

TRIBUTE TO LATE DR. HIRST

Dedication of First Methodist Church at Memorial Services.

SPEAKERS HONOR THEIR DEAD PASTOR

His Praises Sounded in Sincere Praise and Hymns in Music Arranged Especially for the Occasion.

Those who had loved and revered Dr. A. C. Hirst as a pastor and as a man gathered at the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning to pay a last tender tribute to his memory, and the edifice was crowded with those who could bear personal testimony to his kindly, unselfish, Christian influence.

Several pastors of other congregations in the city were present to participate in the service. Rev. D. K. Tindall of Trinity Methodist church led in the Lord's Prayer; Rev. C. N. Dawson of the Seward Street Methodist church and Rev. C. C. Clissell of the Hancock Park Methodist church read scriptures.

Among other notable members of the musical program were the anthems, "Wrestle the Departed," in which the voice of the new contralto, Miss Nora McCabe, was especially excellent; the chant, "De Profundis," and the processional hymn, "O Paradise."

He exemplified the sincerity of his promise in speech by no less than two hands. Now, so quickly as he found his place in the church life and daily life of his people, old and young, he was ready to take up his cross and follow.

Rev. Clinton Douglas of Albion, Neb., preached at the First Congregational church Sunday morning and was listened to by a fair-sized congregation. The song service was especially interesting on this occasion.

Rev. Douglas based his remarks upon the text from Acts: "For there stood beside me this night the angel of God, whose I am and whom I serve." He described graphically the story of the great storm on the Mediterranean sea, and how, after four days and nights a ship was driven before it, how those on board expected to be lost; how after all hope had been given up and the ship on the point of being deserted God saved it and those on board in answer to the prayers of Paul.

Rev. Mann suggests a remedy for his of life. Rev. Newton Mann of Unity church leaves in a day or two to spend the summer in the British isles, the trip to Liverpool to be made in a freighter in order that he may be as long upon the water as possible, and he announced yesterday that there would probably be no services until the last Sunday in September or the first in October.

These words are particularly significant, since he did indeed rest upon the mountain from whence he saw the land he had spread before him, where each of us was occupied in the sowing and the harvesting of those fields set apart for our service.

ON A WALK AROUND JERUSALEM.

Rev. D. K. Tindall Delivers Instructive Lecture on the Theme.

"A Walk Around Jerusalem" was the theme of Rev. D. K. Tindall last evening at the Trinity Methodist church. He said in part: "We will begin our walk at the southeast corner of the city—at the valley of Hinnom. Here is a deep and frightful looking basin, remaining eastward. It has a awful history. It was once the dumping ground of the vegetable and animal refuse of the city. Here worms ever ate and the fire never died; and it was about this place that children were burned in wicker blocks in which horrible practices Solomon, to please his heathenish wife, took part. This is what came to Solomon from being unequally yoked in marriage. All this that was seen about Hinnom was indeed a fit symbol of future punishment. A veritable Gethsemane. Whatever be the nature or length of the hell of the future, there is enough of hell in this world to create an earthquake of feeling in every heart. Near Hinnom is the Mount of Evil Counsel, where it is said that in the house of Calphas the death of our Saviour was plotted. We now come to Aceldama, where the confessions of Judas Iscariot committed suicide to get rid of his torment. Nature has left this place in all its barren and forbidding aspects, planting no flower or growing no tree to relieve it of its merriment. This case of Judas shows us his cannot be committed with impunity. The cunning tricks of the patriarch Jacob overtook him in his old age with sorrow. The compromising Pilate is said to have committed suicide. Herod Antipas kills John the Baptist and in finally banished. Spain cruelly treats her colonies and loses her American possessions and her national standing and honor."

Notwithstanding the low temperature Courtland beach had a big crowd yesterday afternoon. After the shower the evening crowds began to arrive and the street cars landed passengers at the beach at the rate of fifty a minute.

Sam Murphy, the daring aviator, made the most wonderful balloon ascension ever seen in this part of the country. At exactly 7:35 o'clock the word was given, "Everybody let go," and the great big balloon, which had been filled as full as possible, shot up at a remarkably rapid pace, Murphy hanging onto the parachute with hands for probably two seconds, when he let go and hung by his teeth, waving two American flags, one in either hand. In this position he remained for several minutes, when he released his arms and contortions and hung on by his toes. It was seven minutes from the time he left the ground until he struck terra firma. After cutting loose the parachute dropped 100 feet or so before it filled with air and Murphy hung on to the parachute until the entire descent in this perilous position. Everybody declared it the most wonderful act of daring they had ever witnessed. The Rouens gave two exhibitions of their novel flying trapeze and ceiling walking performance, which were highly appreciated. The colored quartet are such favorites that they were repeatedly encored and, as Manager Griffiths expresses it, "they are compelled to sing until they can barely get out a cough."

of our unmaking them, thus securing the needed liberty of the spirit. "Here is where religion comes in as a reconciling and harmonizing power to remedy in some measure the untoward circumstances of life. It does this by inspiring us to self-help and the help of others. One can always find a more unfortunate soul than one's self and sympathy for that soul pointed with active effort therefore takes one out of one's own troubles. The assiduous servants of humanity have had no time or disposition to fret over their personal misfortunes. Jesus, who was thoroughly given to human helpfulness, kept His own good cheer under trying conditions, deprived of very much that must have seemed to His ardent heart desirable. Pasteur, with the infinitely superior advantages of our time, was able to do directly a thousand times more for the lessening of misery, and he, too, found in his service the consolation of all his woes.

"It is idle to dream of a state here or hereafter free from all discomforts and certainly they in this world who never grieve cannot be good people, but when our misfortunes work out for us patience, resignation, trust; when hope and faith rise triumphant over whatever is set against us, we are about doubled before our faces into good. Thus fate itself is defied and the human creature, ravaged perhaps by disease to a shadow, rises before us spiritual, delicate, creative, commanding our wonder and our reverence. We feel that we know that we have seen the victory of the soul."

OMAHA'S RESORTS YESTERDAY.

Sam Murphy Goes Up in a Balloon by His Teeth. Lake Manawa had a very big attendance yesterday. The cool weather prevented many bathing, but the electric launches, Panama headgear and rowboats were well patronized. The lake presented a picturesque view with the many yachts etc. Covalt's boat was, as usual, the great center of attraction. The musical program this week is an unusually attractive one and was about doubled yesterday, because of the many encores. Mr. Covalt so generously responded to. The solos rendered by Mr. Lee H. Davis and Mr. Covalt's cornet solo received merited applause. The rain that visited Omaha during the afternoon did not reach Manawa, and consequently the throngs remained and everybody seemingly enjoyed the day's outing.

At Courtland Beach. Notwithstanding the low temperature Courtland beach had a big crowd yesterday afternoon. After the shower the evening crowds began to arrive and the street cars landed passengers at the beach at the rate of fifty a minute.

Another Panama Hat Story. Senator Millard's Possession Suggests One More with Names Given. HOW DAVE MERCER WORKED JOHN JENKINS. United States Consul at San Salvador Proves a Mark for the Non-resident Member from the Second Nebraska.

Friends of Senator J. H. Millard are in the grip of the new Panama hat that he brought home from Washington. It is so much finer than the average so-called Panama headgear that it occasions remark among those of the senator's friends who have inspected it. The hat is of large size and wide brim. The texture is as fine as that of woven linen and quite as durable. It is of light weight, yet holds its shape perfectly.

WITH A QUANDARY AND A TEAM. W. H. Fritz of Lockbourne, Ohio, Has a Problem to Propound to the Police. An unknown person, representing himself as a farmer, drove up before an employment agency near Eleventh and Farnam streets, and engaged W. H. Fritz of Lockbourne, O., to do some harvesting for him at $1.50 per day. The new hired man and his employer had not gone far on the road toward the latter's home when the farmer suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to make a purchase and asked Fritz to lend him a little money for this purpose. The newly employed produced $25. They then returned to the street before the Barker hotel and the farmer went to get his merchandise, leaving Fritz to hold the horse. He held it for four hours. He then drove over to the police station for consultation. What Fritz wants to know is whether he has been swindled or only that the farmer is shopping for wet goods and will return sometime. Likewise, if he has acquired a grey horse and light buggy.

ECHO OF THE OLD BOOM DAYS. J. B. Farrotte Has a Suit Growing Out of George W. Ames' Indebtedness. Former Sheriff John W. McDonald and William J. Broth, William M. White and William J. Maxwell, who were sureties on his $10,000 bond; and also John Lewis, who was a deputy under him, and Lewis' brother, John C. Barnard, John H. Butler, Thomas Denison and William S. Rector are sued in district court for $4,842.28 by Jerome B. Farrotte, a real estate agent. "The suit dates back to April 6, 1896, there was no picture nor public notice taken of the Central American creation. In fact, as the story is told in the State department, there was not only no public acknowledgment of the new title, but the congressman did not seem to really appreciate the consular purchase and forgot to acknowledge receipt to the Nebraska who had taken the trouble to please the representative. The congressman also forgot to remit to the representative of the United States the money which he had expended. United States gold transmitted into free silver of the tropical republic. The story whispered in the Washington was wafted across the continent to Nebraska a short time after Consul Jenkins arrived at home to spend his vacation. When asked as to the truth of the report Mr. Jenkins seemed annoyed to think that the well-defined rumor had leaked out, as it had been treated as one of those diplomatic incidents which are supposed to remain secret even between those who are really fully aware of all the details, and Mr. Jenkins has also prided himself upon his ability to judge men, thinking it one of the first duties of a consular representative of the government to be a good business man. The consul, however, reluctantly admitted that the rumor was true and that the cost of the congressman's hat had been charged off his personal account to profit and loss.

When McDonald was in office," says Attorney Dan J. Riley, who, with Lyle Abbott, represents Parrotte and who filed the petition late Saturday afternoon. "On the 14th of April, 1896, George W. Ames left town, owing Parrotte $2,000 and at 12:35 a. m., Deputy Sheriff Lewis took Parrotte and one witness and declared attachment on seventy-five different lots in Ames Place, Hillside addition, Newport addition and Brighton addition to secure Parrotte's claim. Parrotte decried at the time against the absence of an additional witness, but Lewis assured him it would be all right. Three days later Ames gave the Omaha National bank a mortgage on these lots and then there was a contest in the courts, which resulted in the supreme tribunal ruling in favor of the bank and dissolving the attachment last October for the reason that Lewis had had in the eyes of the law, only one witness, whereas two are required to legalize such levying transaction.

GRAIN MEN MEET AT DINNER. Floyd J. Campbell Entertains Half a Dozen Correspondents with Little Spread. J. R. Whitney of Carroll, Ia., C. G. McNeill of Sioux City, Clinton Schick of Des Moines, with K. C. Morehouse, and J. E. Von Dorn of Omaha, all correspondents of the Floyd J. Campbell commission firm or identified with it, were dined in the Red room of the Her Grand yesterday by Mr. Campbell. It was a swell dinner for the little party, with a dozen courses and half as many wines and cordials, and with elaborate table decorations, including a pyramid of smilax and cut flowers that reached from the center of the table to the ceiling.
