

MEETING IS A GRAND SUCCESS

Profitable Results of Seventh Annual Convention of Nebraska Women's Clubs.

WAYNE IS A HOSPITABLE LITTLE CITY

Delegates Returning to Omaha Hold an Interesting Adjourned Session on the Train—Reception in Honor of Mrs. Peattie.

Though the seventh annual convention of the Nebraska Federation of Woman's Clubs closed at Wayne with Thursday evening's program, that formally by no means closed the proceedings of the meeting. Fully 100 club women gathered at the station at daylight Friday morning, a coachload of them coming to Omaha, and the ride afforded ample occasion for a thorough discussion of the convention and many suggestions if not actual plans for the meeting next year.

The women are unanimously of the opinion that the meeting is a triumph in the club movement of the state, for it not only attracted the largest attendance of delegates that has ever been present, but successfully met one of the gravest crises in the history of the organization, and through all only harmony and the most friendly feeling has prevailed. Through the hospitality and admirable management of the people of Wayne those elements were added that contribute so largely to the success of an occasion and nothing was left undone to add to the comfort of their guests.

Independent of the unwritten law that officers serve two terms, the convention seemed unanimous in desiring a continuation of the administration. All recognized their unselfish work of the last year and realized their fitness to bridge over the coming year until the proposed revision of the constitution will enable new officers to take up the work and carry it on effectively. During the morning it leaked out that it was only in compliance with a rule that the nominating committee, composed of the presidents of the clubs of the state, in time knowing the names of each of the women presented a list of names to run against those of the old officers, and, being aware of this, the hostess organization allowed the name of one of its leading workers to stand for the presidency to be defeated, but this incident was only in accordance with the courtesy of the Wayne women during the entire week.

It was upon the library question, however, that the women came nearest to a decided difference of opinion. Many feeling that as the federation library had been established and supported by the more able clubs, for the benefit of those who could not obtain or afford them, it would be unwise to turn over these books for club women to a new institution for a year at least, or until it had established itself as a success. Others held that as the women are the recognized prime movers in the work for the state traveling library, though they had been ignored when the fifth appointment in the commission was made, they should stand by the new institution and see that they were recognized in future, also that the promises written them by members of the commission be fulfilled. Relieved of the responsibility of the convention's dignity opinions were freely expressed.

The majority seemed pleased with the invitation to meet next year at Columbus and feel that its central location is greatly in its favor. The biennial meeting at Los Angeles next May promises to be well attended by the Nebraska federation, in addition to the delegates. At least a dozen Omaha women will go and there was some regret expressed that in electing the delegates they had not been chosen from among those who would surely go, for the trip is an expensive one, and as the expenses of the delegates are not paid this may prevent their attending, in some cases. Mrs. Eliza W. Peattie of Chicago, formerly of Omaha, was on the car and during the morning it occurred to some one to hold an informal reception in her honor while she is in the city. Accordingly hurried plans were made and from 2:30 until 4:30 Friday afternoon Mrs. Draper Smith threw open her home at 624 Park avenue to about 150 literary, philanthropic and club friends that Mrs. Peattie knew during her residence here.

WORK WILL BEGIN IN SPRING

Complications Prevent an Earlier Start on the Federal Building Annex Contract.

Little chance exists that work on the new section of the postoffice building, for which plans have recently been received from the government, will be begun until early in the spring. This is due principally to the fact that there is but one contractor in the bidding, the Charles W. Gindel company of Chicago.

This company has done all of the other work, so it was impossible to let a new contractor in on this additional building, as bids and specifications were all entangled with the early work and could not be separated into different jobs. However, that same fact means that there will be lots of haggling back and forth between the contractor and the government which will take up considerable time. Competition in the bidding would have done away with this feature.

The total expense of the entire new wing on the Seventeenth street side will reach about $500,000. That of the latest section of the work authorized will approximate $100,000. This is the central frontage of 106 feet and thirty feet in depth, which is to be run to the full height of the remainder of the building.

As first planned this section was to have been but one story high. The outside wall had already been started, and all this must now be torn down. This will be a considerable task, as the wall is 106 feet long and of heavy granite. No other ripping out will be necessary save the cutting of archways through the inside walls of the north and south ends to establish continuous connection throughout the corridors of the upper stories.

With the expectation that the section joining them on the inside would be one story in height, these walls were built solid, with double windows ranged along at intervals. The windows last in the row will be used as the starting point of the arched doorway connections. No proposition has yet been received from the Gindel company.

The purpose of the association is to devise systematic methods for the apprehension, detention and reformation of criminals.
