SOCIETY	HAS	QUIET	r week
Season of	Unusual Omaha's		ettles Over
LAST SIX	DAYS DU	ILL EVEN	FOR LENT
After J	Caster-5	ome Sm ract Po	and a second

An almost unprecedented calm seems to Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. have settled upon the members of the smart Plattner, Miss Howland, Miss Rogers, Mr. set of late and left half their number with time weighing heavily upon their hands. In consequence there has been a full attendance at all the minor affairs of the week and there are few women who have not returned all their calls. Even the wind and soft ground have been disregarded by many who have gone out to the Country club to look over the green and practice a little for want of something better to do.

There is gloomy prospect of anything to relieve this quiet until after Easter, for even the card clubs that have met weekly during the winter are beginning to disband, many of them having held their last meeting last week.

Fifty Omaha members were present at the annual meeting of the Council Bluffs Rowing association, held at the Grand hotel on Monday evening. Golf links are to be laid out adjacent to the clubhouse at Lake Manawa and many other projects were discussed that promise to add materially to the attractions of that resort, the popularity of which rivaled the attractions of the Country club and Field club last sum- to New England.

ards Except in the opening and closing num bers the playing was done entirely without notes and in but one or two instances were there lapses of memory. The ensemble in the two plano numbers was good and some strong orchestral effects were obtained in the exquisite "Peer Gynt Suite," so typically Grieg. The Leschotinsky "Value Chromatique" was particularly well played, the rapid staccato passages being taken with a free hand, cleverly and delicately. The next number by the little girls was rendered with the spirit and unconcern characteristic of children. The graceful Raff duo was well done. In "The March of the Dwarfs" the player brought out well the weird, almost fantastic rhythm and striking contrasts. The strongest numbers of the program were those by Miss Leland Burks, who played with much finish. The dainty "Shadow Dance" was truly artistic and the Rubinstein "Staccato Etude," a particularly
