MARKETS ARE FIRM, BUT FEW CHANGES

Cotton Goods Retain Strength and a Shortage in Many Popular Lines is Feared Because of Righ Price of Cotton.

The rains of last week, which visited practically all sections of the country tributary to this market, undoubtedly had a very beneficial effect upon all kinds of business, both wholesale and retail. There was no mistaking the fact that retailers were beginning to get revous before the rains and specially was that true of country retailers. It is stated that a great many of them wrote to their jobbers telling them that if they did not have rain within the next few days they would cancel their orders, but the rain came, so that none of the orders were canceled and now confiorders but the rain came, so that none of the orders were canceled and now confidence in future business is restored and every one is looking forward to a very successful season. In fact, jobbers and manufacturers in practically all lines report their advance orders as being much better than they were a year ago at this time and also larger than they anticipated. At once business is, of course, quiet in a great many lines, owing to the fact that this is rather a between season period. In a short time, however, it is expected that sorting-up orders will come rolling in from all directions and if conditions remain favorable local jubbers expect to do a big re-order business.

favorable local jobbers expect to do a big re-order business.

So far as the markets are concerned there have been almost no changes of importance during the week under review. Practically all lines are in a good, strong position, but quotable changes are very zere. There is a strong undertone to the general market and so far as can be told all indications seem favorable for continued firm, active markets.

Sugar May Go Higher.

sugar market is in very much the

The sugar market is in very much the same position it was a week ago. That is, prices are being held very firm and as the consumption is increasing at a rapid rate higher prices in the near future are being freely predicted. Raws are also firmly held at the recent advance.

There has been no quotable change in the coffee market since last report, but the feeling is weak and the prices of a week ago are barely maintained.

In dried fruits, evaporated appies advanced sharply and in fact it is claimed that present prices are almost prohibitory. This sharp advance has been brought about by the scarcity of spot stock and it is thought that there will be no decline until the new crop arrives on the market.

The market on rolled outs eased off the first of the week somewhat, but toward the close it firmed up so that the loss was just about regained. Other lines of farinaceous goods are in just about the same position they were a week ago.

Pickles are beginning to attract considerable attention owing to the fact that stocks are well cleaned up and the market has advanced sharply. There seems to be no doubt in the minds of those best posted but what still higher prices will prevail before the new crops appear.

There is no change to report in the canned goods situation, as all lines are being held firm at the quotations of a week ago.

In regard to the condition of trade local ago. In regard to the condition of trade local grocery jobbers say there is a good, active demand for practically all lines and that there continues to be a good increase over the corresponding time of last year.

House Trade Very Quiet.

House trade was very quiet last week, ith local dry goods jobbers and in fact was the duliest week of the year to date, with local dry goods jobbers and in fact it was the dullest week of the year to date, so far as current business was concerned. Trade in fall goods, however, is progressing in very satisfactory manner and it is stated in some quarters that as many goods for future shipment have been sold up to date as were sold last year up to July I. The distribution has extended to all lines and includes blankets, fiannels, underwear, domets, duck-lined goods, hosiery and dress goods.

According to authentic reports received from the country retailers as a rule are experiencing a very fair demand. The few hot days have served as a reminder that summer weather is close at hand, so that people are making their purchases in spite of the fact that there has hardly been as much warm weather as usual up to this time. Jobbers are not looking for any great amount of re-order business this month, but they expect it to start in next month. There are no changes in market conditions to report, but cotton goods retain their strength and it is feared there will their strength and it is feared there will be a shortage of many popular lines be-fore the end of the season. Mills do not seem to be piling up their goods and show no inclination to make more than are ac-tually sold because of the high price of cotton.

Hardware Market Stendy.

All lines of hardware are in just about the same position they were a week ago. There is a good, firm feeling and all indications point to a continued firm, active market. There are of course a few minor fluctuations, but none of enough importance to be worthy of mention.

Trade is moving along at a very satisfactory rate, but aside from the difficulty being experienced in getting seasonable goods there is no special feature to the trade. Screen doors, wire cloth, poultry netting and all such lines are scarce and it is not so much a question of price as it is of getting the goods at any figure. The demand for all seasonable lines has been unusually heavy for the last several days and the amount of goods being shipped out of Omaha is far in excess of last year or of any previous year.

Good Demand for Leather Goods.

Good Demand for Leather Goods.

Good Demand for Leather Goods.

Hoot and shoe jobbers are also enjoying a nice trifde. Quite a few merchants have been in the city and have placed nice orders for this time of the year. Trade in the country is not reported as being exactly rushing, but at the same time there is a good steady demand and the outlook for the future is very encouraging. The merchants who have been in the city this week all seem to be in the best of spirits and judging from the size of their orders they are preparing for a good business through the spring and summer. Low shoes continue to sell freely, and it is now certain that more low shoes will be sold this year than ever before.

Fall orders are still being received and Receipts. Shipments.

Fall orders are still being received and all the local houses report that they now have more advance orders on hand than they had at this time last year. When it is remembered that last year was a record-breaker it is seen that this year's big increase is all the more remarkable.

The rubber goods trade of course is very light. There have been several good rains, but it requires a prolonged rain to bring rubber goods into demand. About all jobbers hope for now is that retailers will sell out what stock they have on hand so they will be ready to buy new stocks another season.

Fruits and Produce.

Fruits and Produce.

Trade with fruit jobbers has shown considerable improvement during the last week. There has been a much better supply of strawberries, as well as of fresh vegetables, than at any previous time this season. Although there was a liberal demand prices took quite a drop, as will be seen from the quotations given in another column. The strawberries that are now coming forward are from northern Arother column. The strawberries that are now coming forward are from northern arkansas and are considered much better than the stock that was on the market a few days ago. The berries are now in good shipping condition and are quoted at $2.56.250 per 24-quart case.

The egg market was hardly as high on the average last week as it was the week before, but that is perhaps due to some extent to the fact that the stock is in hardly as good condition. Poultry has been scarce all the week and prices have been correspondingly high. Butter eased off te some extent, the first of the week, but the feeling was a little firmer toward the close of the week.

*NEW YORK, May 10.—The effect of the strike order of the anthracits mine workers seemed to kill speculative interest in the stock market today. Prices went lower in some cases, the volume of speculation was trivial and was rather less in the coalers than in some other departments of the list.

There were some large individual selling orders in Union Pacific, St. Paul and a number of other prominent stocks in which a speculative party has been active recently, seemingly on the assumption that
