

LEMELY PIQUES MR. RAYNE.

Judge Advocate Charges Soley Counsel with Dubious Methods.

APPLICANT'S LAWYER SAYS IT IS FALSE

Exchange of Discourteous Comment Occurs Over Admissibility of Speed Chart—Court Takes a Half Holiday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Schley court of inquiry held but one session today, adjourning at 1 o'clock until Monday.

Captain Chadwick concluded his testimony begun yesterday and Commander Sydney A. Stanton, who served on the New York as an assistant to Captain Chadwick as chief of staff for Admiral Sampson, and Lieutenant N. C. Twining formerly of Iowa, were introduced as new witnesses.

Mr. Rayner said that this last expression was purely voluntary on Captain Chadwick's part, and not necessary in response to the inquiry. The questions which he stated to the court were as follows: "First—When did you first learn of the existence of dispatch No. 8?"

Mr. Rayner said that this last expression was purely voluntary on Captain Chadwick's part, and not necessary in response to the inquiry. The questions which he stated to the court were as follows: "First—When did you first learn of the existence of dispatch No. 8?"

A fleet had entered the harbor on May 1. The information came from an employee of the telegraph office at Havana, who could only send his information at 6 o'clock, when others were absent from the office there.

He then stated that on the next morning, May 21, the fleet proceeded to the blockade of Havana. Admiral Sampson being satisfied that the information concerning the presence of the fleet at Santiago was correct.

Instructions from Sampson. After further effort on Mr. Rayner's part to elicit information as to correspondence between the two commanders and objection on the part of Mr. Hanna that the questions had no immediate bearing upon Commodore Schley's conduct, Mr. Rayner

United States Flagship New York, St. Nicholas, on May 19, 1898.—Sir, Your report, and particularly confidential reports, received from the Spanish squadron in Santiago de Cuba from May 19 to 22 inclusive, of the presence of the Spanish fleet at Santiago, you will please proceed with all possible dispatch to Santiago to blockade the Spanish fleet in the harbor.

The somewhat exciting incident here arose between Judge Advocate Lemly and Mr. Rayner. Mr. Rayner undertook to read a statement accompanying a chart, when Captain Lemly arose and said, with reference to Mr. Rayner: "He is not accurate in his statements, if the court please. On the contrary, he is very inaccurate. He holds a paper in front of him and reads what is not on that paper. He has repeatedly done it."

There was a ripple of laughter through the room when this statement was made. Captain Lemly, inside the railing joined in it, but it was noticed that Mr. Rayner did not accept the remark as intended to be good natured. His face was flushed when he replied, which he did without rising, saying: "If he states that outside the court it is another matter, but if he states it in the court it is highly improper. While counsel were still talking back and forth at each other, Admiral Dewey arose and administered the oath to the next witness, Lieutenant Nathan C. Twining, formerly of the battleship Iowa.

WINTER WHEAT IN NEBRASKA

How the Faith of One Man Established New and Safe Crops.

GEORGE L. MILLER'S ENTHUSIASM WINS

Arthur B. Smith Tells How the First Crop Was Sown and the Results That Have Followed Its Sowing.

"A great man is one who looks into the future, perceives its needs, and has the force of character necessary to accomplish that which brings about the desired results," remarked Arthur B. Smith, who recently resigned as assistant general passenger agent of the Burlington route. "A man who causes two blades of grass to grow where one grew before is the best kind of a benefactor. This fact is forcibly impressed upon me in studying the estimates of the 1901 crops of Nebraska. The saving clause is: 'Winter wheat, 50,000,000 bushels.' And it was only ten years ago that practically no winter wheat was grown in Nebraska and not much of any variety. We were then a corn community—absolutely."

"If the citizens of Nebraska could realize how much they owe to the foresight and force of character of one man, they would honor him even more than they do. This man is Dr. George L. Miller, who for years has been going about doing good to his fellow men. In the spring of 1892 he was called into the office of General Mansfield, and there met Dr. Miller, who submitted this proposition: First, winter wheat is successfully grown east of us, beginning with New York and extending westward between the same parallels; second, the soil of Nebraska (which he had carefully analyzed) has the qualities necessary for raising it; third, the climate here is adapted to its production. His reasoning was by analogy, and it has since been abundantly proved that the time has come when diversified crops in Nebraska was great, but notwithstanding this, the plan for growing wheat proposed by Dr. Miller was regarded by everyone as altogether impracticable. After a full discussion, Mr. Holledge, always optimistic and ready to try anything which would benefit Nebraska, decided to thoroughly investigate it. On a trip through the state made shortly after I asked a great many farmers what they thought about it. All shook their heads and said: 'Impossible! The spring wheat is raised in Nebraska. The climate is wrong; there is not snow enough and the soil is not adapted to it.'"

"Then came more hard work, in which Dr. Miller was especially energetic. He addressed state and county agricultural societies, setting forth the need of diversified crops, the certainty of a winter wheat crop and the desirability of proclaiming the good news. The benefits of his work assisted by the press and the Burlington railroad can now be fully estimated. My part in these matters was to visit the state, winter wheat being raised at that time in the west, beyond a doubt being established as a Nebraska crop.
