UNITT RESTS HIS CASE

It is Now Up to Miller's Attorney in the Contest for County Clerkship.

The contestant in the Unitt-Miller contest in district court of the county clerkship rested at 2 yesterday afternoon and the incumbent moved to dismiss, which motion was overruled. The incumbent was then given until Thursday at 2 p. m. to amend his answer to the petition, if he so desires, and in the meantime the court takes a recess.

The judge ruled that the votes to be thrown out because of affidavits not in strict compliance with the law, of which there are about 200, must be pro rated and this may be disastrous to Miller unless his attorney takes a new tack, as Unitt, in this last contention, attacked only those precincts wherein Miller was strongest.

The dramatic version of this powerful story she is using was made by Lester Lonergan, leading man for the Woodward stock company.
