From that time to 1898 it yeadually d of the evening, said: Some figures grossly misrepresenting the Not only has the schoolmistress crowded irrigation interests of this state have been given publicity in connection with the discussion regarding the irrigation measures now pending in congress. One instance is known where the charge was made that Nebrazka has only 148,000 acres of land cultivated under irrigation. Secretary Dobson of the State Board of Irrigation declares there are upward of 1,960,000 acres of land under irrigation. In Dawson county alone there are eleven irrigating canals, aggregating 175 miles. "We have no positive data as to the num ber of acres irrigated in Nebraska, but we can make an estimate that is very nearly correct," said Mr. Dobson. "The records of this office show that water has been granted by the State Board of Irrigation for nearly 4,000 miles of canal, covering about 1,700,000 acres. I would estimate th number of miles constructed at about 2,500. covering about 1,000,000 acres of land. The number of acres actually cultivated under prigation may be less than the figures given, but is still much greater than has been charged.

"In the North Platte valley water has been appropriated for nearly 500,000 acres of land. The last report of the state engineer shows that in Scotts Bluff county between 50,000 and 60,000 acres have been of the state. From that time to 1898 it gradually decimed to $42.61.
