How Judge Read Proposes to Test an Alleged Counterfeit Hair Tonic.

Hair Tonic.

Judge Read has found a way out of a perplexing problem, but he doesn't know yet whether the supreme court would sustain him in taking the position that he wishes to. In his court for several days there has been dragging on a suit brought by a hair tonic company against a local dealer who, it alleges, has been counterfeiting its elixir and selling the same in its bottles at its price. The dealer denies any counterfeiting and the tables of the court room have been given over to general exhibit of the goods. The judge sees no other way to make certain of the matter than to test the goods that are alleged to be fraudulent with the goods that are genuine and be governed by the result. He has a full minute covering himself, and at first was at a loss to know how to make the tests, but from this perplexity he has been saved by Earl Bone, his bailiff, along the dome of whose brain pantry the golden locks are dying out and off like young chicks in a cholera district. The judge proposes to apply the genuine elixir to one side of the clearing and the alleged counterfeit to the other, the result to decide the case for him.

Purify the blood and put the system in order for summer work by using at this time a short course of PRICKLY ASH BITTERS; it is the greatest blood purifier on earth.

Announcements of the Theaters.

The contributors of entertainment at the Orpheum this week are putting on a bill that is proving a strong magnet, drawing big audiences, whose enthusiasm manifests a strong approbation. Two monologues which in no wise conflict or detract from each other are furnished by Lew Bloom and Lester Haskell. Les Troubadours Troubadours have certainly scored the vocal hit of the season by giving vaudeville patrons a pleasing sample of the kind of music that one is accustomed to hear only in grand opera. Variety is added by the Harmony Four, a quartet which renders some vocal and instrumental music and comedy; the Dancing Dawson; Oscar Brothers, gladiatorial gymnasts; Dooley and Fowley, singing comedians and pictures by the kinodrome. The regular Saturday matinee will be given this afternoon. Fanny Rice, the popular little star, will head the bill next week.

The opening bill of Ferris' Grace Hayward company at Boyd's Sunday will be the thrilling Russian melodrama, "The Slaves of Russia." It will be given at the matinee, night and Monday night performances. Tuesday night, Wednesday matinee and night and Thursday night Sol Smith Russell's quaint comedy, "Peaceful Valley," will be the offering.

Kathryn Kidder is sure to be greeted by one of the largest and most fashionable audiences of the season, when she appears here at Boyd's on May 7 and 8 in her revival of David Garrick's sparkling old comedy, "The Country Girl." Miss Kidder has gradually risen to a place in the front rank of American actresses. Her greatest success is reported to be her impersonation of Peggy, the central heroine of "The Country Girl." This play is one of the classics of the English stage. It has stood the test of centuries and every revival has met with much success.
