SECURING A JURY IS DIFFICULT WORK

Utmost Care in Choice of Panel that Will Be Asked to Decide Washington's Sensational Mystery.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19 .- Mrs. Lola Ida Hemry Bonine, a graceful woman of 34 years, the mother of two manly boys and the wife of a devoted husband, today entered upon her trial on the charge of murdering the young census clerk, James Seymour Ayres, It .. in the latter's room at the Kenmore hotel in this city last May.

The trial was begun before Justice Anderson in criminal courtroom No. 1. At the first session the room, though of limited capacity, was not crowded. Mr. Bonine and Mrs. Meacham, husband and sister of the accused, were early occupants of the seats reserved for Mrs. Bonine's especial friends, is were the five attorbeys engaged for the defense. At 10:10 Mrs. Bonine appeared in the courtroom, accompanied by the veteran ruard, James W. Springman. She walked in so quietly that her entrance was scarcely noted and took a seat beside her husband. just back of her counsel and in front of her sister. She smiled us she greeted her sister and the latter placed her arms gently about her as she sank into her seat.

After the preliminaries of calling the names of witnesses and jurors were disposed of Mrs. Bonine was asked to stand and plead to the indictment. She listened calmly to the reading of the document and when it was concluded pleaded "not guilty" in low but distinct tones.

Selecting a Jury.

After a brief statement of the case by Judge Anderson, the examination of jurors was begun and when the court, at 12:50, adjourned for the day the panel was ex-There were twenty-six members of the panel and of these fourteen were excused, leaving twelve in the box. All of the government's challenges were made because of statements on the part of the witnesses that they had conscientious scruples against capital punishment. Most of the challengers on behalf of the prisoner were on account of statements made by the jurers that they had formed opinions in the case. In four or five instances they stated that their view could not be changed by new testimony

The first contention arose in connection with the calling of a juror named Smith, a colored man. He stated that he had formed an opinion in the case, but that it was not Bonine's counsel challenged "for cause." The challenge, however, was overruled. Mr. Douglass noted an exception, the first of the trial, and then peremptorily challenged the juror, who was excused. It is expected there will be other challenges when the court convenes tomorrow.

Mrs. Bonine was apparently as calm as any of the spectators during the proceedings. She spoke frequently with her husband and sister and only once or twice with her attorneys. During a part of the day her two boys, respectively 15 and 13 years of ago, were in the courtroom. After adjournment she took dinner with ber friends in the prisoners' room in the courthouse being closely attended all the time by her guard. She was then returned to jail. The trial will be resumed at 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Story of the Tragedy. The trial of Mrs. Bonine will undoubtedly be sensational. The story of the tragedy is full of mysteries. Ayres was a clerk employed in the census office and had roomed at the Kenmore hotel for some months previous to the tragedy. While there be made the acquaintance of Mrs. Bonine and a friendship sprupg up between the two. They were frequently together, but there was never a suspicion that their relations were anything but friendly. On the night of May 14 young Avres announced his intention of changing his place of residence, but beyond generally expressed regret at his action no special other boarders in the house. Ayres had always been exceedingly popular, owing to his light-hearted and genial manner, and about March 4 and he took offense at my that evening. Next to the Kenmore, on the south side, is a five-story building, with an English basement, in which lives Thomas M. Baker. employed in the United States Fish commission. Mr. Baker occupies a room which corresponds to the third floor of the Kenmore. He had retired but a short time when he was aroused by reports of a firearm and sprang from his bed, opened his window and looked down into the street. He saw nothing and heard no further sound until after a wait of about three or four minutes, when some one

Hopkins, a clerk employed in the War department, who roomed immediately over Ayres, was the only one who made any attempt to locate the disturbance. He was attending to his daughter, who was ill, when he heard the noise, and at once opened the door and went part of the way down the stairs leading to the fourth floor. This took him within a few feet of Ayres' room, but hearing no suspicious sound he decided it was someone kicking on a door and returned to

The only incident that occurred on the eventful morning which was noted by anyone was the unusual sight of a woman descending a fire escape, and even this failed to arouse sufficient interest to lead to an immediate investigation, Mr. Baker, who had remained at his window after replying to the query addressed him from above, stood looking out on the Kenmore fire escape.
