The program for considering the war revenue reduction bill is fully understood, but it is not desired to give those who oppose the majority the fullest information on the exact time of its consideration in order to assist their opposition.

One thing has been settled beyond any doubt, that the bill will be passed exactly as reported except in minor verbal committee changes. The length of the debate will be about two days, which seems about reasonable, as there is no great pressure for thue.

Worth gave him written permission to reveal the Sainsborough secret after he had died. Wrapped in elleloth the canvas was handed over to C. Moreland Agnew one arning last April in Chicago by Worth who twenty-five years before had out the painting from its, frame in the Agnew galeries in London. The return of the paintng took place in Mr. Pinkerton's private The owner of the picture hurried back to London for fear the United States would demand a duty on the work which had been secreted in this country for fifteen years: It was while in London that Worth enceived the idea of carrying off the Gainsrough picture. His first plan was to rol the Royal Academy of its art treasures Then he changed his mind and directed his attention to the Gainsborough painting Assisted by his partner he climbed into the Agnew galleries one night, cut the painting from its canvas and carried it

Then he took the picture to Paris and finally brought it to America. where it was concealed for fifteen years. In the meantime, Worth was arrested in Brussels and forced to serve seven years. Mr. Pinkerton had known Worth for thirty years. Two years ago Mr. Pinkerton received a telegram telling him that an important letter was at his home. The letter was from Worth, who saked an in terview. This was granted and Worth sald he was going to die and wanted to "turn up" the Gainsborough picture in order that his two children, who had been educated in a convent, might enjoy the proceeds. Through a hitch the picture was not recovered at that time. Worth returned to London and early last spring he fulfilled

The cause of last night's explosion, by which eleven lives were lost, has not yet been fixed. Two business men in the vicinity said the explosion was in a defective boiler connected with the gas system in the basement of the building occupied Butcher Trostel; which employes had empted to thaw out. Others insisted explosion was exused by the gas itself, but they were unable to say how the gas had caused it

The experts of the People's Gas com pany are investigating the cause and are as yet uncertain. They think some one was thawing out a pipe and that the explosion resulted. The city fire marshal is likerise uncertain as to the first cause.

The most graphic story of the accident was told by J. Pauly of 66 Twenty-second place, who stood foress the street when the building went up: "The first thing I knew," he said, "I was blown against a telegraph pole. I was facing the market and it seemed that the whole building rose up in the air at once and then collapsed into the cellar, a heap of ruins. I ran across the street and as I crossed the car tracks I could hear the cries of the people imprisoned in the wreckage. Almost im-mediately the flames burst out all over the place and it seemed that everything was on fire at once.

"We could hear the cries in the basement growing fainter and we had to allow the sufferers to die without doing anything to help them.' J. C. Kleiner, proprietor of the drug store at Archer avenue and Twenty-second street, was a witness to the explosion. He says that no one came from the butcher shop after the shock. "I was standing in the front of my store when the explosion occurred," Mr. Kleiner "I was just looking down Twenty-

I turned to the tele phone and called up several doctors and told them of the disaster. All of them responded. As I turned to look down the street again I heard the fire deportment coming. Then the manholes began to ex plode and one by one the caps were blown high into the air. The force of the explosion was so great that the windows in street cars were shattered.

In our judgment the customs tax is absolutely necessary, as the government could not be supported by direct taxation. Of course, if there were no custom collections on goods coming from the United States, the effect would be to nullify all tariff collections, as practically all the importations into the Philippines would be from the United States or from Spain, which would be given free trade under the peace treaty.

I am bound to say at present our principal reason for asking a reduction is sentimental.
