Most Rest at Home.

Rev. W. S. Barnes Wonders What Would Happen to the Guilty President-Loss of Pilgrim Fathers' Spirit.

Thanksgiving day was observed in Coun eil Bluffs as in years gone by. Business was generally suspended and the day celebrated as a holiday. Those religiously inclined attended the union church services in the morning, while others indulged in day of rest. Family gatherings around the festive board, at which the time-bonored turkey was the piece de resistance. were as usual a feature of the day. The foot ball game in the afternoon proved an attraction for many, as did the theaters in the evening.

The union services at the Congregational Baptist and Second Presbyterian churches Associated Charities will reap a neat sum for its benefit at these churches. St. Francis Xavier's and St. Peter's Catholic a. m. An all-day service was held at the Iowa Holiness Association mission on First avenue and Main street, which was well attended. The Latter Day Saints had services in observance of Thanksgiving day in the evening, while the colored citizens gathered at 11 o'clock in the morning in Mount Zion church to render thanks. At St. Paul's Episcopal church service was held in the morning, the rector, Rev. George Edward Walk, preaching a sermon approprinte to the day.

All Want Thanksgiving.

At the Congregational church Rev. W. S Barnes, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, preached the sermon, taking his needs to be careful about the maintenance of Thanksgiving? When once the appropriate proclamation has been leaved, 's Christianity then sufficiently proclaimed? Is our piety then sufficiently proved? Probably 90 per cent of the people will make no attempt to comply with the terms of the proclamation. Perhaps majority of the people have not so much as read the official document and really do not know whether or not there is a single word in it about foot ball or any other kind of ball, male, female or mixed They have their own ideas of Thanksgiv ing and even the president's views of the day receive but little consideration. This s not a theory; it is a condition.

Day of the Pilgrim Fathers.

"The Thanksgiving day that the Pilgrim Fathers observed in the autumn of 1621 at Plymouth after they had gathered the first rops from their newly-found lands-what has become of it? Many of us have been compelled to see that to the large matority of the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers the president's religious proclamation of Thanksgiving has come to be merely a matter of form. Only religious people are expected to respond to the president's call and they only by their representa-

"No people ever had as much occasion for humble thankfulness as we. Our forefathers did not have pennies where we have dollars to be thankful for. We ourselves cannot keep pace with the developments of our times. We have only a vague conception of the vast wealth that is being accumulated in this richly favored land. And this year, 1901, has exceeded all that went before it. We all have had some personal share in the general good; therefore let no voice be silent on the day of Thanksgiving.

In First Baptist Church.

Rev. W. B. Crewdson preached in the First Baptist church, taking his text from Second Corinthians, 9, 10 and 11, saying in "The spirit and intent of this reading are in perfect accord with the spirit and intent of this service, which was born of hearts of gratitude that reached back to the days of the pilgrim fathers in 1621, who lifted their voices to Almighty God in thanksgiving and praise for the seed sown and the increase of its bountifulness, but it never became a national holiday until that great statesman and prince among men, Abraham Lincoln, when our nation was plunged into the great vortex of a bloody war and rejoicing in the great victories of the forces marching on, it seemed good to this great and wise man to send forth a proclamation to the people. Therefore, the 15th day of July, 1883, Abraham Lincoln issued a proclamation of thanksgiving to sued a proclamation of thanksgiving to Almighty God, calling upon the people of this nation to meet in their places of worship and lift their voices in thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the victories Therefore, on the 6th day of August. 1863, was the first national thanksgiving service held in accordance with the proclamation issued by the chief magistrate of this great nation. From that time until now it has been observed by the president and governors of this great commonwealth issuing their respective proclamations and calling together the people in praise and thanksgiving to God for His bountifulness and the wondrous increase of the seed sown that our hearts might abound in thanksgiving unto our God. "I am glad this morning that I am an American citizen. I am glad that we gather this morning as a part of this great American republic, the greatest nation. I believe.

A. U. Quint, secretary of a bankers' insurance company here, who has been giving great deal of attention to the bank robber ies of Iowa, declares his belief that the real heads of the gang which has been operating in Iowa the last fall have not yet been aught, and that possibly the robbers taken at Albert City were not doing much of the robbing which has been going on. He says: "I do not believe that there is one big gang operating in Iowa, but I believe that all of the men are more or less associated. There is a perfect network of these men working from the Atlantic to the Pacific. yet not organized under any one gang. Deectives unite in saying that there never was a time in the history of the country when bad men were so numerous. "I imagine that there are perhaps fifteen bad men, really smooth crooks, working in Iowa. They work out of towns like St. Paul, Sioux City, Mason City, Marshalltown Omaha, St. Joseph and Kansas City. There are very few of them hanging around Des Moines. The officers here are very shrewd and the crooks are well aware of it. They keep moving and dodge Des Moines, or make themselves very scarce when they are here.

"These fifteen men are undoubtedly divided up into small parties. Perhaps not more than one or two experts are to be found in a party of five. The other three are tough tramps who are being initiated or who are willing to take their chances in the danger for the big money offered."

Iowa friends of Oscar Dieguan have heard with regret of the insanity of the young man who became famous for having been with Hobson at the sinking of Merrimac His parents live at Stuart. Oscar, after considerable service as a boy on merchantmen, enlisted in the United States navy. He was one of the volunteers chosen by Lieutenant Hobson to assist in sinking Merrimac in the mouth of Santiago harbor. He and his companions were captured and confined in the Morro castle until the surrender of Santiago. He came home in the fall of 1898 and was given a hearty reception by the citizens of Stuart, being presented with a sword. Congressman Hull secured the passage of a bill permitting him to enter the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, but Deignan concluded not to accept the opportunity, preferring to take his chances as a warrant officer.
