The general galety expected in consequence of the general home-coming of the pleasure seekers failed to materialize last week, and outside of some half dozen luncheons and dinners, mostly at the Country club, there was little going on, the week seeming the duller for the activity of

The suggestion has been made, and the plan is being urged by not a few, that some means be devised for heating the Country club this winter; that the Saturday evening assemblies at least, may be continued. A skating rink and several other things have been suggested as no end of fun, not to speak of the sleigh rides back and forth, but it is doubtful if the plan will carry after all for, fortunately for society in general, there are still a few who recognize the modern Country club and like institutions as a menace to the dignity and conventionality that has in time past characterized smart society.

Practically everybody has returned from their summer's outing and such a sunburned, freekled, weather-beaten lot as they are, too. Just why it is that half the women in society will go about wearing veil thick enough to smother them, to protect their complexions from the March wind, just at the close of the season when fair skin is most desirable, and then go away to the seashore or some other place and go about all summer hatless and with their sleeves rolled above their elbows and come home to begin the season of "decolette creations" as brown and as red as Indians, is one of the things that these privileged creatures can explain satisfactorily only to themselves. The question was put to one of them one day last week and she replied "Oh-because," and then launched upon an account of the preparations and treatment that were to make her presentable for the Ak-Sar-Ben ball and subsequent events and incidentally remarked that a certain women in town was very much in demand among the society women for her successful treatment of sunburned skin.

In line with this incident come an explanation of a coolness that has come up between two popular matrons who closed the season bosom friends, one going to the Massachusetts coast and the other to one of the Minnesota lakes for the summer. It was generally understood that they were to be among the early entertainers this fall, and to not a few had been confided their plans for a joint affair as novel as it was to be elaborate. It is all off now, however, and they are scarcely speaking to each other and it has leaked out that the hard feeling is the result of conflicting engagements for sun- summer on a ranch near Wolf, Colo., is burn treatment. It is also appropriate to adopt some means of preserving your health, and as many people during the last fifty years have used no other medicine for indigestion. dyspepsia, constipation, insomnia and malaris than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it certainly proves its value.
