liberal the market was steady to strong and active throughout. Packers seemed to want all there was on sale so that sellers had little trouble in disposing of what they had at very satisfactory prices. Steady to strong prices were also paid for bulls, calves and stags where the quality was satisfactory. There was more activity to the trade on stockers and feeders today than for some time past. It was evident that the recent rains have increased the demand from the country and as a result yard traders took noid in good shape and bought the better grades of stockers, as well as the fleshy feeders that looked strong to a dime higher than those in force at the close of last week. The commoner stuff was, of course, more or less neglected and probably sold no more than steady. Western beef steers and cows were in active demand today and sold at good, strong prices where the quality was at all desirable. What was said above for na-tive feeders applies equally wel to the western cattle. Representative sales: BEEF STEERS.
