FAILURE TO SEE US THIS WEEK, IS YOU LOSS.

In all the annals of the piano business our clearing out sale of high grade instruments returned from country agents has no precedent.

The carrying on of a mammoth sale of nearly 100 pianos at an actual loss in dollars amounting to nearly $9,000 is something unheard of heretofore, but from the way the pianos have been going out of our piano parlors and warehouses the public evidently accepts our explanations of the cause of this sacrifice and we take this opportunity of thanking the people of Omaha, Nebraska, Iowa and adjoining states for their liberal patronage.

We still have left a number of excellent bargains in the finest of styles of high grade pianos, instruments that sell regularly at from $450 to $600. These are in genuine mahogany, rosewodd, golden oak and burl walnut cases.

We would also call your attention to some beautiful parlor grand styles. One Kranich & Bach, one Hallet & Davis and one Kimball. These are gems and can be bought for absolutely wholesale prices on easy terms.

In good, dependable medium grade pianos we have several reliable makes at $128, $135, $148, $168 to $198; worth nearly double the price we are selling them for. Any of these you may have on terms of all cash or $10 cash payment and $5 monthly payments.

Some good pianos, slightly used, in good condition, will wear for years yet, at unheard of prices.

POPULISTS IN CONVENTION

They Roast Their Democratic Bedfellows in Vigorous Style.

DO SOME NOMINATING THEMSELVES

Men of Whiskers and Horny Hands Decline to Stand for Harry Miller's Nomination for the County Clerkship.

The populist county convention met at Washington hall simultaneously with that of the democrats, but in a separate room, and organized by the election of E. I. Morrow as chairman and John W. Barnett secretary. When this preliminary had been finished the following resolution was introduced by Elmer E. Thomas and adopted by a unanimous rising vote:

The president is dead! With hearts bowed down with grief, we assemble in county convention to perform our duty as citizens of the republic. In this solemn hour all men are brothers. On this melancholy occasion all men everywhere grieve because of the loss of our chief magistrate.

William McKinley gave many and distinguished services to his country; lived before the people an example of the Christian statesman, and died saying, "God's will, not ours, be done." Humbly we offer this resoldtion as a tribute of our respect for the memory of William McKinley, late president of the United States. We mourn his death. We mourn the nation's deep bereavement and we extend our sympathy to his faithful wife, much beloved of us all, in the "long way that she must tread alone."

As there were no contests credentials were directed to be given to the secretary, who accepted them without question. Out of the eighty-one delegates to which Omaha was entitled seventy from the country and twenty from South Omaha, a total of 171, about thirty were present and the remainder represented by proxies.

J. B. Jones, John O. Yeiser, Elmer E. Thomas, Gus Williams, H. Cohen, J. J. Points and L. J. Quinby were named as a platform committee and presented a voluminous report, which was adopted.

The platform declares that the parole of Joseph Bartley was arranged by republican leaders and ventures the prediction that "Bartley will be unconditionally pardoned during the month of November, 1901." It goes on to say: "We have no sympathy with the utterances of reform papers which have sanctioned Bartley's pardon." At this point in the reading of the platform occurred the only vigorous applause with which the document was greeted.

"We affirm the declaration of the late republican state convention, 'penned by E. Rosewater,'" says the platform, "calling upon state and county treasurers for statements of the whereabouts of the public funds. We indorse the action of the democratic treasurer of Douglas county in making such a statement and are anxiously awaiting the time when State Treasurer Stuefer will take the people into his confidence and let them know where the state's money is deposited. We believe that plank was 'penned by E. Rosewater' for political effect."

The representation in the state convention was apportioned as follows: Omaha, 72; South Omaha, 20; country precincts, 36; a total of 128.

County Central Committee.

The county central committee was organized by the election of E. I. Morrow as chairman and P. Krewiz secretary. Three committeemen were selected from each Omaha ward and one each from the South Omaha wards and the country precincts.

A committee composed of John O. Yeiser, Dr. J. H. Peabody and J. H. Taylor was named to notify the democratic convention that the populist convention was organized and ready to hear any communication they might desire to make. They were also instructed to act as a conference committee.

After a wait that seemed interminable the committee returned and reported through Dr. Peabody that its mission had been performed. Other members of the committee informed the convention that they had been received by hisses from the democrats and that there was every indication that the democrats did not care whether or not they fused with the populists.

The delgates were angry because of the long delay and were in no hurry to brook indifference, much less insult, from the democrats. With one accord they resolved that the democratic candidates would not be endorsed until the democratic convention had recognized them in an acceptable manner.

Decline to Stand for Miller.

After much lurid oratory, in the course of which the Douglas County Democracy was roasted to a turn, it was decided to nominate a full ticket. About this time the news came that the democrats had put up Harry Miller for county clerk, and the irate pops opened the floodgates of their wrath upon him, whom they characterized as a bitter and open enemy of fusion. Finally a motion prevailed to place candidates in nomination for county clerk and two justices of the peace. Francis W. Marsh was named for the former place and J. B. Jones and J. W. Logan for the latter.

When the convention had completed its work and was on the point of adjourning, without having heard from the democrats officially, Colonel Walter Moise rushed into the hall and without waiting for recognition informed the populists that "you people are doing wrong; you're mistaken; you're too hasty; you don't know what you are doing. Just wait a minute while I tell you all about it and get things smoothed up." The colonel's sudden appearance and his language stirred the wrath of the pops to even greater depths than had the preceding events and created a scene of wild disorder.

A dozen delegates were on the floor at once clamoring for recognition, while the chairman pounded in vain for order and above all could be heard the deep voice of Colonel Moise telling the pops just what they should do to be saved. When a semblance of order had been restored at length Moise was permitted to speak with the understanding that he represented himself only and not the democratic convention.

The doughty colonel summoned the powers of his oily tongue and smooth voice and endeavored to quiet the refractory ones and restore harmony. He swore a great oath that Harry Miller was the best friend fusion ever had, but all to no avail, for the hard-hearted pops turned him down cold. Moise even introduced Miller to speak in his own behalf and though he was accorded a respectful hearing he made no impression upon the adamantine pops.

Peacemakers Come.

At this time, when the democrats had made all their nominations except that for commissioner of the South Omaha district, a committee bearing the olive branch of peace was announced. A wordy war followed a statement by Dr. Hipple, the spokesman, who attempted to pour soapsuds upon the troubled waters. The pops felt that they had been insulted, kicked and sat upon, as they expressed it, and wanted no democratic salve.

After several ineffectual attempts had been made to adjourn the pop convention while the democratic committee was present it was decided to refer the differences to the conference committees for adjustment. The committees agreed upon a compromise, which was accepted by the populist convention. The county central committee was authorized to fill all vacancies on the ticket and empowered to transact any business that might be legally done by the convention.

It is the understanding among the populists that if the democrats do not carry out the terms of the compromise and accord them either the clerkship or the judgeship, preferably the former, together with the two candidates for justice of the peace already nominated by them and one-third of the appointive offices, their central committee will refuse to indorse the democratic candidates for the other offices and will put a separate ticket into the field.

Stood Death Off.

NEBRASKANS AT ENCAMPMENT

Hospitable Cleveland Folk Make Visitors' Week There Long to Be Remembered.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 12.—(Special.)—Our official train left union station, Omaha, Saturday, September 7, over the Northwestern, arriving in Cleveland Sunday at 10 p. m. over the Lake Shore. We had a pleasant and profitable journey and, though weary, were repaid for all discomforts by the royal welcome we received here. We were met at the union station by a large delegation from the reception committee and taken to our headquarters, where are also the national and several other states' headquarters. Monday we took in the sights and Monday evening the grand electrical display in Public square, which surely is grand beyond any description of mine.

Tuesday we witnessed the grand naval parade and that of the ex-prisoners of war. Tuesday night a grand campfire was held in the Central armory, where 10,000 people were assembled, and listened to Hon. Tom Johnson, mayor of Cleveland, who gave to the Grand Army of the Republic and Woman's Relief corps the keys to the Forest city. He was followed by Governor Bliss of Michigan and Hon. John C. Black of Illinois. Many fine stereopticon views were given of the drummer boy or "tow-headed boy of Andersonville," now General Stewart of Cleveland.

Wednesday of course was the great day. The grand parade of veterans of the civil war, numbering 350,000, marched by the grandstand, eight abreast, for four solid hours. They were reviewed by Senator Mark Hanna, assisted in the grandstand by Commander-in-Chief Leon Rassieur, General Sickles, General Stewart, Colonel George of Nebraska and others. We counted 150 bands and drum corps and 275 different posts, with one from far-away Alaska.

Of course Ohio took the lead, as far as numbers were concerned, it taking one hour and a half for that state's delegation to pass the grandstand.

Major Wilcox of Omaha carried the banner for his delegation.

Pennsylvania led the way with the Lamb brigade, even to the three white lambs that were decorated and led by little girls in white. South Dakota displayed huge ears of corn, North Dakota sheaves of wheat, Ohio buckeyes. Chicago showed the goose hanging high. New York the largest number of tattered war flags, Texas a wealth of cotton bales.

The sight that most cheered the veterans in their long march and brought tears to the eyes of many was "the living human flag," represented by 4,000 school children, dressed in red, white and blue and seated on 100 steps, one raised above the other, and led by Prof. Stewart, musical director of the city schools. As each delegation passed by this immense throng they greeted them either with patriotic songs or tremendous cheers. It was a grand sight.

Wednesday evening another great public reception and campfire were given to the Woman's Relief corps and the Daughters of Veterans. There were speeches by Governor Nash of Ohio, "the bugler boy of Tennessee," Commander-in-Chief Rassieur and others.

Thursday opened the two great conventions, the Woman's Relief corps in the First Methodist Episcopal church, with over 600 delegates and over 800 visiting members; the Grand Army of the Republic, with twice this number, met in the Grand opera house on Euclid avenue. Thursday afternoon a great thanksgiving service was held in the armory over the possible recovery of our beloved president. It was presided over by Senator Mark Hanna, who made the opening address. He was followed with a prayer by Rev. Alfred Andrews and a scripture lesson by McKinley's old pastor of Canten, O. Governor Nash then made a fine speech.

In behalf of Nebraska's delegation, as well as all delegations, I can say we have had a glad, good time, made so by the loyal and most hospitable people of this city. Hoping the Ak-Sar-Ben festivities, in their way, will be as grand a success in Omaha as this encampment has been in Cleveland, I close. AMBLER.

CAN'T EVADE IT.

Positive Proof From Omaha Can't Be Pushed Lightly Aside.

The reader is forced to acknowledge that convincing proof in his own city is preeminently ahead of indorsements from everywhere else in our republic. Read this:

Mr. R. L. Rowe, No. 2621 Bristol street, who has charge of the transmitters between Chicago, St. Louis and California in the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s office, says: "Before I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Kuhn & Co.'s drug store, corner Fifteenth and Douglas streets, I tried several well-known proprietary medicines guaranteed to be sure cures for any form of kidney trouble, but at best they only gave me temporary relief. Finally I gave up searching for a remedy, but as my back ached and there was too frequent action of the kidney secretions, it struck me if Doan's Kidney Pills performed half what they promised they might help me over the difficulty. The treatment has apparently cured me, for up to date I have not noticed a symptom of a recurrence."

For Stealing a Check Book.

Officers Rinn and Baldwin arrested W. C. Ruder at the Union station last night about 10 o'clock on complaint of A. B. Jaquith, manager of the Omaha Elevator company, who charges Ruder with stealing a check book containing signed checks made payable to employes of the company. Ruder had cashed one check at the Barker hotel. When arrested Ruder was about to board a train for Chicago. Checks amounting to $95 were missing from the book.

Although there was only one stubbornly contested nomination the democratic county convention at Washington hall yesterday afternoon was extremely noisy and somewhat disorderly. The chairman wore a goodly-sized club almost down to a toothpick in pounding for order during the afternoon.

Fight for Commissionership.

The big fight of the convention was for the nomination for county commissioner in the Fourth district, but other warlike spots were put upon the record of the proceedings. Frequently seven or eight delegates attempted to address the convention at the same time and it was with difficulty that the chairman straightened out the resulting parliamentary tangles.

There was no thought of the populists, who were in county convention on the floor below, until a committee from the third party, headed by Dr. J. H. Peabody, stole silently into the democratic powwow and begged for a hearing. After the populist committee had expressed its readiness to "do business" the democrats appointed a committee, consisting of Dr. A. H. Hipple, John Liddell and E. P. Berryman, to confer with the men below. Then there was no further thought of the populists and fusion until the Hipple committee reported, which happened to be after a straight democratic ticket had been almost completed and it was too late for the convention to give the pops any place on their ticket.

Pops Rise in a Riot.

This seeming lack of attention caused the temperature to rise about the collar buttons of the populists and they proceeded to issue an ultimatum, which now rests with the democratic county committee for consideration and reply. The ultimatum is that the democrats must take down their candidate for either county clerk or county judge and two of their candidates for justice of the peace and give three places on their ticket to the populists; otherwise the populists will go to the polls with the candidate they have already named for county clerk and the two candidates they have nominated for justice of the peace. This is practically a demand for three places on the democratic ticket which have already been filled with three democrats, who are likely to display adhesive qualities.

As soon as Chairman Ed Howell called the convention to order C. J. Smyth secured the floor and said:

"It may be well before proceeding to the business of this convention to pause for a moment to note that we assemble under a great pall of grief. The president of the republic has just expired and the whole nation is with bowed head in mourning. In the presence of such a calamity we forget our partisanship and remember only our patriotism."

Mr. Smyth then proceeded to pay high tribute to the dead president as a patriotic citizen and a Christian gentleman, and concluded his remarks by introducing the following resolution:

Resolved, That we, the representatives of the democrats of Douglas county, express profound sorrow at the death of our president, William McKinley. With bowed heads we stand, in spirit, with all our fellow citizens at his bier, and deeply mourn the sad ending of his distinguished career. The dastardly deed of an assassin has robbed us of a president, and a loving wife of a devoted husband. We record our admiration of the beautiful home life of the two who have been cruelly parted, never to meet again in this life, and in this moment of her awful grief our hearts go out in tender sympathy to Mrs. McKinley, whose heart is breaking under its load of woe, and from the depths of our souls we pray the Almighty One that He may lighten her terrible burden.

Ed P. Smith, C. S. Montgomery, John E. Reagan, S. P. Wilson, John Liddell, I. J. Dunn and Thomas Fleharty spoke briefly and eloquently of the sterling qualities of President McKinley and of the despicable methods of anarchy, and then the resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

Smyth for Chairman.

Chairman Howell suggested C. J. Smyth for temporary chairman, and the selection was made unanimously. Henry Oest was similarly chosen for secretary, and Harry C. Hawtry for assistant secretary.

In taking the chair, Mr. Smyth remarked that for obvious reasons it would be out of place to make a partisan speech, and he therefore called for the pleasure of the convention at once. John J. Mahoney moved that a committee of five on credentials be appointed, but W. H. Weeks offered as a substitute a motion that the convention itself hear and decide the single contest on credentials. The substitute prevailed by a vote of 127 to 59.

The only contest was from Clontarf precinct, where the seats of the Brennan delegates were sought by a delegation headed by Swen Anderson and supposed to be favorable to Tom Hoctor for county commissioner. A motion by Joe Butler to seat the Hoctor delegation was lost by a vote of 102½ to 85½.

Nominations Come Easily.

John Zeller of the First ward nominated John Power for sheriff and a motion to make the nomination by acclamation prevailed with a howl. The sheriff appeared on the platform and thanked the delegates for his renomination.

At this juncture of the proceedings, Chairman Smyth announced that a committee from the populist convention was asking for a hearing, whereat there were hisses loud and prolonged. Smyth wore a quarter of an inch off his club by pounding a table in a vain endeavor to drown the hissing sound. When order was partially restored Dr. Peabody of the populist committee stated that his party was in convention in the hall below and ready "to coalesce" with the democrats. "We are not demanding any places on your ticket," continued the doctor, "but of course, if you see fit to confer with us and give us a place or two we would be pleased."

The convention ignored Dr. Peabody's gentle hint and proceeded with the nomination of a straight democratic ticket.

Ed P. Smith nominated Harry C. Miller for county clerk and J. J. Mahoney moved the nomination be made by acclamation. Harry O'Neill, who is said to cherish a personal grievance against Miller, demanded a roll call. Tom McGovern of the Fourth ward remarked that it was no time or place for the ventilation of personal grievances. The roll was called and Miller was nominated by a vote of 177½ to 15½.

Dr. Hipple's motion to nominate G. Fred Elsasser for treasurer by acclamation was enthusiastically carried.

For county judge P. M. Tobin placed W. M. Giller in nomination and John E. Reagan did the honors for John H. Grossman. Only one ballot was required, Mr. Grossman taking the nomination with 127½ votes to 64½ for Giller.

James A. Taggart was nominated for coroner and was about to slide through when Dr. Hipple surprised the convention by naming Dr. C. F. Croley. P. C. Heafey, with an eye to business, gave Croley quite a boost by declaring that Taggart was a republican. A ballot was taken and Croley was nominated by a vote of 126½ to 66½.

Thomas Shaw and M. J. Lacy of Omaha and E. M. Rohrbaugh of South Omaha were put up for surveyor and the South Omaha man won out on the first ballot, receiving 119 votes, to 55 for Lacy and 12 for Shaw.

Ernest G. Hall of Waterloo precinct was unanimously nominated for superintendent of public instruction.

For commissioner in the Second district James P. Connolly was nominated by acclamation and then came the big struggle of the convention—the nomination of a candidate for commissioner in the Fourth district.

Richard O'Keefe, Thomas Hoctor, John Ryan and James Brennan were named for the nomination and it required four ballots to settle the contest. The ballots resulted as follows:

	1st.	2d.	3d.	4th.
O'Keefe	69½	77½	78½	151½
Hoctor	55½	52½	54½	54½
Ryan	45	44	40	43
Brennan	23	18	16

On the fourth ballot Brennan himself cast the five votes of Clontarf for O'Keefe and requested his friends to follow him onto the band wagon. Before the result was announced the Sixth ward of Omaha changed five votes from Ryan to O'Keefe, giving the latter more than the ninety-seven votes necessary to nominate. This started a stampede to O'Keefe, whose nomination was made unanimous.

Populists on the Rampage.

While the balloting for county commissioner was under way Dr. Hipple reminded the convention that it had paid no heed to the invitation to confer with the populists. Then, after the straight democratic ticket had been almost completed, the convention appointed a conference committee. This committee soon reported that the pops had become enraged by the delay of the democrats in conferring with them and had already nominated a candidate for county clerk and two candidates for justice of the peace.

"The populists," said the chairman of the committee, "want us to nominate the three men they have nominated or they are willing to withdraw their candidate for county clerk and name a candidate for county judge that we will indorse."

L. J. Platti moved that the report of the conference committee be placed on file and the committee discharged, but a substitute motion by Ed Howell to refer the populistic demand to the county committee prevailed.

The convention then proceeded to nominate Samuel I. Gordon for police judge of Omaha and P. J. King for police judge of South Omaha, after which the candidates for justices of the peace and constables were named.

Ed P. Smith presented a resolution that the county committee, in calling all conventions in the future, be instructed to apportion the delegates as follows: Three delegates at large for each ward in Omaha and South Omaha and for each country precinct and one additional delegate in each ward and precinct for every seventy-five votes or major fraction thereof cast for the leading democratic candidate at the preceding general election. The resolution was adopted with only a few dissenting votes from country delegates.

Mr. Platti moved that the chairman appoint a committee of five to name 128 delegates from Douglas county to the democratic state convention and that the committee act on Monday. The motion prevailed.

Ed P. Smith's motion to instruct the state delegation to support E. R. Duffie for the nomination for supreme judge carried and the convention adjourned at 7:30 o'clock.

IN DIRECT LINE WITH THE BEE

Chancellor Andrews Endorses the Position of This Paper on Anarchism.

CHANCELLOR'S OFFICE, LINCOLN, Sept. 14.—To the Editor of The Bee: I indorse with all my heart your editorial in today's issue on "A Time for Sane Deliberation." It is a golden utterance, much needed just now, as is attested by so many good people's proposals since the deplorable attack upon the president to punish such deeds by measures which would in principle be no less anarchistic. We Americans boast that we are cooler in emergencies than Frenchmen are: Let us now prove this. All thoughtful citizens will thank The Bee for the editorial named. Moreover, it will be heeded and will certainly do good. Yours, against anarchy,

Boone County Fusion.

ALBION, Neb., Sept. 14.—(Special Telegram.)—The populist county convention met at the courthouse today. Preliminary organization was effected by electing J. T. Brady chairman and I. S. Bygland secretary. The organization was made permanent at the afternoon session. The committee on resolutions reported asking that "we condemn the republican policy of turning the radicals out of the penitentiary." Delegates to the state convention are: D. C. Leach, R. L. Wilson, William Silvers, W. B. Watson, B. F. Barnhart, H. G. Roberts, Thomas Sinclair, Joseph Pollard, J. B. Barnes, Tom King, H. Starkey, H. M. Nichols, John O'Neill; at large, John Halligan and H. C. Kiester. A motion that a committee to confer with the democrats be appointed carried, but with quite a following against the conference. The democrats' report asked for the candidate for county judge and would be satisfied with that. The report was ordered laid on the table. A motion was carried that the populists reserve the right to name the man and the place that should be given the democrats. D. C. Leach of Lorretto was nominated for county clerk and E. C. Hall of St. Edward for county treasurer. The fight of the convention was over the office of county judge. L. W. Campbell, the present populist judge, desired a third term and the democrats asked for the same office. Many populists were opposed to the third term. On direct vote on the question those opposed to the third term carried the motion. W. A. Hosford was nominated for county judge; Miss Addie Reynoldson, from Plum Creek, for county superintendent; Dr. O. S. O'Neill of Albion for coroner; Gus Diers of Petersburg for surveyor.
