Ping Pong the Social Craze.

Ping pong, or table tennis, which obtained a certain vogue last winter, has developed this year into a social craze of overwhelmingly dimensions. It is played everywhere in Peckham as absorbingly as at Park Lane. It not only is fascinating, but cheap, and is practicable on any table of reasonable dimensions. One London firm has sold a million sets, it is said, in three menths. A ping pong association has been formed under distinguished patronage to make rules and arrange championships.

Suburbia had a largely attended and exciting tournament at the Royal Aquarium last week, lasting six days. This week Belgravia had its more select competition in Queen's hall. Some women have attained extraordinary proficiency. At the Aquarium tournament one rally lasted Walking along any quiet thoroughfare in the West End or the suburbs any evening one is bound to hear the ping pong of the celluloid balls on parchment or strong rackets in almost every other house. Bridge cards have been laid aside, motoring is neglected, the theaters are abandoned, books deserted, even the war is forgotten in the wild delights of this new fad.

Dewet's Dramatic Outbreak.

Dewet's appalling reappearance at Zeefontein on Christmas eve has roughly shaken the optimism that had begun to prevail respecting affairs of Kitchener's campaign. Dewet undoubtedly arranges these affairs with an eye to dramatic effect. Every time England has been arranging a rejoleing he or Botha makes some astound ing coup. Zeefontein was Dewet's Christmas present for the British. It is thought morally certain that he will provide another catastrophe for the opening of Parliament, January 18.

The War office has adopted a policy of trying to minimize the calamities by giving out information in driblets. But the public has become adept in reading between the lines of the War office dispatches, so the withholding of the full facts only arouses the more alarm.

This is the reason, is also asserted, for the recent correspondence on the subject.

The pope purposes to issue in the early new year an encyclical on Christian democracy, designed to check the threatening disputes which have arisen lately in the Italian Catholic party.

The pontiff withstood the fatigue of the of saying three masses on Christmas day, one a midday mass. The winter always agrees with him. It is the exhausting heat of midsummer and autumn that reduces his strength. Bishop Touchet of Orleans, who was received by the pope in private audience this week, was the bearer of a fifth volume concerning the trial and death of Joan of Arc, compiled by a learned Dominican friar, Father Ayrolles. He contends that Joan deserves the palm for martyrdom and title of saint. This view is shared by the pope, who expressed the intention of canonizing Joan of Arc during the year 1902.

WILLEMSTAD, Island of Curacos, Dec. 28 .- (Via Haytien Cable.) - Advices received here today from Caracas, Venezuela, say that the revolution against President Castro is gaining ground daily. Nearly the whole of the republic is in revolt and bands of men are scouring the country. Coro, in the state of Falcon, and Barquisimeto, in the state of Lora, particularly are in the possession of the revolutionists.

Cable communication between Cuman. Carupano and Barcelona is interrupted and the government is without news from the state of Bermudez (in which these ports are located), which leads to the belief that it also has been induced to revolt by General Domingo Monagus.

General Luciano Mendoza (the presidentelect of the state of Carabobo, who rebelled against President Castro, marched on La Victoria and was reported to have been defeated), has escaped from the pursuit of the government troops and is now in the neighborhood of San Juan de Los Mores. Antonio Fernandez and thirty chiefs of the state of Carabobo were not willing to engage the government forces before the revolution was quite ripe.

The abbot reported the matter to the synod and to the newspapers, with the result that pilgrims are setting out to the monastery from all parts of the empire and that the ancient reputation of the monastery and its miraculous well have been re-established. Grand Duke Sergius and his wife, the zarovitch, will represent the Russian court at the coronation next June of the grand duchess' uncle, King Edward VII of England. The grand duchess, a sister of the czarina, is regarded by many as the most beautiful of Queen Victoria's granddaughters. She is the daughter of Victoria's daughter Alice and the late grand duke of
