

HARD COAL OUT OF SIGHT

Local Supply Nearly Exhausted and No Prospect of Renewal.

EFFECTS OF STRIKE GENERALLY FELT

Mine Owners Expect to Deal with Public as Arbitrarily as with Miners and Outlook is Not Encouraging.

The anthracite coal supply in Omaha is becoming so short that jobbers have in some instances been compelled to refuse wholesale orders, and the reports from the coal fields are by no means reassuring.

The manager adds: "There seems to be no new information about the strike; both sides are evidently determined in their position and it seems to be a test of endurance."

Local Situation Discouraging.

Locally the visible supply has been reduced by sales to consumers who have decided to lay in their fall supply at present prices. The rule adopted last spring as to the wholesale price of hard coal still in force, which makes a low price in April in Chicago, advancing by stages of 10 cents a month per ton until September.

TROUBLE WITH POLICEMAN

Dr. Solomon and Officer Sawyer Clash and Police Court Trial Follows.

Dr. J. J. Solomon was fined $5 and costs in police court Friday morning for disorderly conduct and will appeal the case. The hearing lasted several hours and many witnesses were examined. Dr. Solomon runs a drug store at 1837 Vinton street and was arrested Wednesday on a charge of being drunk, and according to the testimony of Policeman Sawyer, the doctor put up a strenuous fight before he would consent to go to the patrol box. The officer testified that he had gone to Solomon's drug store to get the name and address of a little girl who had been run over by a bicycle and that after leaving the store the doctor followed him down the street and asked for his name. After Sawyer had written his name for Solomon the latter again ran after him and wanted him to come back and swear that the signed name was his, and when this was refused, the officer said, Solomon created a disturbance and was arrested. Solomon denies the officer's story.

WANTS STREETS KEPT CLEAN

City Engineer Calls Police Chief's Attention to Some Dead Letter Ordinances.

"I see that the chief of police is preparing to enforce the ordinance against expectorating on steps and approaches to buildings, etc.," said City Engineer Rosewater. "That is all very well, but there are other ordinances that are now virtually dead letters so far as police regulation is concerned which could be enforced to better advantage. For example, there is the ordinance against the hauling of garbage through the streets in vehicles that leak and strew the refuse along the pavements. What is the use of our sweeping the streets if they are to be littered up in this way? Then there is the ordinance against dumping store sweepings in the gutters, and against dumping weeds cut from lots in the residence districts in the streets, to be swept into the catch basins and clog the sewers."

"The ordinance against hauling garbage through the streets in vehicles imperfectly constructed for the purpose has never been declared invalid by the courts. It is still in force, but it is not enforced. The courts have always held that the hauling of garbage must be subjected to regulation, that it may not become a public nuisance. I think it will be well enough to regulate expectorating after some of these more serious matters have been regulated."

An ordinance against expectorating on sidewalks, on stairways, approaches to buildings, in street cars, etc., was passed by the city council about nine years ago, but was afterwards amended by eliminating the word sidewalks. All the remainder of the ordinance is still in force.

Announcements of the Theaters.

In the coming of Sorrentino's Banda Rossa to the Creighton Orphanum is to hear one of the world's greatest concert bands—the first in all Italy, beyond question, and a worthy rival of the best in this country. The band comprises forty-five men who are garbed in brilliant red coats. Their appearance upon a concert platform is interesting in the extreme, and being southerners and from a land where music is a part of everyday life, they play with an appealing force not to be had from any other nationality. "Untamed steeds of melody," they have been called. A large part of their program is devoted to operatic selections, in which they are said to be absolutely supreme. Sorrentino, the conductor of the band, is a musician to his finger tips. He is the composer of "Willow Grove" and other popular marches, but his best work is in the arrangement of operatic music for his band. He has an enormous library, and his concerts will be found to be very different from anything that has been heard here before.

SOCIALIST LABOR PARTISANS

They Will Meet Early in July to Outline Campaign for the Year.

On the first Sunday in July there will be a meeting of the socialist labor party of the state for the purpose of outlining a plan of campaign for the coming year. The socialist labor party here co-operates with the socialists of Europe and its demands in this country are practically identical with the demands of the socialist parties of Germany, France, Belgium and England. It has no use for temporary expedients, but goes the whole way, asking for nothing less than an overthrow of the entire existing social system.

The socialist labor party is not numerically strong, but, according to the statements of members of the Omaha section, plans will be adopted to counteract the work of the Wayland socialists and to show that the socialist labor party is the only simon-pure article.

MANAWA BAND VISITS CITY

Plays at Several Points on Farnam Street and in Bee Building Court.

Lured from retirement by the bright sun which beamed on Omaha for the first time in several days the Manawa band came over the river Friday morning and gave the residents of this city an opportunity to hear the kind of music which it is playing this year.

The band is under the leadership of A. A. Covall. It is composed of forty pieces and shows the result of careful instruction and the advantage which comes from much practice. It visited several points on Farnam street, and closed with a concert in the court of the Bee building.

DRIVER KILLED BY A TRAIN

Thomas Donnelly, a Wood Chopper, Struck on Crossing by Missouri Pacific Local.

Thomas Donnelly died at Immanuel hospital shortly before noon Friday from the effect of injuries received at 10:30 through being struck by an incoming Missouri Pacific passenger train at Thirtieth and Boyd streets. Donnelly was driving south and apparently did not see the train, which was coming down the hill at a high rate of speed. His wagon was fairly on the track when the train hit it. Donnelly was thrown about 100 feet and terribly injured. One horse was killed outright and the other so injured that it was later shot.

Donnelly lived about a mile north of Calhoun. He was a woodchopper, about 55 years old and unmarried.
