PICNICS RULE FOR THE DAY

Omaha Folks Seek Amusement at the Several Local Resorts.

NEWSBOYS RULE ROOST AT KRUG PARK

Annual Outing of the Paper Merchants Proves an Uninterrupted Stretch of Good Time and Red Hot Sport.

The boys undoubtedly have names by which they are known within the family circle, but those names are never remembered when at the newsboys' picnic they are as anonymous as the competition annually brought about by the generosity of an appreciative public.

It was newsboys' day at the park from 9 o'clock in the morning until the shades of evening fell. After the morning papers had been disposed of, the boys quit work and readers of afternoon papers found that once again, after twelve months' regularity, their favorite news vendor was off duty and were forced into patronizing the news stands.

It would not have satisfied the boys to start the picnic before the contests began, so a bicycle race to the grounds was the first number on the program. The contestants met at the corner of Thirty-ninth and Farnam streets, from which point they rode to the track at the corner of Tenth and Farnam.

Boys Lunch for Fair. One would have to be a boy, a hungry boy, with sunburned face, bare feet and a seldom satisfied appetite to do full justice to that dinner.

Two Funny Games. Then came the other games—the base ball once more, the foot races, the jumping, the charge of having ducked in a pond.

Children's Day at Courtland. It was "Children's day" at Courtland beach Thursday. Two Sunday schools, that of the First Baptist church and that of the Plymouth Congregational church, gave picnics at that resort.

How can the opponents of aristocracy and plutocracy be made to understand the difference between the two? Not by making peace with the enemy; not by imitating their words; not by their phrasing, but by honest, straightforward appeal to the American people upon the basis of the principles of justice and with an organization that can be relied upon to carry out their program.

It had been the intention of the president and his party to be the guests of Governor Murphy at luncheon, but the lateness of the arrival made it necessary to forego the luncheon. On the way to the cottage a veteran of the civil war and a Grand Army man rushed up to the president to grasp his hand. President Roosevelt greeted him cordially and said: "One of the many good results of the Spanish-American war is the appreciation we of the younger generation have of the value to you, the veterans of that little button which you wear on the lapel of your coat."
