As both the permanent and temporary school fund belong to the people, the difference in paying the premium on purchases of bonds and warrants is simply a difference in bookkeeping. Every premium comes TRUSTS THREATEN EUROPEAN COMMERCE out of the school fund whether it is paid in cash or detached coupons, and the pretense that the state paid $80,000 and no more for Business Men of Vienna Express Their the Burt county bonds is simply a juggle of the figures. The trouble is that the bookkeeping and records of the bond purchases are so meager that almost any kind of a manipulation could be worked and no one could find out anything about it except the treasurer himself, and even he might b

The last purchase for the school fund was made yesterday of $26,000 of Dodge county 4% per cent funding bonds on an interest basis of 3 per cent, the lowest interest of any security ever bought for the state.

Stucfer Makes More Denials.

Treasurer Stuefer today declined to make any further statements regarding the exposure by The Bee of the bond deals of which the school fund has been the victim. I will say, however, that the story published this morning is untrue where it asserts that the Cuming county bonds were delivered to Mr. Neligh in West Point in exchange for the old bonds and that this transaction took place on May 16." declared Mr. Stuefer. "The public record of the auditer's office shows that the new bonds were brought to the auditor's office by Neligh on May 1 and that they were approved by the anditor on May 11. On May 14 they were delivered to Neligh and on the same day I was authorized by the Board of Educational Lands and Funds to purchase them. The exchange was made on May 15. The old bonds were not released until the new ones were received. The transaction took place in this office."

CARNATIONS HAVE THEIR DAY

Noted Growers of the Plant Contest for Prizes-Thousands of Specimens in Exhibit.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 19 .- This was carnation day at the annual floral festival being held in convention hall. Thousands upon thousands of apecimens of this flower were on exhibit and many of the most noted growers of the carnation in the United States contested for the prizes hung up. The exhibits, each in vases containing from twenty-five to fifty blooms, were arranged against the outside of a hedge, including a Japanese garden of rare beauty.

Eight thousand people attended the first day, many visitors from outside cities being here. The final awards in the competition for chrysanthemums were made today. There were fifty-three entries of specimen plants, standards and blooms, and of the first prizes Samuel Murray of Kansas City secured ten, in addition to the $100 special prize for the best chrysanthemum bush: Other first prize winners were: E. G. Hill company, Richmond, Ind.; If. W. Vuckbee, Rockford, Ill., and Nathan Smith & Co.

Policy of Mckinley

Senator McLaurin elucidated the Mc-Kinley doctrine to be as follows:

Kinley doctrine to be as follows:

First, that as our own manifold productions largely exceeded home consumption, the expansion of territory, trade and commerce is the only means of securing markets for our surplus products.

Second, that as a nation, with a firmly established constitutional government and enlarged national obligations, we can no longer abstain from participation in the affairs of the world, but must take our share of the responsibility.

Third, that, while maintaining the doctring that no government on the American continent must be interfered with or controlled by any European power, yet we must cultivate friendly relations with them and be prepared to seek and control our

In conclusion Senator McLaurin said: as the final battleground between error and truth and it may be that we are near that field of Armageddon dimly seen by the poet, where the brute nature and his immortal soul join in the great battle, which the good book tells us shall precede the dawn of that era of peace on earth and good will toward men.

Governor-elect Albert B. Cummins of Iowa followed Senator McLaurin.

Prosperity Should Be Moderate.

Mr. Cummins said he desired to speak in nonpartisan manner. Prosperity he held to be a comparative term, and one that did not imply the furious pace of the last three years. "When I speak of prosperity," said Mr. Cummins, "I have in mind a reasonable, moderate, but constant advancement that will keep us well at the head of the march. but will not completely exhaust our competitors in their efforts to remain in the procession." He said further: Looking into the future, it may be said with the utmost certainty that it we hold the commanding position we now occupy and broaden our influence in the world's and broaden our innuence in affairs we must retain the exceptional man-affsirs we must retain the exceptional manhood of the republic. It is at once a cause and effect.

While there has hitherto been an occasional note of discontent, the great body of the people have felt that the government has accomplished in high degree the ends for which it was organized. But it is easy to see that we are rapidly passing into another phase of national existence, one in which we must not only concern ourselves with our relations toward other nations and our trade with other lands, but must look with increasing care toward those laws which are intended to control the relations which our people hear to each other.

Work for the People.

One of the fundamental conditions of prosperity is work for the people, not part of the people, but all the people who either want to work or must work. The problem involved in this subject has totally changed within recent years. Formerly our chief concern was to prevent the producers of other countries from invading and occupying the markets of the United States. It now is to occupy the markets of other nations.

now is to occupy the markets of other nations.

The American system of protective duties upon imports has given us our own markets, but it is not an effective weapon for the conquest of international trade. Hitherto our exports to Europe have been chiefly of agricultural products. During the last few years, however, our manufactured products have been offered in foreign markets at a price that has created intense alarm and it is but a conservative statement of the situation when I say that the powers of Europe are in substantial concert at this moment to discover the most effective way of limiting the agricultural and excluding the manufactured products of the United States. I bolieve that it was in view of this situation that President McKinley, on the very eve of his assassimition, delivered that memorable address.

I believe the field for reciprocity is ample for the employment of the highest genius of American statesmanship. What I have said touches mainly the manufacturing nations of Europe and their depend-

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 19.-Two prominent features marked the proceedings of the national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union today, the last but one of the sessions, viz: The election of officers and a decision in respect to political action. The last was not accomplished without considerable debate, the extremists contending that as the convention had declared in its resolutions for Christian citizenship, a constitutional enactment concerning polygamy and monogamistic marriage and the necessity for prohibiting the manufacture, sale and distribution of alcoholic liquer by law. it would only be consistent to cast its fortunes with the political party pledged to all of these reforms. at any time. Read the following case Mr. William Cooper of 518 South 17th street, employed at the Waterloo Creamery, Saturday Night, says: "I was taken with a severe case of the grip and it left me with a lame and aching back, especially bad mornings, when I could scarcely drag myself about, and it was a hard task to get dressed. My work requires me to stand in wet places at times and this had a tendency to make my back worse. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured them at Kuhn & Co.'s drug store. They completely cured me and did it quickly."

CHANGE OF LIFE.

Some Sensible Advice to Wo-

" DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - When I passed through what is known as change of life, I had two years' suffering, - sudden heat, and as quick chills would pass over me; my appetite was variable and I never could tell for men by Mrs. E. Sailer,

a day at a time how I would feel the next day. Five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound changed all that, my days became days of health, and I have enjoyed every day since-now six years.

"We have used considerable of your Vegetable Compound in our charitable work, as we find that to restore a poor mother to health so she can support herself and those dependent upon her, if such there be, is truer charity than to give other aid. You have my bearty endorsement, for you have proven yourself a true friend to suffering wo-men."—Mrs. E. Sailer, 7561; Hill St. Los Angeles, Cal. -$5000 forfeit if above ter-

No other person can give such helpful advice to women who are sick as can Mrs. Pinkham, for no other has had such great experience—her address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice free-if you are sick write her-you are foolish if you don't.
