Case of Smallpox Calls Attention to One of City's Pressing Needs.

FINALLY TAKEN INTO PRIVATE FAMILY

Clara Lewis Finds Herself in a Distressing Situation and Authorities Are Sorely Perplexed for a Time.

The need of a detention hospital for female smallpox patients was again made manifest to the city health authorities yesterday.

Mrs. Clara Lewis, a young woman employed as a domestic in the family of John Sneath, 1272 East Pierce street, was found to be suffering from the disease. Her employers, on her return to the house yesterday morning, after visiting with friends over Sunday night, finding her condition, refused to allow her to come in the door.

The girl, it was reported to the police, walked the streets for over an hour, uncertain what to do, until some one directed her to the residence of Dr. Christensen on Upper Broadway.

Dr. Christensen provided a place where the girl could rest until the health authorities could provide for her. The health authorities, however, were for a time at a loss to know what to do, having no place where they could send her.

Chief of Police Tibbits, City Solicitor Snyder and City Physician Houghton got together, and it was finally decided to place her in the care of a family named Nelson at 1531 West Broadway, who are quarantined for the same disease.

Learning of the unfortunate girl's plight, Mr. Nelson at once consented to take the young woman into his house, and she was taken there by the city physician.

The Sneath family, having been exposed, was placed under quarantine for seventeen days.

COSTS OF SUIT PILING UP

Small Fortune Expended by Litigants in the Case of Doyle Against Burns.

The costs taxed to date in the celebrated mining suit of James Doyle against James P. Burns, president of the Portland Gold Mining company, of Colorado, amount to $7,832.20.

This sum represents the regular court costs and witness fees, but none of the other attendant expenses, including the services of several prominent attorneys on both sides.

Both Doyle and Burns also expended large sums of money during the progress of the suit for the hotel expenses of their numerous witnesses. This last item alone amounted to several thousand dollars.

Among the costs taxed the fees and mileage of Doyle's witnesses amounted to $4,750, while those for Burns amounted to $1,471.80. The regular court costs, including $1,200 for the transcript of the evidence, were $1,611.40.

The two trials cost the county something over $1,000 for the pay of jurors, while all that could be taxed up was $6 for each trial, a total of $12. No matter how long the trial of a suit may last, all that the law permits to be taxed up in the case for the expense of the jury is $6. The two trials of the Doyle-Burns suit occupied forty-four days.

Doctor Under Arrest.

Dr. H. L. Spaulding, an eye and ear specialist of this city, is under arrest on suspicion of being connected with the death of Jessie Frelburg of Madison county, who died, it is alleged, from an illegal operation a few days ago. Frank Crow was arrested in Madison county several days ago on a charge of complicity in the crime. Dr. Spaulding denies any connection with the affair. The girl had been in Des Moines and had returned home before she died.

Another Arrest in Murder Case.

A second arrest growing out of the alleged murder of Frank Lavelleur, a farmer residing near Newton, was made this morning. Henry Meyer, an older brother of Herman Meyer, the 14-year-old stepson who was arrested Saturday night, is now charged with complicity in the crime, and it is said a third arrest will be made. Lavelleur's body was found in the debris resulting from the burning of a small shed on his farm, his skull having been crushed in two places by some blunt instrument. It has been shown that Mrs. Lavelleur and her son quarreled often and violently with Lavelleur, which fact is chiefly responsible for the arrest. The officers also claim that Herman Meyer, the younger son, made conflicting statements in explaining the tragedy and that he admitted having set fire to the barn, but claimed it was accidental. No member of the family admitted having ever noticed the absence of Lavelleur up to the time his remains were discovered by neighbors.

The proprietor estimates his loss at $2,800, half covered by insurance. The Marshall Dental company owns the building and it was fully insured.
