No matter how few you are, a fait-At Buffalo we used 13,000-horse power, but if the present plans are consummated about 30,000-horse power will be required at St. Louis. This means an immense power plant and makes necessary a large and never failing water supply. The general impression has been that the electrical power used at Buffalo was very cheap, because obtained from Niagara Falls. This is hardly correct, as there is but little difference in the cost of electricty generated by water and that by steam. In fact, I think, a modern steam plant could come very near to duplicating the prices offered by the Niagara Falls plant. Therefore, the power at St. Louis will cost little more relatively than that at Buffalo.

He has in mind week, and Friday morning as mysteriously the general plan and the effect he wishes to produce, but he cannot explain it to any one else, he cannot seek advice and what he worked for, but if it Is disappointing it must stand, for it is too late then i to make a change and the electrician must shoulder the blame.

"Naturally, I have been much pleased at the compliments given my Buffalo work. especially so with those from the people and press of Omaha. At St. Louis the work will be far greater than any I have yet attempted. There is a vast amount of work to be done and first of all the main features must be decided upon. This brings up the question of the amount of power required and when that is settled we can process with the erection of the power plant, which, of course, will be a mammoth affair. Thousand horsepower engines and thousand horsepower generators, which will be required for the work, are not to be found upon the shelves of electrical supply houses. so that at best the preliminary work will be rather slow.

Surpassing Electric Fountains

"As an illustration of what St. Louis i going to do I will refer to the one item of electrical fountains. At Buffalo we used 35,000 gallons of water per minute for al our fountains, while at St. Louis severafeatures are planned any one of which will require that volume of water.

"I will return to Buffalo next Sunday to finish some work. Though under no moral obligation to do so, yet many matters require attention and I feel that I ought to be there. For instance nearly 300 tons of conper wire used in the exposition Illumina tions alone must be taken up and loaded on cars. A large amount of electrical apparatus remains to be taken care of, so that my time will be occupied for ten days or two

'As soon as this work is finished in Buffalo I will go directly to St. Louis and take up the work there. It is the desire of the exposition officials to push the electrical work vigorously and this will be done. My time will be occupied almost constantly in St. Louis from now until the opening day.
