VIGOROUS CROP OF STUDENTS

Local Troubles of Farmers Have No Effect on University of Nebraska.

CHANCELLOR ANDREWS' OPENING SPEECH

General Colby Hopes State Will Buy For: Omnha-Requisition for Guy Granger-Hall Frampton Hurried to Prison.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Sept. 21.-(Special.)-It is predicted that retwithstanding the local erop failures in this state the attendance at the University of Nebraska this year will equal if not exceed that of last year. During the first three days of last year's registration 280 new students enrolled and during the corresponding period this year 200 new students have been recorded.

The total registration up to noon today was 672, including both old and new students. Monday will bring as many more and by the end of next week there will probably be nearly 2,000 enrolled.

Class work will be begun Monday morning. The entrance examinations have been completed with a few exceptions and everything is in readiness for the beginning of the regular university work. Entrance examinations for the University College of Law will be held Friday and Saturday of next week. On Monday, September 30, the law college will begin the work of the first term.

Chancellor Andrews' Address.

The first notable event of the university year was the address this morning to the students in chapel by Chancellor Andrews He spoke on "The Delights of University Life." He discussed at length the privileges of the student and the great things that have been accomplished by the patient searchers after truth. What the world owes to science was set forth and the speaker laid down the proposition that there is no conflict between real science. One may believe in Darwinism and "be as orthodox as Anathasius," said the chancellor. He concluded thus:

orthodox as Anathasius," said the chancellor. He concluded thus:

Let us, then, this new year, magnify our office. I call en all of you, faculty and pupils, to join with me, by singleness of aim, energy, enterprise and application, to make this the best year our dear and noble university has ever known.

There are some particular amenities connected with membership in our university.
Let us appreclate them. We are to be congratulated that industry, carnestness, high character and high aims are so general among us, that we have no fast set, that harmony prevails in the teaching force, that we live in the midst of a sympathetic and highly intelligent community which not only tolerates academic freedom, but insists on the maintignace of it, and that the regery of the university is so largeminded and considerate.

So delightful, in fact, is our situation in these particulars that we endure without romplaint various intellicities which in ihemselves deserve criticism. Some flupants sadly lack university spirit, others nourish a divisive and polemic temper, teeming to deem it greatness always to appose their fellows instead of working consideratively and overlooking all but the worst affronts; hoodiumism breaks cut among us now and then; while some read too much relatively to the thinking they do, or, what is the same, think too little relatively to the reading they do.

There is an impression to the effect that several of these fazits, such as too little of university spirit and too much clique and shisholeth, particularly beset our fraternities and sororities. I hope it is not if it is—if the conviction I name is well founded—let the evil spirits be cast but.

Students, one and all, resolve, I beseech you, to do your best this year.

Students, one and all, resolve, I beseech you, to do your best this year. Most of you, to do your best this year. Most of you, i am glad to bear witness, are duly diligent already, but not quite all. Many are industrious, but order their efforts less wisely than were to be wished. A few, alas, have wasted rich opportunities; nay, have even set up in their characters a positive disinclination, rapidly turning into inability, to do well. To such it must be a imability, to do well. To such it must be a bitter thought that departed days cannot be called back and put to better use. Oh, be stirred by the reflection that the future will Colleagues, let us, as teachers, challenge one another this day to renewed devotion and to more triumphant efficiency. It is a rare boon to have ever to do with intellectual things, and it is a colossal responsibility to be charged with the mental and moral making of new generations. It is, in 'literal fact, ours to fix in part the destiny of the race. Could we but feel the dignity of such a mission we should never lack incentives to best service. Years dignity of such a mission we should never lack incentives to best service. Years would not quench our zeal and death would find us at our posts.

May there descend upon us as a blessed spell the good spirit of those revered teach-ers now gone from us whose sometime presence here still sanctifies this place.

Hope State Will Buy Fort Omaha. General Colby and several staff officers of the Nebraska National Guard returned this morning from the military encampment at Omaha and later in the day General expressed themselves as cepecially well pleased with the treatment accorded the united in the hope that the Fort Omaha for the use of the military forces. The authorities were unable to say definitely today the existing contract. whether the appropriation available is ample for the expenses of the encampment. General Colby will return to his office in this city next week and with the assistance of the clerical force will proceed to settle all accounts arising from the encampment.

Hurried Away to Prison.

Fearing that public sentiment might tear his prisoner from his grasp, Sheriff William Brower of Nebraska City hurried to Lincoln ast night with Hall Frampton, a self-confessed murderer, who, instead of being hanged, as many people of Nebraska City had hoped, received a life sentence.

Frampton was sentenced late yesterday afternoon by Judge Jessen at Nebraska City. He reached the penitentiary last night and s now enrolled as a convict. Frampton is 37 years old, a medium-sized, rather goodcoking colored man with little of the marks of a degenerate and murderer. Explains Game Law.

HUNGARIAN SOCIETY MOURNS

Resolutions Touching the Death of the Lamented President McKinley

Are Adopted. Society of the City of Omaha the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: Resolved. That we, the members of the Hungarian Society of the City of Omaha, are filled with grief and sorrow at the untimely death of our beloved president, and that words fail to express our horror and detestation of the murderous wretch who with one hand could offer congratulations of peace and goodwill and with the other pull the trigger that ended the life of one of the noblest, most honored and patriotic Enclosure.

The Ak-Sar-Ben carnival ended for this year at 12 o'clock last night in a blaze of lights, a whirlwind of confetti and a halo of Joyous tumuit.

The Midway was all that a Midway is expected to be. Everybody took a part in the hilarity. Staid business men and demure dames joined with giddy youth in the fun-making. The society set was represented and among those who went front in confetti battles were some of the commisses and smart dames whose gowns shone brightly at the grand court ball of the preceding night. It was everybody's inning, and the most was made of the occasion.

Various estimates were made as to the size of the last night's attendance. Some said 25,000, others as high as 30,000. Whatever the standing room capacity of the enclosure is, just so big was the crowd. It will be several weeks before exact figures can be secured as to the financial end of the carnival, but it is stated on official authority that the final figures will be on the right side of the ledger.

"Tonight's attendance alone is big enough to pull us out in good shape," said Superintedent Getr, "even if we need pulling out, and I am of the opinion that we were alright any way. Of course we have had some unexpected obstacles in our wavbad weather and a national calamity—yet we are abend after all."

We are a tage of the land and good and partrotte of the members of this co-operate with all of the citizes of the last night and in the final figures will be on the right will be engraved to the assurance that the same and and good shape," said Superinted and the properties minerally and the final figures will be on the right side of the ledger.
