AFFAIRS AT SOUTH OMAHA

Republicans Hold Big Meeting at Armory in City Hall.

KOUTSKY DISCUSSES CITY BUSINESS

Representative of Financial Concern Says Present Holders of Bonds Will Not Consent to the Renewal Arrangement.

Another enthusiastic rally of republicans was held at the troop armory last night. As a week ago, this meeting was held under the auspices of the Swedish-American League No. 2. John Nelson presided and introduced the speakers.

One of the first speakers was Frank Koutsky, republican candidate for mayor. After the hearty applause had subsided Candidate Koutsky spoke, in part, as follows:

"As you all know, I am not much of a speechmaker, but I do desire to say a few things about municipal affairs. Since I have been city treasurer more personal taxes have been collected within the period of two years than during any similar time in the history of the city. The records of the office show, as expert accountants vouch, that every cent collected by me as treasurer has been accounted for. Some people say that I received money on daily balances from the local banks. This is an absolute misstatement. The banks do not now and never have paid me a cent of interest on daily balances. This practice was discontinued over two years ago for the reason that the city might have large sums on deposit one day and the next the treasurer might issue a call for warrants and draw out all of the money on hand. I have done this frequently in order to save the city interest which it pays on warrants."

The brief address of Mr. Koutsky was well received and he was given an enthusiastic reception as he left the rostrum.

Other candidates on the ticket followed the campaign. There was another rally at the Evans' hall, Twenty-eighth and M streets, where the candidates also spoke.

City Must Bring Suit.
"If the Johnston-Kelly-Miller combination expects to deliver to C. Bevin Oldfield the record of $140,000 of renewal bonds it is badly mistaken. This statement was made yesterday by a representative of one of the big bond buying houses of the east. Continuing, the representative said: "In the first place, considering the underhanded work which has been done and the manner in which the ordinances were passed no bond attorney would consent to such a deal. Next is the reluctance of holders of the present bonds to let go of securities which they now hold and take a lower rate of interest. One concern in the east, a big banking house, actually controls the original issue and it will not, to my certain knowledge, ask its customers to turn in the bonds they now hold for others to be issued at a lower rate of interest. Just because some politicians are going out of office want them to. The original bonds were issued for twenty years straight and the holders will endeavor to force the city to carry out its agreement. At any rate the renewal of this issue of bonds at this time is illegal for the reason that the present city charter does not provide for an option after the expiration of five years. It is true that the old charter did, but the city has been working under the new charter for a year now and it cannot go back to the old charter because the combination mentioned suddenly takes it into its head to try and save the city money. It is a safe wager that if the present city authorities attempt to perform their part of the contract with Mr. Oldfield they will meet with some stubborn opposition from the holders of the present bonds."

Democratic Tactics.
Members of the republican city central committee are continually on the alert and yesterday signs of coalition on the part of the Lochner-Kelly forces were discovered. Certain districts in the city are being constantly watched, and especially the postoffice. Yesterday it was discovered that quite a number of strangers called for mail and then departed for some of the outside precincts. When accosted they as-

Will Take Look at Nelson
Mrs. Coffey Wants to See if St. Joseph Prisoner in Her Husband.

Mrs. Alice T. Coffey of this city, who has a suspicion that Christian G. Nelson, arrested at St. Joseph, Mo., on a charge of bigamy, is the man who married and deserted her several months ago, will go to the Missouri town for the purpose of getting a look at the prisoner. Mrs. Coffey yesterday called on Chief of Police Donahue and secured from him letters of introduction to the chief of police of St. Joseph and the sheriff of Buchanan county. Mrs. Coffey is led to believe that Nelson is the same man who married her in this city under the name of McKow because his picture has a general resemblance to McKow.

CARRIE NATION AND OMAHA

Kansas Crusader Gives the Town a Verbal Smashing.

UNDER SAME ROOF WITH A LIQUOR BAR

Her Invitation to Go on Wrecking Tour of City Declined by Woman Who Heard Her Lecture.

Carrie Nation has come, has lectured and has had a night in Omaha, and a dry man can still get a drink. The promoter of parched tonsils arrived at the Webster street depot at 5:35 last evening and in the absence of other reception committees was taken to the Grand Hotel. The crusader introduced herself as the only newspaper man in Omaha who neither drinks, smokes, chews or uses slang, and by Washington G. Percival, who chews his cigars, but never smokes them. One took her satchel, shaped like a traveling man's toilet bag, and the other a dressing case, shaped like a Kansas barroom after one of her calls. They led her to Fred Meyer's carriage. Mr. Meyer having done as much as any other hackman in the world would do going with liquor, and he whisked her away to the Her Grand amid the shouts of about 400 persons, many of them women, who had assembled at the depot to see her arrive.

She Didn't Bar the Bar.
At the hotel desk she did just what her schedule calls for. Addressing Manager Shafer, who was behind the desk, she said: "I want a room, but, young man, I see you've got a bar in this tavern."

"Yes, a real good one. Front, show the lady the bar," answered the hotel man serenely.

"Oh, mercy, I don't want to see it. I won't even stop here or any place else where there is a bar."

But she did. She stopped there and she went on. The bar was taken up by the McGadeu, and raised her hands in horror. Striking a pose suggestive of Nell Burgess in "The County Fair," she exclaimed: "Oh, to see one of my sex handling those nasty things and tempting men to do wrong and spend their money foolishly, it's terrible!"

A traveling man was just lighting up and she turned on him. "You, sir, you are wicked to do that and you know it. You ought to be ashamed!"

Sweeping out to the elevator, snuffing as she went, she took up the floor and then posed most cheerfully for The Bee's staff artist, retaining her shawl, of which she said:

"Oh, I love it, I love it. I wouldn't have my picture taken without it. It was my pillow in jail."

The next day word to have her baggage taken to a room, remarking that she had to stay in a hotel where there was a bar, but that there didn't seem any way around it.

Missed Many Faces.
She was sorry, she said, to see so many vacant seats at the board of the Grand Hotel. As a matter of fact, it was not a crowded house, but such were present lost not a syllable of what was perhaps one of the most remarkable discourses ever delivered from the stage of that playhouse. It was evident from the start that she was "ferocious" in the things she said. She shot ragged holes in the social system, upstated theology, ripped politics up the back, and with a well-primed charge of verbal dynamite blew up the government at Washington.

At 8:30 the curtain ran up, disclosing a table with a pitcher of light-brown Missouri river water on it, two chairs and a piece of scenery representing a street with two or three saloon signs over the sidewalk. The scenery was probably an accident. A moment later the famous hatcherer emerged from the wings, followed by a female attendant. Both stepped to the table and took a drink of the fluid in the pitcher; then the attendant seated herself in one of the chairs and Carrie turned to the footlights and began her lecture without a line of preface.

She scolded those present because others had stayed away, and then painted a word-picture of Omaha as a "hell-hole of iniquity."

She wore a severely plain brown suit that "hiked up" in front and hung straight behind. Fastened to her bosom was a small gold hatchet made into a pin.

Samples of Her Shots.
Here are some of her epigrams: I am a Heralder; I just take the bible literally and don't take it by halves. Oh, for radicals and fanatics! I wish we had more of 'em! We've got a lot of perjurers in office in Kansas. From — down they're a lot of rotten perjurers — don't scullions! One morning the Lord spoke to me, and He said: "You go to Cairo!" I was glad of it, because I had heard that Cairo was a very good place. This rum, curse-it seems like such a awful, terrible thing!

Go in your shops now and see where your sons are, women. The only commentary on Carrie Nation is Carrie Nation herself.

I am really a better smasher now than I ever was. I was so glad when I heard my young lady friend had cawled the mayor of Topeka.

I'd just like to give 'em a few knocks right on the top of their heads.

The noblest characteristic of a woman is her mother.

I'm a good witness; I've run up against the law a time or two.

This is a-l-i-a anarchy!

You women are nursing the adder in your bosoms that'll sting you.

Of course the lawyers want saloons—at least the generality of 'em do. It's all hell hell hell!

You men can vote it out and you women can smash it hell!

If there are any women in this house that'll go out and smash saloons tonight, I'll go with you!

At the close of the harangue the speaker announced that she had a lot of little hatchets made into pins that she would sell at 10 cents each; there were only a few left. She then installed herself in box A and for the next quarter of an hour was busy selling trophies of her prowess.

INSURANCE AGENTS PROTEST

They Insist That Companies Have No Reason for Advancing Omaha Rates.

The fire insurance agents of Omaha are not satisfied with the action of the companies they represent in advancing the rates in Omaha on commercial risks outside of those where the schedule rating has been applied.

There was a meeting of the Fire Underwriters association of the city yesterday afternoon, at which the conditions were discussed and it was decided that there was nothing in the local situation to warrant any advance, to say nothing of the 25 per cent which has been demanded by the companies by letters to their several agents in this territory.

It was decided that each agent should write a letter to his companies protesting against the advance in rates and showing that the conditions in Omaha are not such as to demand any such action. Several of the agents went so far as to say that they would refuse to write policies at advanced rates and some intimated that certain companies not in the insurance union would be found which would be willing to accept risks at the present rates.

Once before some of the agents of the city have succeeded in having companies rescind an order for an advance in rates. A few years ago some of the companies decided to advance rates upon dwelling houses and instructed their agent in this city to put the increase into effect. This agent absolutely refused to consider the matter and tendered his resignation rather than exact the advanced rates. He explained to the board of the companies and in reply the proposed rates were rescinded.

CRAWFORD IS EXALTED RULER

Omaha lodge of Elks held its annual election last night. It was the warmest contest ever occurred in the local lodge, and more members were present than had ever before assembled in the hall. Abbott, alternate.

All officers elected last night will be installed next Friday night, at which time the appointive officers will be announced.

The Rifle Supplies the Sword.
A half century ago the sword was considered the best known weapon in warfare, but it is now being discarded by the British soldiers, and the modern rifle is substituted. Many people throughout the country are also discarding old methods of trying to cure headache, nervousness, insomnia, indigestion and dyspepsia, and are using Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the old reliable remedy for these ailments. It is recommended by physicians, and a trial will convince you of its value.

The Quickest Cough Eradicator.
(From the Shortville, N. Y. Enterprise.)

This is the month that one takes cold so easily and quickly—necessitates that "backing" cough which is so persistently disagreeable, and we know by personal experience. And we also know that the quickest eradicator of such cough has been Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and which has been our staunch remedy for many years. It is so paid "puff," but merely a just recognition of an invaluable remedy for coughs, colds and all lung affections, and, like the editor, it has scores of other staunch friends in this town.

SHOWS JURY HOW TO SHAVE

Expert Demonstrates in Trial of Barber College Suit.

LATHERS THE "MUG" OF BAILIFF GREBE

Louis Objects, but Justice Potter Overrules Objection, as It is Night and No Other Mugs Available.

The goddess of justice on the courthouse dome bent far over and hung by her toes while she tried to peep into courtroom No. 2 last night in an effort to discover what was going on. Her marble eyes discerned a professional barber positioned in the middle of the room with a lathered shaving brush in his hand trying to show, by passes over an imaginary face, how shaving is correctly done—and when the goddess saw this she knew that the suit of John Studelska versus the Moler Barber College was on.

On the bench, austere and imposing, sat Charles F. Potter, ordinarily court stenographer for Judge Schlaugh, but between times a justice of the peace in Dundee. The jurors were all from the same suburb and were business men, the list including John E. Moorehead, insurance; W. F. Sweeney, a former United States marshal and large real estate owner; E. H. Westerfield, attorney; G. E. Ferry, insurance; A. H. Palmer, banker; W. S. Wedge, secretary of a builders' association.

The action was one of eighteen brought against the college by former students to recover the sums of from $40 to $100 they had paid to be taught the trade, their allegation being that they hadn't been taught it. The attorneys were four in number and the first name of each was John, the last names being Yoder and Battin for the plaintiff and Cooper and Boucher for the defense. A. B. Moler, proprietor of the college, had come from Chicago to be present.

May Be Drawn Out.
The hearing, which occupied until 10:45, and was then continued until 1:30 today, may last through many night sessions, as there are nearly twenty witnesses who may be called. The first was L. V. Guy, a professional barber, when the attorney for the defense accused of having interested himself on behalf of the barbers' union. His testimony was an effort to show that it requires three years for a man to become a competent barber, acquainted with face powders, rotary lathering movements, razor honing and the four standard styles of hair cut, to-wit, full cut, crown cut, half-crown cut and pompadour. In the course of the cross-examination he was furnished a mug, brush and soap and asked to demonstrate the science of his trade.

"I'll have to have another mug," he remarked.

"Oh, I guess that is big enough to put the lather in," said counsel for the defense.

"But I want a mug to put the lather on," answered the witness, emphasizing the last word.

"The court will order Mr. Grebe, the bailiff, to furnish another mug," commanded Justice Potter.

"Not on your life," responded the alarmed Louis. "My mug is sore enough from my own experimenting."

"Objection overruled. Witness will proceed to lather the mug of the bailiff from the mug of the defense, and near enough the mugs of the jurors for them to see, immediately after which this case will be continued until tomorrow that the court may take its own mug home in the protection of a well-lathered street car."

Gentlemen: A year ago I had a bad attack of malaria which affected my kidneys. In fact my entire system was troubled with excruciating pains in the back. Fortunately for me a friend, on whom I called, had a bottle of Warner's Safe Cure in the house and gave me a dose to try it. I felt the effects immediately and I ordered a large bottle and took it faithfully. I kept on improving and before the third bottle was used, I was well and felt as though new life and strength had been given me. My old vigor and enthusiasm had returned, as did my appetite. Your safe cure is indeed a true friend to suffering humanity and better than any other medicine I know of.
