CATTLE—There was quite a decrease today in cattle receipts, as compared with the last two weeks, but still there is an increase over the same day of last year. The general opinion was that shippers were rather afraid of a Labor day market and as a result many kept away that otherwise would have been here.

As has been the case for some time past there were not enough cornfed steers in the yards to tell anything about the market and as a result the only thing to be said is that prices are practically unchanged. Packers, though, all claim they want more cornfeds to go with their westerns and that they will pay strong prices for desirable grades.

The cow market was quite active this morning and anything desirable was strong to a dime higher than at the close of last week. Good fleshy cows seem to be selling to the best advantage, but still even the medium grades and canners brought a little better prices than they did last week.

Bulls, veal calves and stags were fully steady today and anything desirable met with ready sale.

The demand for stockers and feeders was fully as active today as it was a week ago and owing to the more limited offerings prices firmed up. The better grades were about a dime higher than on Friday of last week and even the commoner grades were fully steady and in some cases a little higher.

Packers took hold of the western beef steers in good shape this morning and the desirable offerings sold strong to a dime higher than the close of last week. There did not seem to be any more than enough to meet the local demand. Common grades did not show so much improvement. Choice western dehorned feeders were also about a dime higher, while the common and especially the common horned cattle were not much more than steady and somewhat neglected, the same as they have been right along. Range cows that had any kill to them were in active demand and sold strong to 10c higher. The medium grades and canners also brought fully as good prices as they did last week. Representative sales:

HOGS—There was a very light run of hogs here today and the quality was poor. The market opened rather slow, but 5@10c higher than Saturday. There was very little change from start to finish, but owing to the poor quality and to the fact that none of the packing houses were killing today trading was rather slow. The bulk of the sales ranged from $7.30 to $7.35 and as high as $7.40 was paid. Practically everything was disposed of in good season.

Today's advance carries the market back to the highest point reached since August 6. Representative sales:

SHEEP—There were not as many sheep on sale today as have arrived on Monday for the last several weeks, but as compared with the corresponding day of last year there is a good increase. The quality of the offerings was not very good and in fact the bulk of the receipts consisted of feeders.

Packers took hold fairly well of the fat stuff and anything desirable sold at about steady prices. The scarcity of good stuff, however, made the market appear rather dull. Packers, though, claimed that they wanted good killers and that if anything choice was offered they would pay fully steady prices.

There were quite a few feeder buyers on the market this morning and besides that there were a good many standing orders in the hands of commission men, so that the desirable bunches met with ready sale at steady prices. The common kinds, though, were neglected, the same as was the case with the fat sheep and lambs.
