my duty to answer. Some of the statements in the article are apt to mislead citizens who would otherwise assist the enterprise, and seeing that our efforts to run the camp are entirely dependent upon public sympathy and support, I wish the following explanation made: First—The effort is in no way a campaign. No regular meetings are held. It is purely a summer outing for the poor. Second—The camp is not intended for the children only in the congested residence districts of the city, but for any mother with her children living in any part of the city who, through lack of present resources, are unable to provide an outing for themselves. It would be idle to deny the presence in Omaha of any such families and how any effort to relieve their distress is an all-day and moonshine is some-what difficult to see. Third—The food is as wholesome as it is possible to get and we are not doing out to the campers the pickings and leavings from any back kitchen. The food served is bought fresh from the city stores and all cooked on the grounds. Your respectfully, JAMES TOTT, Brigadier.

Seasonable Fashions

3864 Blouse and Knicker, 4, 6, 8 yrs.
Boy's Blouse and Knickerbockers, No. 284—No costume yet devised for small boys' wear gives greater satisfaction than the simple blouse with short full trousers. It is simple and childish, at the same time it is in the best style and becomes suited to the hours of play or the times of formal dress, as it is made of one material or the other. As illustrated, the knickerbockers are of brown corduroy, the blouse is of white cotton cheviot striped with red, collar and cuffs of white, trimmed with a band matching the stripe, but velvet trousers with blouse of white lawn or an entire suit of white duck or serge converts the costume into one suited to church or dinner wear; and tweed, serge and homespun, with madras or percale, or brown linen, make ideal playing suits. The blouse is cut on the simplest possible lines. Both fronts and back are plain and smooth across the shoulders and are arranged on a draw string at the loose edge. The sleeves are comfortably loose while sufficiently well fitted for correct style, and the neck is finished by means of a square sailor collar that is held by a ribbon tie. The knickerbockers are sharply and snug about the hips and at the waist and are drawn up by means of elastic below the knees. To cut this suit for a boy 6 years of age,

INQUEST IN DOODY SUICIDE

Jury Finds Verdict in Accordance with Facts as Previously Announced.
An inquest was held in the office of the coroner yesterday in the case of Nellie Doody, who committed suicide Thursday morning in her room at the Midland hotel. The jury found that the deceased "died by asphyxiation while laboring under an aberration of mind."
Among the witnesses examined were two sisters of the dead girl, Lucy Schutt, her chum and several persons from the hotel. These testified to circumstances substantially as described in The Bee of Thursday. There was no evidence tending to show that the girl was of unsound mind at the time she took her life, further than that there was a slight discrepancy of testimony touching the quarrel between the girl and her mother. One of the sisters said Lucy Schutt testified that Nellie had told her of trouble at home that had caused her to leave on the night of her suicide. The funeral will be from the house, 1005 North Twenty-third street, this afternoon at 2:30. The place of interment has not been decided upon.

MORE MONEY FOR THE CITY

Newly Enacted Ordinance Increases the Fees of Electrician's Office.
A marked increase in the receipts of the office of the electrician will be brought about by the ordinance the council recently passed which provides for the regulation of fees for the inspection of interior electrical work. The ordinance increases the fees for the inspection of incandescent lamps to 2 cents each for any number of lamps less than 100 and 1 cent for all lamps in excess of 100. Fifty cents is charged for the inspection of one arc light and the fee de-

Those Remarks

and those expressive gestures of approval which we notice at our soda fountain convince us that our soda water is just right. It can hardly be otherwise. It's a simple matter, too—Lots of ice, pure cream and the finest fruit juices, together with soda water that has a "snap" and "sparkle" to it. Our ice cream is the same way—just right—as hundreds of people this warm weather carry away with them one of our little barrels filled with the most delicious ice cream made—3 flavors in a barrel that holds a quart—for 40c.
