TEACHERS IN CONVENTION

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS ASSEMBLE

This Feature is an Innovation and in Greatly Appre lated-Absence of School Supply Displays, but Salesmen Are on Hand.

(From a Staff Correspondent.) LINCOLN, Jan. 1 .- (Special Telegram.)-The Nebraska State Teachers' association began its twenty-sixth annual convention today with an attendance about equalling that of the first day last year, there being 875 names enrolled when the books were closed at 8 o'clock tonight. Treasurer Tooley, who has charge of the registration, says, the arrivals tomorrow, with the few I've comers on Friday, will bring the enrollment up to at least 1,100. *

An innovation in connection with the convention that is receiving wide attention is the meeting of the county superintendents of the state, which was proposed in a call issued by State Superintendent Fowler. The first session was continued today and will be concluded tomorrow. Superintendent Fowler presides at all of these meetings. The subjects discussed relate to the man agement of achools from the standpoint of the superintendent," It is likely that several changes in school legislation will be proposed before the meeting adjourns.

A notable feature of the convention is the absence of the school book and school supply displays which have heretofore occupied so much space at the headquarters of hotels. The leading publishers have agreed to make no display this year, but all have representatives on the ground. The same condition prevails throughout the country at teachers' conventions.

Revolution in Election.

A complete revolution in the manner of electing officers of the association was proposed in the general assembly tonight by Superintendent Ed Bishop of York, His plan is to have the election by referendum vote of all members in attendance, instead of by the general assembly on the recommendation of a nominating committee, as under the existing provision of the con stitution. The effect would be to give each member a direct vote and would do away with the nominating committee.

Mr. Bishop's proposal is embodied in an amendment to the constitution and it will come up for discussion in the general assembly tomorrow morning. It is said the the petitions. amendment will have the vigorous opposition of the political leaders of the assoclation, or of that element known as "the day for the south. caine," for it will be effective in dis continuing the practice of trading and dealing for the offices.

Spelling Contest a Novelty.

Members from each congressional committee will meet tomorrow afternoon to elect members of the nominating commit tee; which will submit its recommenda tions at the general assembly Friday morning. The spelling contest, which is a new feature in the convention, will take place at the close of the general session tomor row morning.
