DEDICATED WITHOUT DEBT

Calvary Baptist Church Consecrated to Its Sacred Purpose.

OCCASION MADE A NOTABLE EVENT

Sister Congregations Join in the Celebration at the Handsome Temple and Aid the Owners in Their Jubilant Praise.

Fifteen hundred poonle attended the dedication of Calvary Bantlet church vesterday morning. Every seat in the handsome new building at Twenty-fifth and Hamilton streets was filled. The aisles were filled with chairs and several hundred people for whom seats could not be provided stood during the services.

All the Baptist churches of the city joined with the Calvary congregation in dedicating the beautiful new house of worship. Other denominations were also well represented in the great congregation. Interdenominational services were held in the afternoon, at which pastors of Methodist. Presbyterian, Congregational, Christian and Episcopal churches extended their best wishes to the Baptists.

Rev. Thomas Anderson, pastor of the Calvary congregation, reviewed the history of the new church briefly at the opening of the morning services and told how the plan of replacing the old church building was originated about two years ago. At first it was not thought that it would be possible to erect as pretentious a church as many of the members desired, but the liberality and energy of some of the influential members of the congregation brought the plane to fruition.

What the Church is Like.

The new church building is of a modified Gorbic style. It is of buff pressed brick, with a red pressed brick foundation and white stone trimmings. The main auditorium has a scating capacity of 806 and several hundred more people may be accommodated in a Sunday school room. which is separated from the main part of the church by folding doors.

The pews and all the interior woodwork are of oak. The walls are frescoed in dainty colors, among which light yellow prevails, and the ceiling is finished in light blue tints. The handsome pipe organ in the church was bought at a cost of $2,000. The entire cost of the new church and furnishings was about $30,000. The building was dedicated free from debt, a balance $5,500 having been raised yesterday by Rev. Myron D. Haynes of Chicago, who preached the dedicatory sermon.

In his morning sermon Rev. Haynes likened righteous men and women to lilies and made a plea for Christian life as pure and spotless as the flowers which the Creator has given us. "For Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these," was the theme of the sermon.

"No picture is as beautiful as that in which Christ is standing among the lilles." said Rev. Haynes, "His life is as spotless as the lilies of the field. The modest lowers are symbolical of His life. God in His wisdom has taken great pains in creating and protecting the lilies and none of us need fear that He is not caring for us. It is our duty to live lives which are worthy of the surroundings God has given us.

How to Evade Contamination.

"In a world of sin and vice it is not possible for man to keep aloof from people who are contaminated by vice, but every righteous man can surround himself with a pure atmosphere, which will keep him from breathing in the filth with which associates are reeking. By nature man is rooted to earth. Like the lily, he must take his nourishment from the soil beneath him. we must imitate the lily, keep our heads erect and breathe in the pure air of heaven." At the conclusion of his sermon Rev Haynes made a brief statement of the financial condition of the church and in a few minutes secured subscriptions necessary to pay all debts. The anthem sung by the choir at the morning service was, "I Love Thy Kingdom, Lord," and Mrs. G. W. Noble sang "Light from Heaven" as an offertory.

In the afternoon Rev. Robert Stephenson of the Second Presbyterian church, Rev.

H. C. Herring of the First Congregational church, Rev. W. T. Hilton of the North Side Christian church, Rev. Charles H. so far as prosperity is concerned.

Extracts from Some Sermons Delivered Sunday.

"Shall Sunday Be a Holiday or a Holy to the congregation a report of the work Day?" was the subject of Dr. A. C. Hirst's of the annual missionary convention. The sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening. He said in part:

Pulpit Sentiments

"All history proves that while the holiday Sabbath is the ally of despotism, a Christian Sabbath is the holy day of freedom. The Sabbath is no restricter of liberty, no invasion of your time, no sacrifice to be offered, no cross to be borne. On the other hand, the Sabbath is one of God's best gifts. To desecrate this day of rest is to strike a cruel, deadly blow at national prosperity, national honor and national per-

"Our national life, our city life, depends upon the intelligence and virtue of the citizens. Recall for just a moment to your thoughts what Washington, the father American liberty, said: 'He therefore is the truest friend to the liberty and happiness of his country who tries most to protect its virtue and who, so far as his power and influence extend, will not suffer a man to be chosen into any office of power and trust who is not a wise and virtuous "This fact is emphasized: That private rest upon a firm and incorruptible executive authority, upon tried and true statesmen, upon its unstained judiciary, its unbribed legislation. Its unmercenary franchise, its high-toned men of business, its divine philosophy of life, its pure regard for truth, its chivalric respect for womanhood, its magnanimity for the poor, its sympathy with the degraded, its sacredness of marriage, its reverence for the Sabbath and its ever-present ruling sense of personal accountability to Almighty God. this moral purity is broken, then ruin and anarchy must prevail.

The church and the Christians of today are largely responsible for the impending dangers. The present neglect of the Sab bath by many church members imperils the very existence of the church, as well as the Sabbath. When Sabbath observance declines the church declines; when the Sabbath dies the church will be buried in the same grave. Omaha's purity and pros-perity are vitally connected with this Sabbath question.'

Dr. B. B. Tyler of Denver, pastor of the South Broadway Christian church in that city and a didactic evangelist of considerable prominence, preached at the Grant Street Christian church yesterday morning. This was the commencement of an evangelical labor of two weeks in Omaha. during which Dr. Tyler will conduct three meetings each day. The first will be for men at noon in the Young Men's Christian association pariors. At 3 o'clock there will be bible study at the church and Dr. Tyler will preach regularly at 7:45 in the evening.

The evangel's text yesterday morning was the closing words of the story of the transfiguration, "Jesus only," to be found in eighth verse of the seventeenth chapter of Matthew. The subject was treated from four standpoints. First, was Jesus only as a teacher of religion. He is the only one qualified to dictate a religion. Insofar as a study of other faiths, beliefs and creeds is helpful in quickening one's interest in Christ himself such a pursuit is well and good, otherwise it is to be avoited. Then Jesus was considered as the only possible authority in the domain of morals His alone were the legislative, executive and judicial powers over all His people. He can both make laws, enforce them and administer punishment for their infrac-

Jesus as the only example was the last phase in which Christ was considered. He alone of all the good men of time and eternity is perfection. All others are vulnerable in some feature of their character and personality. Abraham was given to falsehood, Jacob to duplicity: David descended to sin. Moses was hasty; Solomon sank low in the depths of immorality. Thus all save Jesus showed a flaw some

Support for the Seminary.

It is young as yet, being scarcely past its experimental stages, but it is expanding, and I trust that many of I we will live to see the time when it will outgrow that old ramshackle building on the river bank and move into stately and beautiful quarters more becoming the dignity of its work. Hampered as it is, the seminary is discharging its duties most creditably. It is on a high, university basis. It accepts no raw material from which to make its Presbyterian ministers-only high school graduates, the graduates of Cornell and of Yale and Harvard and other similar institutions are admitted for the three-year course that completes them for the ministry. Killed by Peunsylvania Train

BUCYRUS, O. Oct.

We sailed through the famous maeistrom, which the ancients believed guards the entrance to the sublimest beauty of the fjords of the Lofoden Islands, and has furnished so much material for the imagination of the authors of Norweglan legendry and modern novelists. It is a reality, writes William E. Curits in the Record-Herald-not one, but several maeistroms actually exist, and any of them will answer the descriptions given by Victor Hugo, Jules Verne, Edgar A. Poe and writers of lesser fame. The chief and most dangerous is an extraordinary whirlpool between the islands of Moskene and Roest, near the southern extremity of the Lofoden archipelago. It is called Mosknaes-Strommen. Another, by the island of Vaero, called the Saelstrom, is aimost as dangerous. There are many narrow channels between the mountains, where great volumes of water, coming from opposite directions, meet as the tide flows in and out. They form temporary whirlpools twice a day, and during the spring tides, or when the natural currents are accelerated by heavy western gales, passage is impossible. No vessel could survive them. We sailed through the famous maeistrom twice a day, and during the spring tides, or when the natural currents are accelerated by heavy western gales, passage is impossible. No vessel could survive them. Even whales have been caught and whirled around until they were dead. Between times these channels look innocent enough. Even small boats can pass safely through them at the proper time each day, and the departure of the mail boats is regulated accordingly, but they have caused the loss of many lives. Boats have actually disappeared, being sucked into the vortex and carried to the bottom to whirl and whirl and whirl until the waters are tired and flow away, carrying the wrecks and the bodies of the dead with them on the undercurrent, to emerge miles and miles distant. It is not strange that the ignorant and superstitious sailors of the middle ages attributed this mighty and mysterious action of the waters to supernatural power, and their imaginative minds, always creating monsters and miracles out of natural phenomena which they cannot understand, placed in them an octopus, whose awful arms were always extended to grasp unwary mariners who were so unfortunate as to come within his reach. Later writers and placed in them an octopus, whose awful arms were always extended to grasp unwary mariners who were so unfortunate as to come within his reach. Later writers and more intelligent represented the maeistrom as a vast caldron in which the waters revolve with terrific speed, their centrifugal force extending a long distance, and gradually drawing toward the center all who venture within their power. The matriners struggle and shriek in vain. The monster is inexorable, and when the crisis comes the vessel springs out of water and then shoots suddenly down into the vortex while the shrieks of terror and despair are drowned in the rushing of the hungry torrent and the howling of the winds.

The straits are very dangerous and all vessels are warned to keep out of them. The notes upon the charts issued by the Norwegian hydrographic office say that "when the wind is steady at flood and ebb tide each day, the whiripool is still for half an hour or more, when boats may then pass through, but half way between flood and ebb tide the passage becomes dangerous, although it can be used by steamers and large vessels, when there is no wind, for several hours a day. Toward the height of the tide or when a gale is blowing the water revolves with a speed of twenty-six miles an hour in mighty whirlpools, in which the largest steamers would be help-less."

His Memory Was Short.

There is an old saying that "A liar needs good memory." This would apply to frauds as well.

A young man named Miller was taken into a Brooklyn police court on a charge of vagrancy. When called before the court he handed up a card on which were these words: "Please be merciful to me. am deaf and dumb and have a large family. The judge said to him quietly: "Well.

Miller, what do you plead?" "Not guilty," came the prompt answer.

"Three months," said the judge as be passed on to the next case.

One of the greatest difficulties of the "One of 'he greatest difficulties of the real mountain roads, like the Colorado Midland, the Rio Grande Western and the Denver & Rio Grande, is in getting engineers," said Charles A. Davidson, city passenger agent of the Rio Grande Western road, to a Denver Intermountain reporter. Mr. Davidson is familiar with bit the intermountain roads, where the trains have to all but fly to reach sofe of their destinations.

"One might suppose that all roads would look alike to the experienced engineer, but they don't. Along some of the prairie roads an engineer can take a run on any new track almost as well as one he has traveled for years and knows with his eyes shut. But here in the west it is different. Down in Colorado, where are some of the greatest monuments to the railroad builder that have ever been erected, an engineer has to travel over the roads sometimes for weeks with old, experienced engineers, who know the track, before he will be trusted with a train. It isn't a question of engineering ability; merely one of experience.

"It is enough to take a fellow's nerve to sweep around some of those mountain curves and passes for the first time. Some good men never take more than their first ride. I have seen engineers come down from the east, men of glit-edge character and ability, who lost their nerve with the first trip and took the first train for a flatter country. Dizzy reverse curves, trestles that seem to totter in the wind, precipices that seem to totter in the wind. Precipices that seem to totter in the wind, precipices that seem to totter in the wind. Precipices that seem to totter in the wind precipices that seem to totter in the wind. Provided the sapt to lose his head.

tain roads. For one thing, a man does not last there as he does on a less picturesque, more prosaic run. It takes youth and strength and courage of a rare order to stand it at all. The companies are the most appreciative in the world, for they realize how hard it is to get a good man, and they treat a good man right royally. But even this does not attract a surplus of the right sort.

"The principal dangers are in the heavy grades and in the sharp curves, though landsildes are far from unknown. One must know his train and his road like a book to get through with his life on the Marshall pass, for instance, where you seem to plunge headlong down the mighty hill. A rock on the track, a broken wheel, a runaway car or a failure of the brakes to work would end in a smashup that would startle the whole country. The hill might be a glare of ice or frost; it might be wet or snowy, and as you set the air brake too hard, so as to start the wheels to sliding, down the hill you go like a gigantic toboggan with dooth and see a figurative to the door to the door to the colleger. ing, down the hill you go like a gigantic toboggan, with death and destruction at the end of the ride. government on the commission that will undertake the revision of the tariff, has arrived here enrouse to China.

Mr. Sharretts will sail Thursday. He expects to remain in China on government business several months. In discussing his mission, he said:

"The principles on which the new tariff will be constructed are generally understood. It is the intention of the commission to make a specific duty the dominant feature of the new tariff, with perhaps an ad valorem duty of or 10 per cent added. The difficulty will come in determining what specific duty should be charged against the various articles of import. Each member of the commission will naturally endeavor to protect the interests of his own country so far as possible."

Mr. Sharretts says that in addition to his duties on the tariff commission, he is charged by President Roosevelt with other responsibilities of an important nature. When the labors of the commission are ended, he will devote some time to a careful study of commercial conditions in the Orient and the trade relations between China and the United States and will then to organized the trade relations between Conger in negotiating a new commercial treaty with China.

They discussed the practicability of making a crusage against this custom. Many of them declared that the practice was condemned not only by moral but also by business considerations. The bishop of Mashonaland asserted that the country might find in polygamy the real reason for the very inconvenient dearth of labor in the mines. He kept a strong heart, however, and his faith in the final outcome of his project remained unshaken. Early in the spring of 1859 he succeeded in convincing two friends, R. D. Fletcher and Peter Wilson of Titusville, of the soundness of his idea, and they provided him with sufficient capital to renew his experiment. He secured the services of William Smith and his two sons of Tarentum, who were practical salt-well drillers. They brought with them a complete outfit of tools.

No progress could be made. Although work was at a standstill for a number of days. Drake's languality soon showed itself, and, after many costly experiments, he finally hit upon a plan to overcome the difficulty. He secured cast-iron pipes, six inches in diameter, and endeavored to drive them into the ground. The pipes, being too light, were soon shattered by blows from a battering ram which he devised. There was another twenties delay, and, finally, a thicker piping was secured in lengths of 10 feet. These were readily driven into the soft earth, one pipe on top of another, until they came in contact with the rock. Drake had solved the problem. Crude petroleum was worth $5 a galion at that time.
