

JENKS CHAMPIONS WOMAN

Presbyterian Divines Says Society Depends Upon Her.

URGES THAT SHE ENLARGE HER SPHERE

Considers That Care of the Home Aged Not and Should Not Occupy All Her Time.

"Woman never had given to her a greater work than when God gave her to the keeping of the home. Some give to man a superior place and he is the head of the home, but woman is the center and holds the key to the secret of success or failure," said Rev. Edward Hart Jenks in his sermon on "Cares and Duties of Woman" at the First Presbyterian church, Sunday morning. Rev. Jenks based his remarks on the lives of Martha and Mary as told in the tenth chapter of Luke, on Martha's devotion to home duties and Mary's worship of Christ.

"While Martha and Mary were women of a high type and both were full of grace, I believe if I were to ask the women of this congregation who it was they thought most of, they would say Martha, because her time was occupied in attending to the duties of the home.

"We should know that woman is not inferior. She does not enter the home to work, but men and women are linked together in the home for a higher purpose. If the home was to be made by one who could measure virtue by her ability to work, we would marry washerwomen and cooks, but we demand other qualities than ability to brew and spin, for home is the most sacred spot on earth and in it we see our ideals. Women are our bright angels that stand in our pathway keeping us from evil and when we leave the home we leave our hearts there. The cares of the women in the home are many and her responsibilities heavy, but these cares fall into insignificance when compared to the sweetest things which belong to the woman's life in the home.

She drives out squalor and puts in neatness, she brings in elevating things and drives out the low, and the church has no more sacred duty than this. Women can also make home a most disagreeable place, but the husband is also responsible for this. He comes home with a load of trouble, tells of his failures in business or politics, and of things that have gone wrong; the wife tells of the wrong doings of the children, the neighborhood scandal; the loads of both are laid on the table and both have a double load to carry. To make the ideal home man should be more sympathetic, take more interest in the making of a home, and bring strength and love into it. A sympathy can exist between husband and wife without making the loads of care double.

"But the care of the home is not all the duty of woman. She should go into the world and associate with men and women, giving them her ideas for the betterment of the world in bringing people closer to God. She should tell her ideals to society and make society better."

MAN. AND WHAT'S SAID OF HIM.

Rev. Hatch Preaches of Reputation and Character.

Rev. Frederick A. Hatch of Plymouth Congregational church, Sunday morning, took for his text the quotation from Genesis, "I heard said of thee," speaking on the theme "Reputation and Character." In part he said:

"Reputation is what is said of a man; character is what a man is. The reputation is often obtained by little merit and must be 'little deserving,' says Shakespeare. Reputation is the ornament of a house. Character is the substantial cornerstone and underpinning.

"A good name is of value, but in the effort to get a good name every man is exposed by envy, pride and malice. These glib-tongued women and one side man will blight the best reputation of a man in the city. Reputation to be fair must not be a one-sided judgment. If one has 'ill' reputation remember there are other sides before you judge or accept judgment. If one has a good reputation believe that. Goodness is not so abundant that it can afford to dilute it."

must have something of divineness in it. The divineness is not my creed, nor your creed, but Christ's is a man.

MISTAKES OF THE MILLIONAIRES.

Rev. Herring Thinks Rockefeller and Rhodes Errred.

At the First Congregation church, Sunday morning, the pastor, Rev. Hubert C. Herring, preached on the subject, "Carnegie Libraries and Rhodes Scholarships." The text was: "With all thy getting, get understanding."

"The text especially applies to this age, with its struggling for material wealth," said the pastor. "We think we understand the things that are now going on about us, the history that is now being made, but we are mistaken; we are too close to it. Only the campaign orator knows these things, and I'll not assume to that degree of omniscience."

"Among the rich men who have been devoting their millions to the public good are of late there is a wonderful agreement. Of the $65,000,000 which in the United States during the last few years has been given to the public, by far the larger part has been used in endowing educational institutions. This shows the trend of the times. It is toward the production of trained men and disciplined minds. The so-called success men, the Rockefellers, the Stanfords, the Carnegies, have diagnosed the life of the age, and have written their prescription, which says, 'You need education.'

"And this, in a way, is a noble object. It bodes good for the future. Instead of building up great family estates, these men prefer to perpetuate their names in another and better way. But, after all, there is almost as much to fear as to command in this course. If I were to send my sons to one of the great universities I would tell them carefully to study the life of the founder that they might avoid being like him. I regard such men as warnings, not as examples. When I read their articles in the magazines on how to succeed they make me ill. I do not think they have succeeded. These men have not touched with helpful hands the precise problems which God has laid at their door. They have not taught the people how to live together in unity and love. They have said nothing on the subject of how to allay the discontent of labor, or how to secure pure government in state and city. On the contrary they have made governmental functions to serve their private ends. The spirit of brotherhood is the indispensable principle for which we are striving, and in these Napoleonics of finance had devoted their millions to its advancement and could stand before them with uncovered head and greet them as benefactors of their race. As it is, I cannot say that they have correctly diagnosed our particular ailment."

DR. CONLEY LIKES GRANT'S METHOD

He Proposes that Christianity Accept Only Unconditional Surrender.

A decided stand against promoting the projected universal house of prayer in Washington was taken by Dr. J. W. Conley in his Sunday morning sermon at the First Baptist church on "Opportunities and Adversaries."

He considered compromise one of the adversaries of religion and argued for the "fight-it-out-along-this-line" spirit in Christian conquest, saying:

"I believe the twentieth century will see the grandest struggle ever known in the religious arena, Christianity battling against all the old forms, with their dark superstitions and shrewd leaders. The conquest will not be easy nor short, but it must be made that Christ may rule over all."

"It needs much more than the heatheism being as well off unconvinced as converted, and hear it urged that he be left alone. How can you reconcile such a position with the religion of the Christ? It couldn't be done in the first days of the Pantheon, when it was proposed to 'put Christ with the other gods,' and it can't be done now. We say, as the persecuted Christians said, that Christ must rule all and be given for three games or better.

IN COMPUTING THE INDIVIDUAL AVERAGES, THE PLAYERS ARE DIVIDED INTO TWO CLASSES, THOSE WHO HAVE ROLLED THIRTY-SIX GAMES OR MORE, AND THOSE WHO HAVE ROLLED LESS THAN THAT NUMBER, THE LATTER NOT BEING ENTITLED TO PARTICIPATE IN PRIZES. THE FIRST NINETEEN NAMES IN THE LONGER LIST ARE THOSE ON THE ROLL OF HONOR, HAVING AN AVERAGE OF 300 PINS FOR THREE GAMES OR BETTER.

Individual Averages.

JOHNSON CITY, Ia., April 20.—(Special Telegram.)—The Iowa High school base ball team met defeat at the hands of the team from the Sioux City High school today in the one-sided score of 12 to 2. The game was played at Woodland park before a large crowd. The Iowa team put up an interesting contest notwithstanding the one-sidedness, and the visitors put up a game right throughout the nine innings. The Sioux City team started with a steady game in the box, but received very poor support, both the infield and the outfield failing to back up the pitcher. The Sioux City boys had their eyes on in good style and their team work was of high order. The game was won by the Sioux City team, after a steady game in the box, but received very poor support, both the infield and the outfield failing to back up the pitcher.
