WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 .- Senator Eikins, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, today introduced a bill making a number of changes in the interstate commerce law, the most important of which was:

Giving the Interstate Commerce commission, under certain conditions, authority to fix railroad rates, legalizing pooling and abolishing imprisonment as a method of punishing offenses against the law. The provision with reference to the fixing of rates authorizes the Interstate Commerce commission to hear complaints of discrimination made against common carriers and directs that any definite order made by the commission after such hearing declaring a rate regulation or practices to be just and reasonable, shall become operative, and be observed by the party or parties against whom it is made within thirty days after notice. Appeal to the United States circuit courts and to the supreme court of the United States is authorized. The latter court is given authority to suspend or revoke a rate order made by the commission upon application by parties affected and all such orders are limited to one year's duration.
