

DOUGLAS GETS SHORT END

Chairman Blackburn Talks of Apportionment for Congressional Convention.

SAYS HE FAVORS ELECTION AT LARGE

Committee Will Probably Call Convention for September 20, with Primaries the Preceding Day—Gossip Among Politicians.

Chairman Blackburn of the congressional committee said yesterday morning that it is his intention to call the committee to meet at his office at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, to call the congressional convention for Saturday, September 20, and the primaries for the preceding day.

"We expect," said Mr. Blackburn, "that the county committee will call its primaries for the same date, and that the executive committee will be able to arrange to hold the county and congressional primaries with the same judges and clerks."

"The congressional committee will fix its date so as to admit the fifteen delegates from Washington and the eight from Barry who have already been selected and provide for the election of 121 delegates from Douglas county direct to the congressional convention. It has been practically decided that Douglas county will give 121 delegates in the convention, which will be less than one for each 100 votes cast for the republican nominee at the last congressional election—the basis used in fixing the number of delegates already selected in Washington and Barry counties. If we should give Douglas county representation on the same basis as the other counties it would have 129 votes in the convention, and we consider the jump from 95, the number Douglas county had two years ago, to 129, too steep."

"As to the apportionment of the 121 delegates between the wards of Omaha and South Omaha and the country precincts, I am not saying anything. That has not been determined, and I don't know as it makes much difference to us how many delegates each ward and precinct is to have. I am in favor of having the entire Douglas county delegation elected at large, instead of allowing each ward and precinct to vote separately, but I understand that a majority of the committee differs with me on this proposition."

"It appears to me," said a prominent republican, "that Mercer is up to another trick in holding back the meeting of the congressional committee until the same day and the same hour appointed for the meeting of the county committee. The arrangement is certainly out of the usual order, for it has always been the custom to give the county committee an opportunity to act adversely in issuing its call. Under the present arrangement the county committee will not know anything of what is afoot from the congressional committee, which will be in session at the same time, what arrangement, if any, it has to make for the selection of delegates to the congressional convention by the county convention. It will not know, either, when the congressional primaries are to be held, and the delegates are to be elected directly to a congressional convention, so that it may call the county primaries for the same time. There may be some kind of an understanding about all this between Mercer's managers and a select few of the county committee, but Mercer's managers and a select few of the county committee do not by long odds represent the republicans of this county and district."

"In every other congressional district in this state the republicans have been given an opportunity to select the delegates to their convention in the usual way, and every candidate for the nomination has been given a fair and equal chance. But here in the Second district the committee, instead of representing the republican party, represents Mercer alone, and everything is arranged to the liking and convenience of the Mercer managers. Mr. Mercer has not gained anything by his tactics, and if he has any tricks to spring in connection with the call for the primaries, as is indicated by the peculiar arrangement for the meetings of the committee, he will still further weaken his chances for the nomination."

Whatever may be said of Councilman Lobeck, his political astuteness is conceded. "It looks as if you had Dave beat," he was overheard to say. "If Mercer had been wise he would have had his congressional convention called in June. There might have been a good chance for him then, but now I don't believe he can land the nomination. He is getting weaker every day and I wouldn't give much for his chance for nomination, and surely not for election."

The West Side Republican club will meet at Hibbler's hall, Forty-fourth and Leavenworth streets, Friday night. Candidates for nominations on the republican ticket are expected to be present and address the meeting.

Congressman Burkett of the First district passed through Omaha yesterday on his way home from Tekamah, where he attended the republican county convention Wednesday, at which Speaker Sears was nominated for the legislature. Mr. Burkett says there are no clouds on the horizon in his district, everything is harmonious in the party and he expects a re-election by a large majority. His committee meets at Lincoln today to complete arrangements for the conduct of the congressional campaign. Mr. Burkett spent only a few hours in the city and put in the time visiting his political friends.

The Sixth Ward Republican club will meet this evening at Twenty-fourth and Burdette streets. In addition to prominent speakers who have accepted invitation to be present, there will be a musical program.

Operatic Selections Krug Park Tonight. Music lovers preferring the popular in music will find the program by Huxter's band at Krug park tonight to their liking. All the classic will be cut out and a special program of operatic selections will be rendered. This band is acknowledged to be finely instrumented for giving the kind of a program out-of-doors and as on all other occasions a large audience is expected. On Sunday the double balloon ascension will be given and America's noted aeronaut, J. Waldorf Hall, will make an attempt to beat the high ascension record. The regular lengthy and varied program is presented every afternoon and evening.

Tonight at Courtland. Nordin's orchestra will tonight render a classical program and tomorrow night program composed entirely of coon melodies and popular selections. The revolving ladder performances, that have so highly amused the large audiences this week, will be continued hereafter, and the program will consist of a variety of acts and Tony Faust his slack wire performance. Monday will be Strauss night; Tuesday, descriptive night; Wednesday, Sousa night; Thursday, comic opera night; Friday, classical night; Saturday, coon melody night. The Jacksonian club picnic will be held August 30 and Labor day picnic September 1, at Courtland beach.

Sixth Ward Republican Club. There will be something doing at the meeting of the Sixth Ward Republican club this evening at Peterson's hall, Twenty-fourth and Burdette streets, and you can't afford to miss the fun. Hon. J. H. Van Dusen and P. A. Brown will speak and a male quartet will sing. Candidates are cordially invited to be present.

MERCER IN QUEST OF HOME

Seventh Ward Republicans Fail to Provide Proverbial Fatted Calf.

THEIR APPLAUSE GOES TO J. P. BREEN

Shouts for Mercer Come from Blackburn-Jordan Force in Hear of Hall - Oratorical Attempt of Congressman.

Dave Mercer undertook to find a home last night and he was anything but pleased with the result of his quest. Away from his City of Washington, far from his friends at Atlantic City, more than crying distance from Minneapolis and with memories of a more pleasant summer on board a government transport in the Orient, the gentleman who occupies the seat belonging to the Second Nebraska district in the halls of congress sought to make himself at home in the Seventh ward of the city of Omaha.

The occasion was the meeting of the Seventh Ward Republican club, and the particular spot was the hall at the corner of Twenty-seventh and Leavenworth. Indeed, Mercer was the prodigal son, but the proverbial fatted calf had waited so long that those not in the immediate family of the prodigal had been given and had taken the opportunity to sharpen its long grown horns for an unexpected thrust at the visitor.

The home people were there in force, for never before has the Seventh Ward republican club held such a largely attended meeting. Aside from the republicans of the ward some fifty or sixty lusty lunged shouters from the First and Ninth wards crowded in the hall and did what they could to cheer up the visitor from the east. Tom Blackburn of the Ninth and Dick Johnson of the First were the conspicuous leaders of the nonresident visitors that endeavored to make the prodigal feel at home.

But it was too late. When invited to speak the congressman knew only too well that the shouts and plauds that greeted him came not from the prodigal, but from the Blackburn-Jordan forces in the rear of the hall. And when John P. Breen, the real home candidate for the congressional nomination, occupied the rostrum Dave observed only too keenly for his own comfort that the applause and cheers came from the home people.

Wood, too, did Mercer find the spontaneous cheers given at the conclusion of the scholarly and eloquent address given by his Seventh ward competitor for the congressional nomination. Among the remarks made by Mr. Mercer were these: "Since I saw you last I have not sprouted any horns or formed any bad habits. Every man thinks pretty well of his stomach and mine is getting along first rate. I have been preserving my strength so as to keep right on getting you people all the public buildings you want. If you don't get me together long enough I will have the capitol moved out here to you."

"It was playing it pretty strong when I got that public building for Blair. Tom Reed was speaker of the house then and he was against it and it's a pretty hard game to go up against the speaker. I got Matt Quay, who was chairman of the senate committee on buildings, and told him that I was trying to get a public building on every 160 acres of ground out in Nebraska, and it would have to be stopped. When Quay met me he said I was going too strong, and I just told him that I would not get a public building he couldn't have one that he wanted at New Brighton, Pa. The result was that the buildings went up at both Blair and New Brighton."

"If there is anything I dislike it is a campaign full of personalities, but if it's necessary to get into a campaign I will find me a pretty good fighter. As long as my opponents treat me like a gentleman I will treat them like gentlemen. Some people around here will be sorry that I didn't stay in Washington or Minneapolis."

"John Breen is a good fellow and after it is over I will come to me to get me to carry every ward in the city unanimously."

Mr. Breen preceded his discourse on national and international topics by remarking that he did not approve of the "gentlemanly" campaign indicated by a cartoon which Mr. Mercer had presented to the audience. He produced a copy of the objectionable print, which showed Mercer with a string of public buildings in his hands and three curs barking at his feet.

"On what meat does this man feed," asked Mr. Breen, "that he becomes so great and powerful that he assumes to stride across this congressional district and characterize as yellow dogs the citizens who question his right to stay in congress forever?"

After the meeting adjourned Mercer pushed his way through a crowd on the sidewalk to reach President of the club, the name of the treasurer of the club. "I suppose if you put up that tent you'll want some money?" explained the congressman in a tone so loud that his generous offer floated into the ears of every man within the distance of a block.

DOUGLAS COUNTY VETERANS

Old Boys Hold a Successful Reunion at Elk City and Elect Officers.

The Douglas County Veterans' association is holding its annual reunion at Elk City this week and is having a great time from all points of view. Attendance is large, weather is fine and enthusiasm knows no bounds.

Thursday, the second day of the reunion, witnessed the election of officers for the coming year. Charles Herrier of Valley was elected president; W. E. Somes of Elk City, first vice president; J. P. Cornish, N. C. of Omaha, second vice president; D. M. Haverly of Omaha, secretary; Charles B. Hall of Omaha, treasurer.

About 3,000 people were on the grounds during the day. The principal speakers were given at the afternoon session. N. C. of Omaha. A sham battle was given at 4 o'clock. At the camp fire tonight many army stories were told and army songs were sung. Judge Lee Estelle was the principal speaker this evening. The reunion will close Friday evening.

A Concert of Solos. For the first time this season all of the many soloists of Covall's band at Lake Manawa will be on the program tonight for solos. This includes many of the finest soloists in the country and is an opportunity seldom offered the music loving public. There will be a solo by Mr. Miller, on the oboe. As there are only eight or ten solo players in the country, this alone will be a rare treat. Cornet solos, cornet duets, trombone duets, piccolo, xylophone, clarinet, baritone, trombone and horn solos will be the order of the evening.

TOMPSETT MAY BE RETIRED

Board of Education Considering Change in Military Instruction.

DROP BUSINESS FOR NIGHT

Plumbers Enjoy Themselves at a Banquet in Dellone Hotel.

At a special meeting of the Board of Education to be held this week the question of securing a military instructor from the United States army will be considered. The War department has said that 100 officers would be detailed for this purpose to go to schools where at least 100 pupils are to be given instruction in military science during the year. The cadet battalion at Omaha will number more than 200 at all times, which puts this school well beyond the limit.

Members of the board who are favorable to the plan say that it may cause some friction for the reason that the present commandant of cadets, Mr. Tompsett, has been employed for a year and may insist upon the contract being carried out. It is proposed by those who desire to carry out the contract that Mr. Tompsett be given the position of clerk to the superintendent of buildings, or some similar position to be created, so that he can draw his pay for the year and the school still have the benefit of the regular officer. The desire to change the contract with the commandant is caused by the fact that the regular officers will be detailed for a period of two years, and if one is not secured for Omaha as soon as the detail is made it may be impossible to secure before the time expires.

At the special meeting to be called it is expected that the final steps in the matter of securing additional ground for the Monument Park school will be taken and the tract purchased or negotiations dropped. The price at which the tract was offered was $2,500. A bid of $1,750 was made and it is understood that the owner will sell for $2,000. Friends of the purchase believe that it will be made below the latter figure.

The smokestack at the High school will also be considered and it is expected that some friction will develop between those who think that a smokestack should be put there and those who believe that the present one, with a few alterations, can be utilized.

ACCUSED OF STEALING TOOLS

Detective Causes the Arrest of Three Former Employes of Union Pacific.

D. McKenna, William Nobles and Charles A. Forbes are under arrest charged with grand larceny. The complaints were sworn out by a representative of the Union Pacific Railroad company, who alleges that the men stole tools of the value of about $170 from the shops. The robbery is alleged to have occurred on or about August 15, and the complaint specifies one box of steel files valued at $20; five boxes of wrenches valued at $20 each and other tools to the value of $50.

Forbes was lodged in the county jail Wednesday night and yesterday his hearing was set for Saturday in police court. He has been released on bond. Nobles and McKenna were arrested at Bancroft. They have not been arraigned. Forbes denied the charge against him, but refused to discuss the case.

Special Officer Vizard of the Union Pacific visited the home of Forbes, 214 South Twenty-ninth street, and there discovered a quantity of paint brushes with the Union Pacific mark on them. At the residence of Nobles, 3511 Burt street, more of the goods alleged to have been stolen were found. In all about $150 worth were recovered. The house of McKenna has not yet been searched. The men are former employes of the Union Pacific company, but until the arrests Wednesday nothing had been done to stop it. While the representative of the company would not discuss the case, he left the impression that the arrested men had confessed to the crime, who brought the tools out in order that they could be disposed of.

The program will include games and speeches by members of the unions composed of the Central Labor union. The arrangements for the parade are not complete, but will be announced later. The parade will march over some of the principal streets and the marchers will take cars for the grounds about noon. The admission to the grounds will be the usual fee of 10 cents.

Quarantine on India Raised. The smallpox quarantine at the residence of Police Officer India, 213 South Twenty-seventh street, has been raised. Health Officer Woodard has disinfecting it and burn the bed clothing. Officer India having recovered from the disease, the quarantine was removed and he is now at home.

The Officer India has been suspended for several weeks from the police force because of his refusal to notify the health department that a member of his family had smallpox. It is likely that he will resign before the board has an opportunity to hear his case.

DROP BUSINESS FOR NIGHT

Plumbers Enjoy Themselves at a Banquet in Dellone Hotel.

VISITORS COMPLIMENT THE CITY

Day is Occupied in Discussing Amendments to the Constitution—Benefit Classes are Adopted.

Delegates to the Plumbers' International convention were here last night. Local Union No. 16 was the host and its members entertained over 300 guests, completely filling the dining room of the Dellone hotel, where the banquet was held. Pipes were laid to a wall of good time and every pipe sprang a leak in the banquet hall.

Among the main guests present were the presidents of the Building and Trades council and local affiliated unions, the president of the Central Labor union, Mayor Frank E. Moore, Edward Rosewater, President Clifford of the local union, National Organizer Spencer and others. The march to the dining hall began shortly before 10 o'clock, and from that time on pleasure reigned.

The guests were welcomed by President Clifford of the local union, who introduced A. S. Kelly of Chicago, who presided as toastmaster. In his address Mr. Kelly stated that in all his experience with international conventions he had never seen delegates more hospitably entertained than the delegates to this convention. He highly complimented the city of Omaha and its people on the wonderful progress of the town.

Speaks Well of Plumbers. Mayor Moore was introduced by Mr. Kelly in a very eulogistic speech and made a characteristic talk. He called the plumbers millionaires, he said, because J. P. Morgan did. He joked the delegates about the high prices they charged and concluded by telling them they were the fittest crowd he had been one of for many a day. The mayor was at his best.

William Merrick, president of the International association, made a short talk on the benefit of the union. He paid many compliments to the Omaha local and to the Omaha people. He was followed by Edward Rosewater, at whom the toastmaster had thrown many bouquets in introducing. Mr. Rosewater stated that he did not know why he had been introduced into a plumbers' union in such a way unless it was that he had always been a pipelayer. Mr. Rosewater then referred to labor organizations and the interest that he had taken in them.

County Jailor Thomas Flynn congratulated the members of local No. 16 that the best and most prominent citizens of the city were its guests, and spoke at length of the stand Mayor Moore had always taken for the workmen and for organized labor. He was followed by various local speakers, all of whom were well received and heartily applauded.

The committee who had the banquet in charge was composed of P. T. Green, A. C. Kugel, Harry McVea, J. L. Lynch, Charles Grandee, D. P. Chilton and I. C. Lynch. Discuss the Constitution.

Both the morning and afternoon sessions yesterday were devoted to the discussion of the constitution. This was taken up by sections and almost a third of the new constitution was adopted, including the sick, death, strike and benefit clauses. Late in the afternoon reports of committees were read. These, mostly, were in regard to the condition of the various locals throughout the country. Since the last convention seventy new locals have been organized and 6,000 new members have been taken into the association.

The benefit clause provides that a certain amount of money be paid to a member who is incapacitated for work by injury or sickness. A member who has been in the organization for twenty years and who is 45 years of age, by this section of the constitution will receive a yearly pension.

"This clause," said President Merrick, "is a very important part of the constitution. It not only means much to the members individually, but it means much to the organization as a whole. It will be the means of increasing our membership and will encourage members to remain in the organization. I consider it very important and very essential to the unions. In our business a man is liable to accident any time and there should be something for his protection. And then, after a man follows this business for twenty years, it is not infrequent that he is broken down in health and unable to work, for it takes a strong, active man to do the work."

Today the convention will take up the nationalization work and will hear the reports of as many committees as possible. It is likely, though it is not assured, that the work of the convention will be completed by Saturday evening. The last work of the convention will be the election of officers. This evening the delegates will be entertained at Labor temple.
