

TWO OLD SAILORS REUNITED

Rear Admiral Smith, Retired, Visits Daniel B. Sargent of Omaha.

REVIVE MEMORIES OF OTHER DAYS

Born in the Same Seaport Village, the Two Lads Grow Up Together and Are Afterward Comrades in War.

Rear Admiral J. A. Smith of the United States navy is the guest of his lifelong friend, Daniel B. Sargent of Omaha. Admiral Smith lives in Washington. He has been visiting on the Pacific coast and on his way home stopped at Omaha with his family at 2224 Webster street.

More than sixty years ago the two men were born in Machias, a little village on the Maine coast. They attended school together and were always fast friends.

At the beginning of the revolutionary war the English war ship Margherita was captured at Machias. This was the first English boat to fall into the hands of the colonies and the story of its capture is the first tale that is told to the children of the seaport town whose chief claim to distinction lies in its connection with this triumph over the British.

Like all other Machias boys the future admiral and his playmate wanted to enter the navy. When the civil war broke out their opportunity came. Admiral Smith entered the navy in 1861 and after two months later Mr. Sargent entered the service.

Go to Sea Together. They were both assigned to duty on the Kearsarge and served four years on the famous old boat that did such noble service.

Admiral Smith was paymaster on the boat and Mr. Sargent was his assistant. At the close of the war Admiral Smith remained in the service and was soon promoted to pay director and was finally advanced to an admiralship. He is 64 years of age and is no longer in active service.

During the last two years Admiral Smith has spent most of his time in Europe. He was dangerously sick in Berlin for several months, but rallied and has fully recovered his health. It has been twelve years since Admiral Smith and Mr. Sargent last met. They are the only two officers now living who were on the Kearsarge during its famous engagement in the ocean of France with the confederate ship, Alabama.

"We men who went through the famous fight near Cherbourg will never forget each other," said Admiral Smith. "That fight was more like a duel than a naval battle. The two ships were of practically the same size and the same equipment. There was no long distance fighting. The two monsters approached each other like mad bulls and the struggle was fierce as they followed each other around in a circle and dealt telling blows. It was a fight for blood. There was no locking and retreating. The battle continued until the Alabama had dealt its last blow and its crew was compelled to leave the sinking hull."

PRAIRIE CHICKEN SEASON

Sportsmen and Dealers in Game Preparing to Observe the Law.

Today it will be lawful to kill prairie chickens for the first time in several Omaha sportsmen are making ready for a campaign in the field, the majority of them expecting to go out the first of next week. There is considerable question as to some of the terms of the law and the dealers in game are particularly anxious that they not make contracts for the delivery of game until they have received legal opinions upon the law.

The law permits a dealer to have not more than fifty birds at any one time and this provision is probably to be the means of an evasion of the law, as it is said employees of the houses will each buy fifty birds, thus permitting the dealer to control as many birds as fifty times the number of the law.

Persons going into the western counties to hunt game are being notified of the necessity of providing themselves with licenses to shoot, as unless they have such licenses the railroad companies are not permitted to receive game for shipment from them and they are liable to fine or imprisonment if they are found to make contracts for the delivery of game without any county clerk where the applicant is known, and for residents of the state of Nebraska they cost $1. For residents of other states the license fee is $10. The license is good for two months. It is not transferable. Reports from the western counties are to the effect that prairie chickens are plentiful, but that on account of the late opening of the shooting season they are strong and wary, making it extremely difficult to secure good game.

ONCE STATIONED IN OMAHA

Members of the Ill-Fated Ninth Regiment in the Philippines Are Well Known Here.

The Ninth regiment of United States Infantry, of which Company C was almost annihilated in the Philippine island of Samar, near Balananga, Saturday morning, was formerly stationed at Omaha.

In 1898 this command was at Fort Omaha, regimental headquarters and all. That was when this post was in its prime. Officials about army headquarters know many of the officers in the Ninth, and Captain W. Connel, one of the few of Company C to escape, was well known.

No regiment of the service has seen more work than the Ninth since the beginning of the Spanish war and all that followed. After leaving Fort Omaha the command was in Arizona for a time and then moved to Fort Russell, Wyo. Thence it was moved in 1899 to Madison Barracks, N. Y.

When the Cuban trouble arose the Ninth was one of the first regiments ordered out, and it was hastened to the southern island. After that campaign it was sent to the Philippines to battle with insurgents. Shortly after that the Chinese trouble began and the whole regiment was hurried to the gates of Peking, where it remained throughout the Boxer outbreak, rendering valiant service. Returning then to the islands the regiment went on provost duty, Company C being detached and sent to Samar.

AFFAIRS OF THE AUDITORIUM

LAST DAY OF THE OPTION

Something Must Be Done at Once in Proposed Consolidation.

NO INFORMATION COMES FROM EAST

Local Managers of the Companies Involved Assert that They Are Doubtful as to the Final Outcome of Negotiations.

Today the option given by the Omaha Street Railway company, the Omaha & Council Bluffs Railway company and the New Omaha Thomson-Houston Electric Light company to the representatives of the eastern syndicate which is trying to form a combination of the companies will expire, and up to last night no word had been received at the offices of any of the companies in this city relative to the completion of the deal.

This is not conclusive proof that the deal will not be consummated, however, as representatives of the companies are at this time in the east and all arrangements may be made there before word is sent to Omaha. This is said to be hardly probable under existing circumstances and among the people interested there is a feeling that the matter will fall through at this time.

Not Very Anxious. At the office of the street railway company it was said that the majority of the stockholders and directors in that company are supremely indifferent as to the outcome of the pending negotiations and was willing to continue along independent lines as to enter the new company.
