EXTENSIONS ARE HELD UP

Delay in Omaha Street Railway Improvements is Explained.

WAITING FOR CONSOLIDATION RESULTS

Something Definite Will Be Known by October 10, Says an Authority, and Then Will Come Various New Features in Service.

Suspension of activity of the Omaha Street Railway company in the matter of extending certain lines of its present system and the construction of suburban lines, which was being seriously considered during the early months of the summer, has excited some comment and for a time the apparent change of policy was not understood.

It is now announced that this suspension is due to the pending consolidation and until after October 10 the present company will take no steps in that direction. But it is further stated by an officer of the company that one of the considerations of the proposed consolidation is the extension of the present lines along the plans of the present company and the construction of the suburban lines proposed by the company last spring. The lines especially referred to in this connection are the line to Fort Crook and the line to Seymour park. The thirty-third street extension will proceed as though the consolidation was not under way as its construction is a matter already passed upon by the board of directors.

George E. Pritchett has gone to New York where he will meet Frank Murphy, who is already in that city and it is generally understood that before these gentlemen return from the east the matter of the consolidation, so far as the Omaha Street Railway company is concerned, will be finally decided one way or the other. The value of street railway stock has steadily appreciated since the consolidation was first broached and it is said by officers of the company that they are supremely indifferent as to the course taken by the eastern men who are managing the affairs of the proposed consolidated company.
