The packing house town was represented at the meeting by six members, all of FALLS FROM HER BICYCLE that the ordinances and charter be printed whom happened to have been redistricted into one ward, the Second. These gentlemen, who also happened to be under the magnetic sway of the Jacksonian wing, asked the privilege of retiring to a side room to fix up a recommendation as to how the two new wards of their town should find representation on the county committee. This request was promptly granted by Chairman Ed Howell, who evideptly knew the direction of the wind.

After an executive session of half an hour the South Omaha men reported a recommendation that the representation of their city on the committee remain as it is until the convention, when a rearrangement might be made. Here is where Mr. Piatti, whose voice is not as a gentle zephyr, tumped into the arena with an argument that was convincing, but not effective. It was undemocratic, he pleaded, to deny equal representation on the committee to any ward or precinct in the county, and as South Omaha had two wards sans committeemen, it would be but simple justice to recognize them.

Ignatius J. Dunn took up the cudgel in behalf of the Jacksonians and injected a little legal lore into the proceedings by contending there were no vacancies on the committee and no authority was vested in the meeting to add to the membership of the body. When new wards or new precincts are created, he argued, it made no vacancies on the county committee, but it merely made new places to be filled by place was accepted by the meeting and which request was seconded by crased representation for South Omaha.

Pat Ford furnished the comedy of the meeting by moving that the committee recommend to the convention that the andidates for county commissioners who have the majority of the delegates from their respective districts be nominated.

"I merely want to get the sentiment of the committee," remarked the Third ward statesman-and he got it. His motion was tabled so quickly and so enthusiastically that he forgot for the moment that he was in a democratic meeting.

A report was received at the police station last night that a train had just been held up and robbed on the Union Pacific tracks immediately south of Sixth street. The man who telephoned the story said two masked robbers, heavily armed, had boarded an express car and at the muzzles of pistols compelled the express messenger to give them the combination to the safe. There was one safe, however, to which he did not know the combination and this one the robbers had blown up with dynamite.

Girl's Dress. No. 3905. To be Made With or Without the Separate Guimpe and With Long or Short Sleeves-Little girls are best dressed when wearing simple little frocks that are quite free of fuss. The very charming model shown is admirable in many ways and includes the latest feature in the novel plastron-bertha that finishes the low neck. The original is of China silk, with blue figures on a white ground, and is made with short sleeves and worn without the guimpe, but can be varied and made high by the addition of the latter, while countless materials are equally appropriate. A message was received from Lincoln yesterday to the effect that the session that a copy be sent him. This will be done and thus a certified copy of the new session of the city officials not later than Monday.

When it was learned in municipal circles that the charter was about ready for distribution a movement was at once set on foot to have the charter printed in pamphlet form. A great many people, it is stated, would like to have a copy of the charter and would be willing to pay for it. this, however, on account of the expense. ing of a number of copies of the charter will cost not less than $200.

In this connection it has been suggested that the existing ordinances be revised and in one book. Such a volume, it is stated, would be of value to attorneys and city officials, as well as to buyers of bonds and others who deal in municipal paper.

Should this be done the expense will reach not less than $400, as it will take some time to revise the ordinances and an experienced attorney will have to be employed to make the revision, along with a committee of the council. This matter will in all probability be taken up and dis-

C. Cowles, Valley precinct. This is the first grand jury under the ecently enacted law-in fact, grand juries in Douglas county have almost been for-

First, the judge presents to the clerk of the district court an order authorizing a grand jury. Then the clerk or a deputy goes to the jury box-the receptacle in which is kept a long list of names supposed to be eligible for jury service. This box is equipped with the wheel system. The clerk turns the wheel and pulls out slips to the number of twenty-three, on each of which is written one name. The judge by whose order the grand jury is called witnesses the work of the clerk and makes a note of the names. From the list of twenty-three sixtuen jurors are chosen-the body consisting of sixteen citizens of the county. The law contemplates that out of twenty-three names there will usually be no difficulty it securing the service of the required sixteen. Preliminary to delivering the official charge to the jury the judge goes over the in the city treasurer's office, making up the list of twenty-three, excuses such as may present good reasons for exemption from service, eliminates any who may be ineligia deputy on account of ill health. He re- ble and finally whittles the number down to general way with the duties before it and the next step is to retire for the examination of witnesses and deliberation over such matters as may be introduced.

In the present case it is apparent at a glance that at least two exemptions must be made, for out of the list selected one is dead and another is a woman. This illustrates the blunders that may result from the present practice of taking names for woman taxpayer may be recorded on the tax books simply by her initials, as in the case of "L. J. Finn," who proves to be Mrs. Lantie J. Finn.

It has been several years since there has been a grand jury in Douglas county and it will be necessary for the superintendent of attended over 300 cases. Freeman was adthe court building to arrange a room for the use of the grand jury. One of the basement rooms, of which there are several, will be cleared for the purpose. The jury will probably be in session four or five weeks.

Record of the Last Jury. The last grand jury holding session was called by Judge Scott in 1895. It was a grand jury "with a purpose," in the mind of the judge, and because it failed to bring bills against everyone against whom the missioner, only two republicans for the judge thought it should indict it received a judicial, but injudicious "roast" which, in answer. That answer is shown in its re- land beach Thursday afternoon to investiport, signed by J. The grand jury previous to this was called in 1892. It found forty-three indictments, of which four were stricken from the docket. Eight men were found not guilty. seven pleaded guilty, one was released while "nolle prosequi" was entered by the prosecuting attorney in twenty-one cases or more than 50 per cent of the indictments. The exact cost of a grand jury to the county cannot be ascertained. There is no limit other than the will of the body to its session; the members are paid $2 per day and witnesses receive the same fee, which is also paid to the bailiffs and other officers required. The fees of the sheriff for serving process are taxable to the cost of the G. W. SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 23.-Charles W. Nordstrom was hanged this morning for the murder, November 27, 1891, of E. M. Mason. From early morning the condemned man had seemed to fully realize his position, and while ministers and members of the Salvation Army prayed with him he wept continually.

Shortly after 9:30 Nordstrom was brought from the room in which he had been, just adjoining the execution room. It required the assistance of four men to keep him on his feet. When he was taken into the presence of the scaffold he broke down entirely, crying in a childish voice and praying that his life be spared to him. He collapsed entirely and fell to the floor.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 23.—A meeting on the anthropology of the Louisiana Purchase exposition was held today, at which Profs. W. J. McGee and W. N. Holmes of the Smithsonian institution were present. After some discussion of the matter, it was decided to recommend to the executive committee a plan for a comprehensive ethnologic display to take in about ninety tribes from all parts of the earth, including representatives of the American Indians and natives of the islands. Efforts to raise him and keep him on his feet were fruitless and at last Sheriff Cudihee ordered that a board be brought. To this Nordstrom was tied. It required six men to hold him while he was being tied. While being fastened to the board Nordstrom continued to cry in a loud voice. Several times he seemed to speak, but his words were unintelligible. The six men who held him raised his body on the board and with great effort succeeded in getting him onto the trap. Here he was stood upright, four men standing on the four sides of the trap and holding him. In less than two seconds after the condemned man was in place the trap was sprung and Nordstrom had paid the penalty of his crime. The trap was sprung at 9:45 and Nordstrom was pronounced dead at 10:02.
