Wattles seized him and tried to drag him down the hall to a place of safety, but Kent had become so crazed that it was almost impossible to do anything with him. Has to Run for Life.

Wattles was finally compelled to run for his life, as the flames were already scorching his clothing. He ran to a window on the south side of the building, across which were iron bars. Wattles managed to tear two or three of these from their fastenings and, with two other men, who had followed him, climbed out on the sill. They were seen by the firemen, who called to them to remain where they were and they would save them. A ladder was run up as high as possible and the two men who were with Wattles were taken down. He became crazed with excitement, and not waiting for the return of the firemen sprang for a net which some men were holding on the midewalk beneath. He fell partly in it and partly on the sidewalk and sustained injuries which probably will cause his death in a short time

Kent was left lying on the floor of his room and evidently died of suffocation. His body was badly burned after death. Three hours after the outbreak of the fire he was found on the floor of his room one leg-being burned to a crisp and the head burned off. He was identified by means of his clothing.

Has Marvelous Escape.

In a room on the second floor was Dr. William Runker of Chicago, who some time ago lost one of his legs in an acci- severely hurt and a number are reported dent. He was in bed when the fire broke out and on going to the door of his room found escape in that direction cut off. Hobbling to the window he climbed out on the window sill. He was without clothing and when he saw the great crowd below he crawled back into the room and came out again wrapped in his clothing. He was soon taken down by the firemen and when being carried away in an ambulance said that he would rather have been injured than have come out through that window undressed. Later his wooden leg was found and restored to him. He escaped without injury of any sort.

A scene that wrought to the pitch of madness the great crowd that had gathered around the building was enacted at a fourth story window on the north side. Across this window was a heavy wire screen and on the outside of the screen were iron bars running parallel to the sill. The space between these bars was too small to allow the passage of even a small boy and behind them were gathered s crowd of men, whose numbers were afterward found to between twenty-five and thirty.

Only Way to Get Out. Escape in other directions was impossible, for fire filled all the halls and was steadily eating its way toward the window at which the men were standing. The one chance for life for that crowd of men lay largest hotels, might have developed into through that screened and barred window, The men closest to the screen tore and tugged at it in a valu effort to tear it from its fastenings and the men behind them fought madly to get close enough to the acreen to fasten their fingers in it. So flercely did the prisoners tug at the screen that from the street below streams of blood could be seen trickling from lacerated hands and flowed over the window sill.

A number of the men at the window were in straight jackets and manacles and those, not being able to help themselves or others, were the wildest of all in their frantic efforts to break through the bars. The crowd in the street watching the desperate situation of the men behind the scene was simply an insane meb. They shouted all sorts of commands and directions at the men and gave orders to the firemen, who were doing all that men could do to get through the bars from the outside.

That any of the men escaped is owing to the work of W. E. Davis of Cedar Rapids. Insurance on house, $600, on furniture, fa., a patient in the institution. He induced the men to cease their disconnected pulling at the screen and to unite their efforts. SHRINERS FIND AN OASIS Four men at first took hold of the scree and in almost a minute the crowd behind them pushed them away and before the four men could get to the screen again they were compelled to fight with their fists. Davis managed to get his men to the window again and after a few desperate pulls thay managed to tear down a portion of the screen.

So quickly did the men behind them spring to grasp the second bar that those who had torn down the first were badly tramped on before they could rise.

Another bar was soon torn away and the path to safety was opened. Then a new danger assailed the prisoners. The crowd behind, hearing that at last the way was open, pushed forward with such haste that those nearest the window were nearly forced through to meet death on the sidewalk four stories below. The men at the windows fought to keep their places until the firemen could raise ladders and the men in the rear, some of whom were already being reached by the flames, fought

Finally Breaks Down,

The first man through was Dr. C. A. Anderson of Chicago. No ladders were in front of the window and Anderson's one hope was to reach the platform of a fireescape in front of the window just west of where he was. He hesitated for an instant and then sprang for the fire-escape, clutched it and was safe.

The next man through was G. S. Gott of Levergue, Ill. Anderson was so much exhausted that he was not able to drag Gott after him and Gott was so badly burned that he was not able to make the leap himself. He crouched on the window Fight Between Rival Companies. The Corliss cable bill, which will probably be taken up tomorrow under a rule which the committee on rules of the house will report, and debate will continue until Thursday or Friday, will not meet with the opposition anticipated unless conditions materially changed. Colonel Hepburn of Iowa, who has always opposed a government cable, is at home attending his congressional convention, while Representative J. S. Sherman of New York, who is also absent, is not expected to return to Washington until the last of the week. With this strength absent opponents of the Corliss measure are in somewhat of a chaotic condition. Representations were made to Speaker Henderson today regarding these conditions and asking that consideration of the bill be postponed until later. The speaker, however, stated to those speaking for the opposition that the decks had to be cleared for the Philippine civil government latter building occupied by the bank was damaged only by water. serves from the Interior department to the Agricultural department and to authorize the creation of such reserve of game and fish preserves.

President Roosevelt, in his annual mes sage, recommended such a measure. The minority of the public lands committee offered a substitute for the bill a measure which eliminated that portion of the bill which transfers the reserves to the Agricultural department. Messrs, Lacey of Iowa, Kleberg of Texas, Perkins of New York and Williams of Mississippi spoke in favor of the bill. Mesers. The resolution was adopted without division.

The house then under the order made last week, proceeded with the consideration of the bill "to the transfer of certain forest eserves to the control of the Department of Agriculture, and to authorize game and fish preserves in forest reserves."

Mr. Lacey of Iowa, in charge of the bill, explained the growing interest in forest reserves as a means of conserving the water supply and of the protection of game. The bill provides that all forest reserves heretofore set apart and such as may hereafter be set apart should be transferred to the Department of Agriculture for administration. The present reserves, however, are not to be transferred until the boundaries shall have been established.

Mr. Mondell of Wyoming, who signed the minority report against the bill, opposed the measure. He argued that the transfer of the forest reserves now under the Interior department was an impracticable and radical change of policy which would lead to a ruction between the Interior and a member of the Modern Woodmen of Agricultural departments and lead to the creation of many new offices. There are now forty-one reserves, containing 46,000,- at Homer. 000 acres. These reserves are now open to entry under the mineral laws. They also contain thousands of persons living on perfected or unperfected entries made inder the land laws, and he argued that all the public land and legal questions arising would have to be settled by the Interior department and lead to endless conflict with the Agricultural department.
