DEDICATE REBUILT CHURCH Presbyterian Ministers Formally Open Reconstructed Edifice of Bohemian Brethren.

The Bohemian Brethren Presbyterian and break full and half Nelsons, do head church at the corner of Fifteenth and Hickory streets was formally dedicated yesterday afterroon. A few months ago the church was moved to its present location and the work of renovating it was begunment was constructed beneath it and the interior was decorated and improved. For some time services have been held in the sement, but the main auditorium was not ppened to the public until yesterday. Rev. R. L. Wheeler of the South Omaha Presbyterian church preached the dedication sermon and short addresses were delivered by Dr. D. E. Jenkins and Dr. M. B. Lowrie of the Omaha Theological seminary, Dr. Edwin Hart Jenks of the First Presbyterian church, Dr. T. V. Moore of the Westminster Presbyterian church, Dr. M. DeWitt Long of the Knox Presbyterian church, Rev. Winthrop Allison of Castellar Street Presbyterian church and Dr. David Kerr of Bellevue college. Rev. John Pipal of Wahoo, former pastor of the church,

A brief history of the Bohemian Brethren congregation was given by Rev. J. W. Dobias, the present pastor. In 1889 Dr. Wilson, pastor of Castellar Street Presbyterian church, encouraged three Bohemian families elonging to his church to organize a Bohemian society for the purpose of erecting a church in which services might be held in the Bohemian language. In a short time the society became quite a power among the emians and was strong enough to buy the present church building, which was then located several blocks north of its present location. From a society of three families the organization has grown into a church with more than sixty members and has be-come the parent of a Bohemian Brethren church in South Omaha with a membership of forty.

Workingmen, Bowever, Will Not Protest Against Reduction of Teachers' Salaries.

At the meeting of the Board of Education this evening the committee from the Central Labor upion appointed at its last neeting to protest against the elimination of free textbooks from the High school and the reduction in the salaries of the teachers will appear. John J. Kerrigan, a member of the committee, said:

"The committee should have been at the meeting last week, but we understood that nothing but the levy and the division of the funds would be considered. We have prepared a protest to be made on the subject of free textbooks and we sincerely hope that we can change the rule. We do not care about the matter so much from specific cases where it would work a hardship as we do on account of the general expense to be entailed by the system which has been adopted. It is a conservative estimate to say that a book will last long enough to be used by four different classes in the High school. In a family there may be only one pupil in the High school and as he advances the books used the previous year must be discarded and others purchased. These books are then wasted. Under the system previously in vogue they would be used by succeeding children until they are worn out. There are several different classes in the High school through which a child must pass in order to graduate and at the end of the course there will be piled up in the homes a large number of useless books, while other children who could have used those books have been kept from school because their parents could not afford to buy them.

"We do not expect to make much of a protest against the reduction in teachers' salaries. We have been looking the matter up and find that many men who have spent as long a time learning a trade or business as the teachers have spent in their training are working today in Omaha for less money than the teachers are getting. It does not seem to me that the teachers have much cause for complaint as long as this is so, and they should not be singled out as people who should receive more money for their labors than those in other lines of work requiring fully as much preparation and an equal amount of skill and experience."

Amusements.

The Orpheum This week's program of vaudeville offerings at the Orpheum is one of the most satisfactory of any of the season's bills so far There are no high salaried feature acts included in its make-up, and for that reason it is one of uniform excellence throughout. It would be hard to decide just which specialty was the biggest hit since all of them were liberally applauded at both Sunday performances. Lovers of music will find much to please thom, since a majority of the acts include at least one vocal or instrumental selection, and severa of them are given up wholly to music of one kind or another. Picolo's Lilliputians four unusually diminutive fellows, ranging in age from 21 to 40, offer one of the best specialties of its kind in vaudeville. They open with a Salvation Army burlesque that sets the audience in an uproar of laughter and close their act with some remarkable feats of strength for such little fellows A wrestling bout is by no means the leas pleasing feature of the act. They catch spins, bridge and everything else that s professional wrestler would with almost the same cleverness. Bruett and Reviere French vocalists and imitators, seen here two seasons ago in the same specialty, sing with remarkable accuracy. There is no better monologuist in vaudeville than Billy Clifford, whose style and personality are distinctly his own and quite inimitable Clifford needs no one to assist him in "making good" with his audiences and his for mer partner, Maude Huth, is not really missed. Leonard Fletcher offers a number of accurate impersonations of such well-known people as President Roosevelt Chauncey Depew, Mark Twain, Admira Schley, Richard Mansfield and others. His manner of presenting these impersonations is novel and decidedly clever. Deave's marionettes are as old as the proverbial hills, but are the source of much amuse ment to the children and not a few of their elders as well. Zon Matthews, a rather handsome and vivacious young woman, has a well chosen repertoire of popular coon songs, which she renders with most pleasing effect. Both the afternoon and evening audiences Sunday seemed unable to get enough of the act, and Miss Matthews was forced to respond to repeated encores. She is assisted by a sweet-voiced pickaning stationed in the audience. Ritter's trained

Because Miss Lena Merville, though abundantly energetic actress, is not a sufficiency in herself as "The Girl from Maxim's." the play of that name is a failure in the hands of the company that produced it at Boyd's Sunday matinee and night, and which is to repeat the offense tonight. Hattie Williams had the chic, vivacious per sopality to save the piece, even had her support been poor, but Miss Merville less fortunately endowed and when there is added the dragging weight of a company that is not only wooden, but has the bark still on the wood, the task is quite beyond her. DR. CONLEY'S FIRST SERMON

New Penter of First Raptist Zogine Mis Work in Omana.

DISCOURSES ON LOYAL SERVICE TO GOD

Christian Work Should Be in Spirit of Love and Without Thought of Reward-Sermons in Other Churches.

Dr. W. J. Conley was greeted by a large congregation yesterday morning at the First Baptist church, where he preached his first sermon as the regularly installed pastor. Two months ago Dr. Conley visited Omaha and preached to the First Baptist congre-A few days later a call was extended to him and he resigned the pastorate of the Oak Park (III.) Baptist church to accept the charge in Omaha. "Service" was the theme of Dr. Conley's sermon yesterday morning and his text was: "And whosoever will be chief among you let him be your servant." preacher emphasized the necessity of loyal service to God and man and urged that such service be without thought of reward, with the proper motive and in the spirit of love. "To be a Christian means to be a servant of Jesus Christ," said Dr. Conley. "Christ's teaching is the interpretation of service. Three factors enter into the service of men. They are motive, reward and spirit. The motive which prompts much service given to the Lord is fear. It blights the religious life of many of Christ's servants. The ecclesiastical lash wings over much of Europe and compels devotion that should come through love.

"Reward is an element in all service. The employer looks to his employe for efficlent effort because of the wages paid Most literary men work for the reward that will come to them in money. Even the pulpit is not above this quest for gold. While reward must not be despised, we must bear in mind the fact that we will never attain great ends until we apply ourselves to our work in a spirit of love.

Better Than Golden Rule.

"The Golden Rule, 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you,' is not the Christian's rule. The true follower of God says: 'Give yourself unto others regardless of what they do unto you.' This is the Christ conception of the relation which men should bear unto each other. Much service is too narrow. It is dwarfed. The opinion is frequently expressed that a large-hearted, sympathetic man must not belong to a church. Why should such an opinion prevail? The scope of a Christian church must take in everything helpful to man. The moral and physical welfare of man and his political and social life must be influenced by religion.

"Men must prepare themselves to live rather than to die, and it is the duty of the church to assist in any work which will make the lives of men brighter and happier. There is a disposition among certain Christians to serve God in their own set The scope of a Christian's life alone. should not be narrowed to the social circle in which he moves. I am an expansionist believe in spreading the good tidings which Christ brought to the world. I wish the United States would acquire all the world if its purpose were to serve the people whom it meets. If service is our pupose in taking the Philippines under our care, it is well, but our conquest was wrong if it was the purpose of the government to crush and subdue the Filipinos. "The spirit of service is very essential. which Christians undertake their work. of the Blessed. There is a spirit of charm which is irrepellant. Love, not pity, must characterize efficient service. We must give ourselves to the service of God; our money will not And a hopeful confidence in the triumph of faith must crown all our work."

CELEBRATE CANDLEMAS DAY

Special Services Are Held in Omaha Catholic and Episcopal Churches.

Candlemas was celebrated yesterday with special services in the Reman Catholic and Episcopal churches. In the Episcopal churches the celebration is confined to special collects and gospel, while in the Catholic churches, with the greater ceremonial, the day has come to be one of the more important feasts. On this day the candles which are to be used during the coming year, both in the services of the church and in the private services in the homes, are blessed by the priests, generally before the masses are celebrated.

At all of the churches in the city the day was observed with solemn high mass at the usual hour and sermons were preached from the gospel, which is an account of the presentation of Jesus in the temple under the Mosaic law, which required mother and child to be present in the temple within forty days, in case of the birth of a son, for purification. February 2, being forty days from Christmas, the day upon which the birth of Jesus is celebrated, is observed as the anniversary of the purifica tion of his mother. In the processions and public demonstrations of Candlemas day, profane historians see a survival of one of the pagan celebrations of the Romans, when they marched in procession and celebrated a day in February in honor of Pan, a god of that system of mythology, and say that the earlier Roman pontiffs, in attempting to wear their converts from paganism, gave to certain pagan rites a Christian signification. The observance of Candlemas day as a Christian rite dates from the fifth cen-

In England Candlemas day, in the opinion of the descendants of the worshipers at the shrines of the Druids, is intimately connected with the weather for the year to come, and this has been transplanted to where Candlemas becomes 'ground-hog" day.
