"Tennessee's Pardner" is billed to appear at the Dohany theater tonight. It is one of the good old-time California mining camp plays, in which the men for the most part are rough and unlettered, but full of chivalry and courage. "Tennessee's Pardner" was suggested by Bret Harte's popular romance and not a little of that writer's force and charm of composition seems to have been retained for the drama. As a result, the interest never lags and everyone follows the action of the plece with attention and eagerness until the curtain finally falls upon the last act. The play will be staged with careful attention to scenic embellishments.

PASSES THE GREAT WESTERN FRANCHISE

City May Require Company to Malutain Electric Arc Lights at All Crossings of Streets or Railways.

The city council last night passed under suspension of rules the Great Western railroad right-of-way ordinance. The ordinance was one drafted by City Solicitor Wadsworth as a substitute for that introduced by the railroad's attorney, and was approved by the aldermen at a secret session held in the mayor's office before the council meeting.

The ordinance is in favor of the Mason City & Fort Dodge Railroad company, which will construct the line between Fort Dodge and this city for the Great Western. It gives the railroad the privilege to locate and maintain two main tracks and all the necessary turnouts, switches and side-The original ordinance provided for two or more main tracks, but as public sentiment was against granting permission for more than two main tracks at this time the aldermen decided to restrict the rail-

This grant will eliminate a sidewalk on the south side of the avenue between the streets named.

Under the ordinance the railroad will be required, if so ordered by the city council, to maintain electric arc lights at all points where its tracks cross railway or street railway lines. This provision was inserted after the ordinance had passed to its second reading, at the suggestion of Alderman Boyer. It is said that under the state law and city ordinances the city had the right to require the railroad to maintain lights or flagmen at all crossings.

The ordinance contains the usual provisions safeguarding the city from claims for damages by reason of the construction

The city council has still before it the ordinance vacating certain streets and avenues in the interest of the Great Western and will meet Monday, February 17, to consider it. Alderman Hammer said the Omaha &
