DENVER, Sept. 4 .- (Special Telegram.)-Denver won an exciting game from Omaha today by clever stick work in the eighth inning. Stewart charges defeat to the close decisions of Messmer. He had several close ones to solve and certainly appeared to give the home team the benefit of the doubt in many cases. Denver started to run away with the game. A pass, two hits, an error and two outs gave them three runs in the first. Omaha tied the score in the seventh by Stone's home run. In the second Dolan got on first and came home on Stone's threebagger. In the fifth Genins, Dolan and Carter singled and Burg sent two runs home by a two-bagger. The feature of the game was Gonding's throwing to second base. Attendance, 1,700. Score:

The principal event of the afternoon and one of the most important of the meet, the interstate military match, was won by the New Jersey team, with 1,081 out of a possible 1,200, and incidentally broke the high score record of 1,074, which New Jersey established last year. The District of Columbia team finished second, equalled the 1,074 record and shattered the record for the 500-yard stage of the match.

Georgia, in 1897, rolled up a total of 1,107 in this competition, but as the silhouette target was not used that year the score is not taken into consideration in comparison with work on bullseye target. The interstate military match was open to the army, navy and marine corps of the United States, guard or state militia of the several states and territories and the District of Columbia.

The teams consisted of twelve men each and each fired ten shots at 200 yards and ten shots at 500 yards. Several of the riflemen made perfect scores at the 500-yard stage. The prize which New Jersey retains is the bronze "Boldler of Marsthen," presented by the commender-in-chief on behalf of the state of New York. It is shot for annually and is held during the year by the adjutant of the state whose team wins it. The trophy is valued at $350. Each member of the winning team receives a meddal.

IOWA CORN IN GREAT DANGER Crop is So Backward in Some Sections that Effect of Early Front in Fenred.

IOWA FALLS, Ia., Sept. 4.—(Special.)— There was every indication of a frost in this section last night. A killing frost at this time would mean a total less so far as the corn crop is concerned, as the fields are as green as they were in July and the corn is far from maturity. It will take three weeks of hot, dry weather to fully mature a large per cent of the corn crop in this part of the state. The backwardness of the season, coupled with the wet weather of the aummer, has left the crop in a hopeless condition for maturity before the usual September frost. The bad weather of the past week has caused many to lose hope of the crop maturing and preparations are under way to put the crop in shock as soon as possible and utilize the corn stalks as fodder. This will mean the feeding of many cattle this winter and that little if any corn will go to market. The harvesting of corn would be started this week in many localities, but in the majority of the fields the ground is so wet that it is impossible to run the heavy corn harvesters used to cut and shock the corn. Escape from frost until the latter part of the month is the crop's only salvation. DENISON, Ia., Sept. 4 .- (Special.) - The first frost of the season fell last night in the low places. The frost was light, however, and did not damage the corn.

CEDAR FALLS, Ia., Sept. 4 .- (Special.)-A young man giving the name of Crownover stole a livery rig from the barn of George Mayben. He hired the rig on Friday and said he would not be back that night. Not until Monday did the proprietor feel uneasy, when he sent an employe to Reinbeck, where he found the man had traded the good horse for a poor one and received $25 in cash as difference.

From there he had driven to Ackley, where he sold the horse and buggy for $47 and then skipped. The outfit was worth $200 and he realized $112 from it, and the farmer who purchased the rig and the Reinbeck liverymen are out their money. The horse, buggy and harness have been recovered, but the man has not been lo-
