Judge Reed was followed by City Solicitor 8. B. Wadsworth, who said: The life of William McKinley touched the nadir and the zenith of human experience. His life sounded all the depths and shoals, joy and sorrow; touched the tones of every chord of human sympathy, breathed every atmosphere, from that of the child in a humble cottage, with innocent hands reach-ing out for what the future had in store, to the strong man, standing upon the high-est planacle of earthly fame, looking back over a life of prominence and honor, into the eyes and souls of millions who loved and adored him. From such a pinnacle of human experi-ence it was but a step into the great be-yond. before whom Baber filed the information, in sued a warrant yesterday morning for his arrest on the charge of compounding a felony. Heavy Docket in United States Court. The September term of United States court, which will be reconvened this morning by Judge Smith McPherson, promises, from the number of trial notices filed, to be exceptionally heavy. There are many im-portant suits on the docket, involving large sums of money, among the cases being several heavy damage suits against railroad companies. The Chicago & Northwestern railroad is defendant in three suits in which the aggregate of damages asked is $57,000 The Omaha & St. Louis is defendant in a $20,000 action and the Union Pacific in a $15,000 suit. The federal grand jury will be impaneled this morning, but it is not expected that the criminal business this term will be heavy.
