FREAK GAME AT VINTON PARK

Willie Billy McGill Gets One of His Old Time Pitching Streaks.

OMAHA MASSACRES THE DISTILLERS

Contest Marked by Bum Pitching, Heavy Hitting and Curious Capers of an Incompetent Umpire.

Something happened to Willie Billie McGill at Vinton Street park Tuesday, and when the police had cleared the crowd away it was found that Omaha had devoured the Distillers from Peoria 19 to 3 in their first game. It resulted from an avalanche of hits that came early and stayed late, encouraged by a few choice errors here and there. The slaughter was unanimous, and of general participation. Never before in one game have all the men scored hits, or have all scored runs. Today they did both, and some of them three or four.

Three thousand people sat spellbound for three innings. Then they woke up, and some of the impatient ones went home. The rest staid to be amused and to watch the Omahas fatten their batting averages. In the first inning two hits and two errors netted four runs. In the next five hits made six runs. Willie Billie was compelled to sweat through one more ordeal, and the result was three hits and three runs. Then Wilson took pity on McGill and allowed him to quit. It was no use tiring out another pitcher, so Maloney, the collegian, was called in from left field to throw straight ones at the plate, while Schafstall took the garden. Ten hits and thirteen runs had been batted off Willie. The fielder's five innings in the box resulted in ten more hits and six more runs.

Brown Has Mercy.

Meanwhile Brown had pitched six perfect innings, allowing only four hits, but with the score 19 to 0 then and the contest a farce he couldn't keep grave any longer, and let them to him for a few bunched ones. So Peoria took three scores in the seventh, but the tallies were gifts.

Umpire Roe added greatly to the general ludicrousness of the situation, and James Rourke says he will never umpire here again. Some umpire will be agreed upon between now and today's game, probably Buck Keith. Rourke says that if Sexton cannot supply a good man he can hustle one for himself. In the fourth inning Roe fiercely ordered the police to put O'Brien off the grounds for some reason, but a patrolman grabbed Willie Billie by mistake, or because he was smaller than O'Brien and threw him out unceremoniously, while McGill smiled broadly. Just as Willie disappeared through the gate Roe saw his mistake, and called him back, but he apparently thought O'Brien had gone, for he didn't make any more fuss about him, although the second baseman played right behind him all the rest of the game.

One of Roe's Freaks.

Another time a pitched ball hit Carter in the thigh and well nigh knocked him off his feet. Roe said "two balls," and refused to let him take a base. There were other instances less apparent, but equally flagrant.

Dolan was out of the game with a sore first finger on his throwing hand, received Monday on Barber's grounder. Billy Wilson looked strange on first base for the Distillers. Score:

Milwaukee Beats Minneapolis.
