Last week saw the first of the really large out-of-door affairs in the lawn fete given on Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. To begin with, there middle of September. tees would over crowd her yard, and then there is not only room, but a place for everybody and their fads.

The woman who loves frills and attitudes of certain corners of every veranda and lawn that nothing else in the whole list of out-of-door settings could accomplishshe and the languid man-and of course, no one would expect her to engage in those things that attract the girl, who, for reasons best known to herself, prefers white muslin and simple dimitles or some other more or less intricate gown that admits of its wearer's moving about freely and of other peoples doing likewise.

And then, it fairly abounds in possibilities for those very young men and the older ones they would imitate, to whom there is nothing new or interesting under the sun. There is so much room to walk aboutalone and look impressively solitary.

But the informality of the affair is what chiefly commends it to the majority, the informality and exclusiveness of it, and it is probable that among the young people at least, the lawn fete will retain a popular place all season.

The formal opening of the season at the Field club was a gala occasion, indeed, and marked by a large attendance of those interested in various contests of the afternoon among them being many who have this year transferred their membership from the Country club. For those not interested in the out-of-door program, there was dancing indoors or conversation parties on the veranda. The feature of the evening was the informal dance which was largely attended. the afternoon's crowd being supplemented by those unable to come out until after business hours. Socially, the opening was most successful, the club promising to be even more popular this year than last.

Among those giving dinner parties are: Mrs. Heyden, Dr. Sumney, Mr. W. H. Wood, Dr. Van Camp, Mr. W. F. Thomas, Mr. McGrath, Rev. H. S. Sussman, Mr Rooney, and Mr. Brome.

Owing to its being a holiday there was an unusually large gathering at the Country club on Friday, there being several dinner parties and an informal dance in the evening. Yesterday afternoon was attended by usual crowd, which did the things that they usually do. Among those who entertained dinner parties were: Mr. Phil Dodge, Mrs. T. W. Taliaferro, Mr. A. F. Patrick, Miss Dewey, Mr. F. J. Hamilton Dr. Bridges, Mrs. Wilhelm, Mr. Hal Yates, Mr. Mozier Colpetzer and Mr. E. M. Moraman, jr.
