Roosevelt Absolutely Confident.

The extreme optimism of the vice presi dent and the members of the cabinet would be difficult to overstate.

'I am absolutely confident everything will turn out all right," declared the vice president, and he said he based his confidence on information behind the public expressions of the physicians. So relieved are Secretary Gage and Attorney General Knox at the steady improvement that they returned to Washington tonight, feeling strongly that their chief would recover, but with the assurance of the physicians that if a change for the worse should come it would be gradual and that they would have

Not for a noment has he permitted the idea to be entertained that there was need for considering the constitutional disability of the president and the exercise of executive functions which this would impose on him. On the contrary, Mr. Roosevelt has been one of the most positive in the conviction that the president would recover. During the long period of Garfield's tilness nice distinctions arose as to what constituted the disability of the president within ! the meaning of the constitution-whether. when the presidential factors were benumbed while the mental faculties were unimpaired, there was any such disability as is meant by the constitution. But fortunately there has been no such issue presented on this occasion and the vice prestdent himself has been primarily responsible for the avoidance of any thought of the case, circumstances today were peculthe temporary exercise of executive functions by him. No Cause for Alarm

He was asked if the earlier bulletin of the president's "somewhat restless night" warranted any apprehension. "Not in the least," he replied. "It is entirely natural that a patient in the president's condition should have some periods of restlessness. But he is receiving no anaesthetic. He is fully conscious at all times when he is awake and his mind is clear."

When asked if the president conversed with those about him, the doctor said the patient was quite able to talk and did so as far as the physicians permitted, although they were reluctant to permit him to sap any of his energy in this way. Secretary Wilson, who moved on down

Delaware avenue, while Dr. Park was talking to the newspaper men, was overloved at the word which the physician had brought from the sick room. "The president will get well," he said several times. "I feel sure that the doc-

Everything is satisfactory. Every hour that passes with no decidedly unfavorable results is encouraging and indictive of final recovery. Dr. Eugene Wasdin, another of the con-

Be Rapid. BUFFALO, Sept. 9 .- "I may even say that I have even deeper information than the bulletins and I again say with great confidence that the president will recover." The foregoing statement was made today by Vice President Roosevelt in the course of an interview with an Associated Press correspondent while walking to Milburn

He reiterated the statement after he had had a ten-minute visit with the physicians. The vice president did not leave the Wilcox mansion, where he is staying, until after the noon hour and then he walked the mile to the presidential quarters in company with a correspondent of the Associated Press. Just after he had left the mansion he was accosted by a colored man who was raking a lawn. "Governor, may I shake hands with you?" he said.

"You certainly may," answered the vice president, turning quickly and grasping his hand, and then as two laborers with dinner pails and tools slipped up he shook hands with the vice president "Ain't you afraid you will be shot,

You men are our protection and the foul protection of the lives of those whom you select to office. Such men as you can work with the ballot the salvation of the country without resort to violence.

As he walked on the vice president discussed the case of the president and his condition. He said: "I believe that the bulletins being issued are none too sanguine. In fact, I know they are not. I am perfectly positive that the president will recover and more than that I believe the illness will be brief and the recovery rapid. I had two men and a relative shot in the same manner in the Cuban campaign. They lay in the marshes for some time without attendance and yet they recovered.

After considering Sachsse's case the counilmen discussed the ordinance which T. P. Mahammitt, inspector of weights and measures, has prepared to prevent the use of baskets as measures unless they have been approved by the inspector. Several members suggested amendments to the ordinauce, which will be considered at the meeting tonight.

The councilmen voted to allow City Treasurer A. H. Hennings $3,000 from the general fund for stamps and additional help necessary in carrying out his aggressive ampaign against delinquent taxpayers.

The building inspector was instructed to erect seats in front of the city hall for the use of city officials during the Ak-Sar-Ben carnival. The custodian was authorized to purchase flags and decorate the city hall as in former years.
