state.

Reports to the State Weather and Crop ureau continue to be discouraging, although the latter part of the past week has indicated settled weather and conditions favorable for growing. The trouble with the corn crop is that the plowing season is past and the farmers must depend on the corn itself to grapple with the weeds. The actual decrease in acreage, as reported, has been great. The loss of acreage up to the first day of the month was many million acres, and since that time the loss has been greater. But the corn that is on high land is generally reported by the crop correspondents to be in good condition. Persons traveling about the state say that the greatest damage has been done in the central part of the state, in the valleys of the Des Moines, Raccoon, Skunk, Boone, Iowa and Cedar rivers. The wheat barvest should now be on in full, but the weather has retarded the ripening

In January, 1901, the congregation purchased the parsonage at 117 Fairview avenue, which has since been the residence of the pastor.
