The report is practically a request for an inquiry and contains no new details beyond giving the exact spot the ship went down and an estimate of the loss of life and the number saved. He estimates that the number lost was forty-two and the number saved 143.

An interesting story is told by the captain of the Jeneau steamer Flossie, which subsequently succored the survivors. He says that the Flossie passed over the same water that the Islander was wrecked in early in the afternoon preceding the catastrophe. They were looking for large bergs, when suddenly they saw right ahead a low-lying one with its surface little more than flush with the surface of the sea. The course of the Flossie was altered in time to save it from contact with the submerged mountain. Hardly discernable in the daytime, it would be absolutely invisible at night. It is the opinion of northern navigators that the berg which caused the destruction of the Islander was probably the same as seen by the officers of the Flossie, as these huge bergs often linger in the same locality for days, drifting backward and forward with the tides,

La Popa Sinks Near Savanilla Through Defective Repairing.

GUDGER REPORTS REVOLUTIONISTS NEAR

Consul at Panama Informs State Department that No Effort Has Been Made Yet to Dislodge Threatening Force.

COLON, Colombia, Aug. 21.-(Via Galveston.)-News just received here from Cartegens says that an open boat containing nine men has arrived there and reported that the Colombian gunboat La Popa sank on leaving Savanilla for Cartagena. Steam launches were immediately dispatched to search for La Popa, but no trace of the aunboat was found. It recently underwent a thorough overhauling at Colon, the repairs costing $25,000.

Details of the loss of La Popa were received later in the day. It struck on a rock in the vicinity of the harbor of Savanilla last week, injuring its bottom, its stern and its propeller. The gunboat managed to get to Cartagena where temporary, faulty repairs were made. On returning to Savanilla, the bottom plates of La Popa must have given out immediately, for it collapsed and sank stern first. Four men arrived at Cartagena in an open boat, not nine, as originally cabled. There were several passengers on board. Their fate is not known, but hope is entertained for their safety, as the gunboat had some gigs, in first-class condition, on board. La Popa was an iron, auxiliary gunboat, built in 1887 at Wilmington, Del., and having one propeller. It was 120 feet long, had twenty feet beam and was eleven feet deep.

Proceedings in Detnil. The convention was a little late in getting together. The caucuses had consumed more time than usual and the delegates had been up late the night before. The Auditorium was far from being filled when the convention was called to order at 10:20 a. m. Chairmaa Huffman forgot to open it with prayer and after he had introduced the temporary chairman, that official asked Rev. Dr. Mc Cash to deliver an invocation. E. M. The democratic party must not be a nega-tive party—a party of mere opposition. It cannot be a party of calamity which draws vitality and success from industrial or financial depression. Imperialism and trusts are the two great Imperialism and trusts are the two great domimant evils of our national life. They produce the two great issues which the democratic party must meet.

There can be no solution of the trust problem, there can be no breaking down of monopoly until government favor is withdrawn from them. Destroy monopoly and special class privileges and you kill the trusts. Commence in the patent office, the fountainhead of legalized monopoly.

If congress persists in refusing to eccessary amendments to the cons eccessary amendments to the constitution of the United States it is the duty of the tasts to call a convention for that purpose and revise the constitution by adding to it he grants necessary to enable congress to control the trusts, destroy monopoly, provide for the election of United States senators by the people and provide for an income tax on persons and corporations sufficient in times of peace to pay the greater part of all the expenses of the national government.

The most significant part was that referring by name to President Cleveland. Not only did he have the courage to refer to Cleveland, but his words were roundly applauded, something which would not have happened in the convention a year ago. After announcement of committees, recease

Permanent Organization.

On reassembling at 2 p. m. the committee on credentials reported there were no contests. John N. Redmond of Linn county was made permanent chairman. In a brief address to the convention he boasted that he had voted for both Cleveland and Bryan. and counseled a conservative course with regard to the platform.
