GERMAN STEAKS LUXURIES

In Berlin They Cost Forty-Four Cents the relations between Great Britain and Per Pound and Are Climbing.

BERLIN, Aug. 30 .- The price of meat in Germany continues to rise and the town council and other bodies and the newspapers in every part of the empire are discussing what is called 'the meat famine." The butchers' guilds advanced the price of meat this week from 214 to 5 cents per pound. A good steak costs 44 cents a pound in Berlin. Markets are generally reported statistically 26 per cent higher than in 1 Paris, Vienna and Buda Pest they are only 10 to 16 per cent higher. Germany's more rapid advance is attributed to the scarcity of home animals, the exclusion of foreign livestock and the prohibition of canned meats thus suspending large American imports. Hamburg figures show that the imports of American salt and smoked meats in 1901 were only 125,500 metric hundredweights, against 305,300 in 1898. The imports of sausages have shrunk in the same time from 18,000 to 880 metric hundredweights and American canned meats from 19,600 to 10,200 metric hundredweights. Berlin slaughtered in July 5,110 fewer animals than in July, 1901, in spite of the increasing population, and the slaughterings were further diminished in August. The official authorities of the kingdom of Saxony report 5 per cent decrease in the slaughterings since 1900 and a great lack of animals suitable for butchering. A number of important municipalities have petitioned the government to open the frontiers to livestock. The Prussian minister of agriculture, replying to a deputation of the Posen council making such a request, said it was impossible to withdraw the exclusion decrees, averring that the exclusion of foreign animals had immensely improved the veterinary conditions of Germany.

judging from its present progress, the power of the United States in wealth and numbers will soon exceed that of any rival we have, possibly excepting Russia, whose position in relation to us territorially is not nearly so critical. Under these cir-cumstances it is perfectly clear that the power we need be most concerned about is America. Commercial rivairy ultimately results in a trial by force; it is the only settlement. The policy of either country must avoid anything which will increase the other's power. On that principle the United States has steadily acted in oppos-ing us diplomatically, never conceding a point. We, on the other hand, have usually gone out of our way to help the United States. In the matter of the isthmian canal we lost ground and America gained. The only balancing advantage would be such active friendship on the part of America that we might count on her meeting us half way. Of such friendship the Saturday Review has shown sigain and axian that there is no question of liking or disliking the Americans. Hitherto the sword given by the Egyptians to Lord Wolseley had that distinction, but, with its hilt set with diamonds, it is worth only one-fifth as much as the king's. The standard cost of a sword of honor such as the city of London presented to Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener is $525. The sword the American nation presented to Admiral Dewey is said to have cost $10,000. The shah of Persia has a magnificent saber worth $50,-000. The only sword in the world mora valuable is that belonging to the maharajah of Baroda, India. Its hilt, scabbard and belt are massed with rubies, emeralds and
