Finkerton Handwriting Expert Passes Judgment on Crowe Epistles. HE IDENTIFIES PAT'S CHIROGRAPHY

Chief Donahue has received assurance from Daniel Earle, handwriting expert at the Pinkerton detective agency headquarters, Chicago, that the two letters purporting to come from Pat Crowe about ten days ago are genuine.

The second letter, received two days later, reiterated much that was in the first and called the chief's attention to the fact that his (Crowe's) terms had not been complied with.

HAYDEN'S Again the Fullmore and Kitchener Overcoats

The demand is increasing, yet so many and varied are the patterns that there is no fear of this garment becoming common. We always avoid that as much as possible. Remember, however, that we speak only for ourselves. We do not carry the kind of clothing so freely offered in this city by concerns which continue to operate along the old lines. We sell only the very best kinds of clothing made, and always sell at prices much lower than any other store can possibly afford to quote.
