CHOATE BRINGS GREETING OF BRITON

Anniversary Dinner of Chamber of Commerce is Partaken Of by Guests Known Throughout the Nation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19 .- The 133d annual sion to express itself befittingly. banquet of the Chamber of Commerce was held at Delmonico's this evening Covers WINANS' SONS OPPOSE CROWN for 450 were laid in the main banquet room which was simply, though effectively, decorated, chiefly with American flags. At the table of honor, presided over by President Morris K. Jesup, were: Ambassador Joseph H. Choate, John Hay, secretary of state; Senator John L. McLaurin of South Carolina, Whitelaw Reid, Governor-elect Albert B. Cummins of Iowa, Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Dr. Donald Sage Mackay, Andrew Carnegie, Mayor-elect Seth Low, Lieutenant General Miles, J. P. Morgan, Samuel D. Babcock, Major General John R. Brooke, Carl Schurz, Alexander E. Orr. Bovernor Odell, Rear Admiral A. S. Barker and W. B. Ridgely. The professional and business circles of the city were well represented in the list of the other guests The speechmaking was opened by President Jesup in a very few words. He then proposed a toast to the memory of William McKinley. It was drunk with all standing and in silence. President Roosevelt's health was then toasted, while the orchestra played and at the next toast, ish national anthem was played. In introducing Secretary Hay President Jesup proposed a toast to "Our Diplo-

The secretary was warmly welcomed by the guests and his speech at various points met with great enthusiasm, especially when he mentioned the name of President Mc-Kinley. The speech obtained rapt attention and the applause was deafening when in his peroration he said: "No wantonness of strength will ever induce us to drive a hard bargain with another nation because it is weak nor will any fear of ignoble criticism tempt us to insult or defy a great power because it is strong, or even because it is friendly." Secre tary Hay said:

Tribute to McKinley.

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I need not well upon the mournful and tragle event by virtue of which I am here. When the president lay stricken in Buffalo, though hope beat in our hearts that his life might be spared for future usefulness to his country, it was still recognized as improbable that he would be able to keen the engagement he had made to be with you tonight and you did me the honor to ask me to come in his place. This I have sometimes done, in his lifetime, though always with diffidence and dread, but how much more am I daunted by the duty of appearing before you when that great man, loved and revered while living, has put on the gugust halo of immortality. Who could worthily come into your presence as the shadow of that illustrious shade. After an eloquent tribute to the memor pf President McKinley, Mr. Hay said:

I am asked to say something about our diplemacy. You want from me nothing but the truth and yet, if I confine myself to the truth, I cannot help feeling that I shall do my profession a wrong in the minds of those who have been in the habit of considering diplomacy an occult science, as mysterious as alchemy and as dangerous to the morals as municipal politics. It must be admitted that this conception of the diplomatic function is not without certain historical foundation. of President McKinley, Mr. Hay said:

Diplomacy a Plain Trade.

Diplomacy a Piain Trade.

There was a time when diplomacy was a science of intrigue and falschood, of traps and mines and countermines. In my experience of diplomatic life, which now covers more years than I like to look back upon, and in the far greater record of American diplomacy, which I have read and studied. I can say without hesitation that we have generally told squarely what we wanted and announced early in negotiations what we were willing to give. During the time which I have been concerned in our foreign relation I can say that we have been met by the representatives of other powers in the same spirit of frankness and sincerity. As to the measure of success which our recent diplomacy has met with it is difficult if not impossible for me to speak. There are two important lines of human endeaver in which men are forbidden even to allude to their success—affairs of the heart and diplomatic affairs. But if we are not permitted to boast of what we have done, we can at least say a word about what we have tried to do and the principles which have guided our action. The briefest expression of our rule of conduct is, perhaps, the Monroe dectrine and the golden rule. With this simple chart we can hardly go far wrong.

Policy of the Future. Policy of the Future.

As to what we have tried to do-what we are still trying to do-in the general field of diplomacy, there is no reason for doubt on one hand or reticence on the other. President McKinley in his messages during the last four years has made the subject perfectly clear. We have striven on the lines laid down by Washington to cultivate friendly relations with all powers, but not to take part in the formation of groups or combinations among them. A position of complete independence is not incompatible with relations involving not friendship alone, but concurrent action as well in important emergencies. We have kept always in view the fact that we are pre-eminently a peace, loving people, that our normal activities are in the direction of trade and commerce, that the vast development of our industries imperatively demands that we shall not only retain and confirm our hold on our present markets, but seek constantly, by all honorable means, to extend our commercial interests in every practicable direction.

Awarding Legacy Tax to British Government.

LONDON, Nov. 19 .- Arguments in the appeal of Walter and L. W. Winans against the judgment of Justices Kennedy and Phillimore in November, 1999, in awarding the crown legacy a duty on the large estate left by their brother, W. L. Winans, was heard today. The sole question at issue is whether the deceased was demiciled in England. Judgment will be rendered tomorrow. In November last the lord chief justice's court in London was occupied in determining whether the late William I. Winans, formerly of Baltimore, Md., was a domiciled resident of Great Britain ween he died in 1897. This question was tested through a legacy of £2,000 willed to Mr. Winaus' sister-in-law. Ellen Delarue, on which the crown claimed legacy duty. The court gave judgment for the crown and the attorney general remarked that the decisin of the court would affect the whole of Mr. Wi-

State Treasurer Stucter Also Puts in a Denial of Personal Compitetty in the Cumius

County Transaction

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Nov. 19 .- (Special.) -The dislesures of The Bee in the Burt and Cuming county bond deals have served to call at tention to the defective records that are kept of the various bond transactions for the state school fund and the slipshod methods of the state board charged with of the school fund seems to have been handed over to the state treasurer and all the State Board of Educational Lands and Funds is called on to do is to ratify what the state treasurer has already agreed to The purchase of the Burt county bonds, for example, effected July 5 was not ratified by the board until September following. Inquiry at the statehouse for the facts regarding bond purchases receives the answer that the records show nothing but the dates of the transaction, the amount and terms of the bonds acquired and the interest basis upon which they were purchased. The records do not show from whom the bonds have been bought, nor in what manner nor from what bonds the coupons have been detached to pay the premium on the purchase. The question, when put to Treasurer Stucfer as to what parties he has been dealing with, was answered: "I do not remember from whom I obtained the different bonds. Most of them came to me through bankers. The Thayer county bonds, I believe, are the only ones that have been purchased for the school fund direct from the countles issuing them. The Board of Educational Lands and Funds does not specify from whom the bonds are to be purchased. It simply authorizes me

List of Stucker's Bond Purchases.

The list of bond purchases for the state school fund made by Treasurer Stuefer since his incumbency of the office. January 1, 1901, is as follows:

Stucter's New System.

The method of buying these securities has of A. P. Wilcox, wife and 2-year-old son been changed since Mr. Stuefer came into were found in their home at Downey, office and that explains Mr. Stuefer's contention that the state paid only the $80 .-000 for the Burt county bonds and that the rakeoff of the middleman did not impair the permanent school fund. Everybody knows that county bonds bearing interest of more than 4 per cent will command a premium nowadays, since the rate of interest on loanable capital has been reduced by the redundancy of the money market. Up to this year no bonds issued by any Nebraska county bore less than t per cent interest and when in the hands of private investors were beyond the reach of the school fund unless a premium could be paid for them. The practice under Treasurer Meserve was for the state to buy in these bonds on the market just the same as any other purchaser, paying a premium in cash to make it an investment bringing the interest rate agreed upon. When State Treasurer Stucter came into office he was advised that the system pursued by Meserve was incorerect. The constitution of Nebraska provides that the state school fund shall remain forever inviolate and obligates the an appropriation out of its regular funds As the income from the permanent school would leave the permanent school fund and they sank from sight within a few short by the amount of the premium un less that amount should have been covered back gradually out of the interest payments. Treasurer Stucfer therefore inaugurated the plan of paying a premium on his bond purchases by detaching interest coupons. He has thus paid the principal out of the permanent school fund and the premium cut of the temporary school fund. because the bonds in question with the interest coupons detached constitute a dear investment and cannot bring any income into the temporary school fund for two or three years or until the time has expired covered by the detached coupons.

Inconsistent in Policy.

Mr. Stuefer has not been consistent in his policy, however, as in his purchases of registered state warrants he has been paying a cash premium out of the perma nent school fund. These warrants bear 4 per cent interest and he has been buying them on a basis of 314 per cent, assuming that they have one year to run and giving a premium of one-half of I per cent. This has been covered back into the perma nent school fund by deducting the premium when the warrant has been redeemed from the accrued interest and turning the re-
