Clerk and Reporter of Supreme Court the Offices in Which Contest Appears to Be the Most Lively.

Chris Jones of Keosauqua, clerk of the Iowa supreme court, who is a candidate for re-nomination for a third term at the hands of the republican state convention at Des Moines, July 30, was in the city yesterday conferring with local politicians and incidentally looking after his fences.

Mr. Jones is meeting with considerable opposition for a third term. J. E. Whelan of Red Oak, M. A. Burman of Grundy Center are in the field against him. Mr. Whelan was in the city Tuesday during the congressional convention and is confident of the support of the Ninth district. The contest over this nomination, it is said, promises to be a lively one.

W. W. Cornwall of Spencer, who is a candidate for the nomination for supreme court reporter, was also in the city yesterday. The fight for this nomination is a three-cornered one. John H. Williams of Ames and B. L. Sallinger of Carroll, the present incumbent, being also candidates.

Secretary of State W. H. Martin of Greenfield, who was present at the congressional convention Tuesday, is meeting with the local committee for re-nomination and has the field clear. His re-nomination by acclamation is conceded.

State Senator Bruce of Antia, the present member of the committee from this district, who succeeded Mr. Dewell two years ago, is seeking re-election and the race between them for the position promises to be a lively one.

Use any soap so its Puck's soap. RIGHT TO BUILD PESTHOUSE

City Attorney Decides that City Has All the Authority Needed.

City Attorney Snyder, after looking up the law in the matter, is of the opinion that the city not only has the right to erect and maintain an isolation hospital outside the corporate limits of the municipality, but that it will also have the exclusive jurisdiction and control of such institution.

The Board of Health, realizing the need of increased facilities for handling contagious diseases such as smallpox, is planning to construct two wings to the pest-house near Myrtle Springs. These wings are to be used as wards for male and female patients, while the present structure will be utilized as an administration building.

The cost of the proposed addition, it is estimated, will be between $2,500 and $3,000. In the event of the city building as planned the expense will be paid by the county and later assessed upon the city. Every effort will be made by the city Board of Health to have the additions to the pest-house built before the fall in order to take care of such smallpox cases as may then arise. For the last two years the city has been greatly handicapped in the matter of properly caring for smallpox cases, owing to lack of room and facilities at the pesthouse, this being especially true in the case of female patients, the city having had absolutely no place in which to care for this class of patients.

There was an address of welcome to the members of the convention by Mayor James M. Brenton of Des Moines and response by R. C. Kennally, president of the association. This afternoon addresses were delivered by Judge William H. McHenry of the district bench and Senator C. C. Dowell. The members of the association discussed the new law in regard to the salaries of sheriffs which was passed by the legislature last session and the pay in some cases and reducing it in others. The association will continue in session tomorrow. The following are here: R. C. Kennally, Calhoun; J. R. Anderson, Audubon; J. W. Wright, Jefferson; A. L. Rinsley, A. C. Campbell, Howard; B. Contract for Medical Buildings. The Board of Regents of the Iowa State University let the contracts to James Rowan & Son of Iowa City for the two new buildings of the university to be used for medical buildings, the aggregate expense to be about $25,000. The regents also let the contract for the immediate use in the building fund. The regents also selected Dr. James R. Guthrie of the faculty to be dean of the medical school, but the place of Dr. Middleton, formerly the dean, in the chair of surgery, has not yet been decided.

The Farmers' Co-operative society of Klemme has been organized, with $10,000 capital stock, by W. F. Stello and others. The Agnew-Nichols Grain and Livestock company of Waterloo has been organized, with $25,000 capital, and articles filed. Louisiana Purchase Commission Plans.

The Iowa commission on the Louisiana Purchase question has arranged to hold their next meeting on the state fair grounds during the week of the state fair, at which time a report from the building committee on the preliminary plans for the Iowa building at St. Louis is expected, also a report from the committee on rules and regulations. Architects will be employed to have the preliminary plans prepared and estimates of cost of the building and if the plans are approved a contract for detail plans will be entered into and a committee be instructed to secure bids from contractors.

Many Would-be Doctors. Secretary Kennedy of the State Board of Medical Examiners was engaged today in examining a class of seventy-five regulars, five homeopaths and four eclectics who desire certificates enabling them to practice medicine in Iowa. This is one of the largest classes ever received by the board. The State Executive Council, all members being present, is engaged now on the work of the Board of Review, which consists of equalizing the personal property assessments of the various counties of Iowa. The telephone assessments are completed, but the certificates not made out. Can't Give Away State Land.

The next legislature of Iowa will be asked to grant another right-of-way. This will be for a drain from the proposed Mercy hospital at Marshalltown through the state land on which the Iowa Soldiers' home is located. Father Lenihan of Marshalltown has planned for a fine hospital on land that he has secured by right-of-way from the state property to connect with the sewer from the soldiers' home. He asked permission to enter upon the state land for this purpose. The Board of Control did not care to decide what would be clearly a legal question and obtained the Attorney General Mullan's decision to the effect that the board has no right to grant the use of the state's property for private purposes. The power to do so lies with the legislature alone. It is probable some temporary arrangement will be made for the hospital until the legislature makes the necessary grant of authority. The hospital to be erected will occupy a beautiful tract of land not far from the soldiers' home.

Democratic Conventions. A number of the democratic congressional conventions have been called. The one in the Sixth district will be at Keosauqua, where John P. The democrats of the Fourth district are to meet in New Hampton August 6 and make their nomination. The First district are to meet at Burlington August 20. The Eighth district convention will be in Creston and the Eleventh in Lemars. In the Third district, where the democrats hope to give Colonel Henderson a hard race, there is a new sort of independent movement, will be inaugurated with candidate who has not been a prominent democrat and in this the opposition would expect to get the help of influential outside interests that have become opposed to the work of the speaker of the house.

Will Not Break the Bottle. Miss Frances West of this city, who was selected by Governor Shaw to christen the cruiser Des Moines will be the occasion of the launching of that vessel at the shipyard in Quincy, Mass., has announced that she will be unable to be present on that occasion. She has done much traveling and will soon start for Peoria for a visit with her mother. When she accepted the nomination to break the bottle of wine at the launching it was expected the event would occur last November. It is now expected that Mayor Brenton of Des Moines will name the young woman who will do the christening act.

Used Confederate Bills. Henry Romhold was arrested by the police today for passing Confederate bills. He had passed bills of that kind at three or four bakeries and grocery stores and had secured good money in change.
